Didn't Yasser give blood on telly? The question is, 'Who would use it?'.

Old 'Bin Liner' must be shitting himself that the 600 'clerics' decide to throw him out with the rubbish.

I note that Saddo is stopping short of inviting practice bombing runs on his regime, although he's running so close to the edge of the envelope we may just 'Pre-lim'.

mopedman, no backpedaling is what you call it when Sparky called your bluff and came to Ohio. That was backpedaling at it's finest. The funny part is you guys are running around blaming anyone and everyone for making those posts, and I am sorry to say you wrong on most accounts. First you guys accuse me of forging post using others names then when I actually pick a name of someone who doesn't agree with your delusions I am "Now" that person. The best part is next week or a month from now it's is gonna be someone else who did it. and all of those you blamed will sit back and laugh at you, funny thing is I got a e-mail today from 2 of the 3 you have accused and they are laughing there asses off at the buffoons trying to act like the FBI when in reality it is more like Jose and the pussycats.Ohh and remember your not supposed to reply to me. You promised!

Scott, do you talk with your car off or on ?
If on you need to readjust your figures to 13.8-14 volts.

Scott, Since I posed the original question where in "my" post not taxidrivers did I say someone should get a 10,000 fine for 66 in a 65. Phil had the 66 in a 65 speed limit idea and was trying to down play the severity of breaking FCC rules. If it is such a trivial law why does it carry a 10,000 fine? You don't get that for speeding they are not comparable, if your doing 5 watts instead of 4 the FCC isn't going to touch you you know that I know that, It's when you exceed that into the hundreds and thousands and usually when you are causing interference, problems you will get hassled/ busted If your doing 5 watts you can still bleed someone's electronics that is a fact but I will bet the FCC would look the other way If they got a complaint from a neighbor and they tested your equipment and you were doing 20 watts I think they would let you slide just my opinion but you wouldn't be one of the pigs who runs a kW+ , I mean pig by him hogging the airwaves and peoples privacy.

Hello Leland, He has never provided any technical advise in fact he says he can copy 20 wpm cw, I know I know It made me laugh too. Oh btw, he had undeniable proof it was you and Doug posting from Mibx and cotse etc now it is me who has caused all the stir. Landshark writes it and twisty swears to it. These guys remind me of those clowns you had when you were a kid, the one with the sand in the bottom, you punched it in the nose and it bounced back for more.

"Leland C. Scott" <no-spam@junk-mail.net> wrote in message news:%e9q7.83162$Hm.922681@typhoon.mw.mediaone.net...
So Twisted WHO is paying you to stir up trouble on the news group? Or is being "paid to voice my opinion" just another lie on your part? And all your opinions do is cause trouble on this news group, and I have NEVER seen you provide ONE bit of technical advice to anybody yet. It would be fair to say you're nothing but a hired Troll here, and not a very good one at that.

There is also the claim YOU MADE about you having Doug's (a.k.a. N8) "jock strap" mounted on your wall. You never answer that question either.

Uplink.com, so go ahead and call him a liar.

Mis-addressed email is something that I deal with all the time. I get email sent to a variety of different users at uplink.com, a domain that I own. I think this mainly has to do with the number of similar domains to uplink.com, aside from the fact it could be a typo for "iplink.com". What it turned out to be was there is an ISP in Pennsylvania that calls itself
"UpLink." However, their domain name is csrlink.com -- not uplink.com.
Anyway, here's what InterNIC has to say when I do a search on uplink:"

Hi de Ho Crabby
You did it, you made the mistake, now live with it. You were making posts from the MIBX account, you did it.
But go ahead, try to divert attention away from yourself by accusing Sparky of your wrongs doings. The first accusation towards me came from the MIBX account, which you so conveniently have saved and occasionally post it to try to anger me.
Don't try to pass the blame off on to Sparky, you used the Helmut, Bada names three times in the beginning on MIBX, then exclusively from your @home account. Not one other person, than you!
If you are Taxi Driver, you still are a lying, old , hypocritical, coward of a human being. If you not, big deal.

Hi de Ho Crabby
Oh again, keep saying that and eventually you will believe it, but the others on this group that had to endure months of crap from the MIBX account won't forget that you had a hand in it.

Hi de Ho Taxi Crabby,
Would you like a little whine with that cheese?
You did it, you can cry, whine, divert attention away, whatever you want, you and one other person were posting from that MIBX account.
Go ahead and either bring out you alter ego "Taxi driver" or associate, but either way you were one of the people posting from the MIBX account.
You screwed up, "it wasn't me" "they Forged"
"I want to see the logs" You have used those excuses already, but you used Helmut, Bada in agreement, but then realized "Oh shit" and never used them on the MIBX, but you sure did on your regular @Bone account.
So please, whine some more..... :^)>

Don't take Twit-head too seriously, he thinks everyone in here is N8 and they are "out to get" him, i.e., a HUGE CONSPIRACY. (Can't blame him. You'd be paranoid too if you got a jock strap in the mail. Man, that must have sucked) It is astonishing that Landshark and Moparholic proudly support Mr. Twit-head. That gives you a clue about their mental health.

These three are not 'terrorists', they are jokes to be laughed at and enjoyed.

Hello Skipp:

What is the tube complement?

One driving two? Or just two tubes in parallel?

I made a low power linear amplifier for my Dad when I was in Hi School, it used two 6LQ6's in tuned cathode, grounded grid. And did like about 30 to 40 watts dead key, and it had great audio. The ol man ran it for years and years, he told everyone it was his great location and good looks that got him out so well.

Landshark, I think I can I think I can, haha I don't have to belive anything, i post and have posted daily from this very same account, perhaps a few different names, but I hate to break your hearts you guys are looking for a Messiah and sorry it's not me. I know I am a everything that is bad in life and a real hoodlum but something so trivial I would admit because what difference would it make, in fact get the Fbi to do a search for you on those posts and we will see if they come back to me. But I have a few ideas of who they might come back to. You may hear a few of them on the Cb Freeband.

No, I didn't make it to the Adrian swap... Ren Faire is higher on my to meet a few people...

As for the rest of it, why perpetuate a situation which is mutually

Or maybe I was walking around the Ren Faire with my girlfriend and having a great time with someone I care for...

Has it really been that long since someone cared about you like that?? I feel sorry for you, N8/DS/WhatEver....

As for the drinking, I only do that in moderation... Pot? I think not. Never touch the stuff... not anymore anyway.. In Highschool I smoked so much the Zig-Zag man had a tattoo of ME on HIS shoulder... but I put away childish things a long time ago...

Why can't you?

As I asked Leland a few minutes ago......

Why perpetuate a situation which is mutually non-beneficial to all parties involved.

You're still a Codeless Tech... and you're still wrong...

I LOVE what George said. George Washington said "STAY OUT of the affairs of Europe." We did until 1917, when they blew up Lusitania. Then Roosevelt FORCED the JAPS to attack Pearl Harbor in '41 to get us into WW2 (Did we really win that one, or did the National Socialists or the INTernational Socialists win that one)? Now to start WW3 we have 2 BIG NY Apple trees shot down, WHOSE NICKNAMES were "Sodom & Gommorah," for all the SODOMITES that worked there in the financial district! I still would have to OBEY GEORGE W W W. Washington ! This IS Isreal's war--let them fight it! Revalation. 2:9 & 3: 9. What WILL Jesus do (WHY do you have wars among you?...)

I threaten CBers? Gosh, I assume you can prove that, right? Of course you have no proof of anything. Freed from the burdens of reality, you write whatever comes into your head. Facts? You have none. All you have is a sleazy jailbird excuse formula. ("The crack cocaine in my pocket? Why no, that's not MINE, officer. I'm just holding it for a friend")

There was a guy in Baltimore, that was under house arrest (where you wear a collar that calls the warden if you leave), and he lived in an apartment. The dumdum was running a 667 on full blast! I warned him it was a bad idea. One day, I no longer heard him. He got what he deserved.

They changed my IP after 2 and a half years, and they are pulling out of the Baltimore NAP, so I switched to @home's news server to reduce the use of rerouted traffic. I can still post from the other place.

How many times can I watch those planes hit the WTC in full-screen full-motion video? Or download MP3's at over 100Kbps 4 at a time? <: !!

That's one long road, however, I'm in Baltimore.

Hi de Ho Crabby,
All this talk,but you still can't admit that you did those posts from MIBX, tisk tisk.
You did them, you screwed up, so keep trying to avert the attention, keep accusing other people, keep your insistent whining on how you don't have another account, you do, so face up to it old boy.
You are really afraid on what all these people here are going to think, and rightfully so, I would be too. Because the months that this newsgroup had to endure of that trash was totally uncalled for, and you were part

Damn right BadaBing. I don't see why we can't break a few laws without these prudes acting all holy. After all it's us who have to pay the price if we get caught. Unfair laws are meant to be ignored. We're just giving people what they want. Who says it's illegal? Ham cops should keep their noses out of our business. They wouldn't last a second on the street. Enuf said.

There's nuthin illegal about this damn stuff. SO WHAT if the guy is a CBer and says he operates it on CB. There's nothing illegal about modding stuff to work on ham bands and only using it on 3950 or 14310 and joining in the fun or even bootlegging on 10 meters (it's practically part of CB anyway) so STFU and go back to policing the ham bands and leave us freedom loving revolutionary heroes to use the radio rights that god gave us.

Hi Scott,
Well I think Sparky probably just about had enough of the BS that was going on in here, so I'm sure he decided that there are more things in life than this newsgroup.
Kari, I don't quite know what happen to him, but I'm sure he's alive and well eating sardines some where in that Nordic country.

Hi de Ho Crabby,
Yup, lets try to divert the attention away from the truth. You did it, and now you are attempting damage control. You did the posts, that's why they are readily at your disposal. Of course you spent hours looking through posts just to find a few that you did while at the MIBX account, yes, shine the light some where else and they won't see my lies.
Yup, Sparky did it, Doug did it, Taxi did it what ever it will take to hide my innocence. So keep up the moving of the light, because every time it hits, you scurry under the refrigerator like a roach.

You messed up, you got caught and now you are singing like a canary to get out of it. If I posted in groups, big deal, I didn't, but big deal it wasn't hampering anyone or causing hate & discontent.

But you on the other hand were, purposely creating Examine my post carefully. No where do I claim Skipp is breaking any law. No where do I say I am going to turn in Skipp for breaking any law. In fact, the only thing I say is (and I paraphrase) UC Davis might be interested to know their computing resources are being used by a guy who encourages CBers to run amplifiers. And it doesn't matter if "you don't see any encouragement". The college is the one who will decide, not you.

Who gives a shit about you,n8 or anyone of you Anti-Keypussys?
Answer = Noone. Only thing you all can do is run those dicksuckers of yours all the time. You have to voice your opinions on here because if you was to key up everyone would just drop the maul on you. And as for doing anything about what any of you say? Why would anyone want to go to jail after they gave you a beat down and used ya as their BITCH?
Cause there aint no doubt in my mind you "legals" would drop a dime on anyone but you will also make the mistake one day to run that mouth to someone that dont care about jail too. So keep up the good work whining,crying,bitching and quoting fcc rules and regs because thats about all any of you can do!!!

the radio was working just fine the other day and now no audio?
the radio seems to be recieving some thing because the rx meter is flickering.
heres what happins when i turn it on, it makes a high pitched sqeel at low volume and it lasts for about 1/2 a second, i have the rf gain all the way up and the squelch wide open, nothing at all not even a hiss?
i even tryed ssb to see if that would make a difference, it didn't, and i tryed hooking up a external speaker still no audio, i all so tryed the pa and no audio?
any help would be greatly aprecieated.

Actually Scott, it's for the same reason I've bunny hunted with CBers. It's fun. I'm not in it for DX (heck, the DXers would chuckle over the countries I've mentioned - they aren't after distance, they're after rareity!). There are different operators both in CB and amateur radio. Some of the CBers run stock rigs and some have modified rigs and may run 20, 50, or 100 watts. They like to chat and shoot some skip, perhaps. Then there are those running the kilowatts. Amateurs are the same. Many run barefoot, running perhaps 100 watts or so (some even run MILLIWATTS!). Then there are some with the kilowatts (at least one was running something like 30 KW and got caught!). The latter of both the hams and CBers enjoy harassing others, seeing if they can jump on and clobber conversations. I don't need either group (from both the hams and CBers). I guess my point was not taken quite the way I intended it. You don't NEED a ton of power to work skip or have a ball. Heck, if the skip is in, have a ball! I was on FM talking to a friend (who owns and operates the megaplex repeater system) when the 10 meter port opened up with the DX. He (N2HSD) was getting back in his car from filling it with gas. We had a ball! There ARE different amateurs as well as CBers. Either way, jump on it - the water's fine!

Jim

Really strange isn't it whenever the above subjects come up Twisted quits posting replies. He's nothing but a for hire news group Troll with a really warped mind, particularly when he talks about having Doug's jock strap mounted on his wall and talking to "saucer men" too. It's all documented in his own words in several posts he made to this news group. All you have to do is look for them.

Hey Bert, did you ever pick up that Ten-Tec 6N2 you were dreaming about a while back? The current issue of QST has a nice review of the rig. Seems they gave it a "two thumbs ups" rating.

OK so loose transformers could be it. and the relay is mounted to the back of the case. I guess that could be it too. What is meant by poorly wound transformers though. Looks like they can only be wound one way. The SWR in and out is below 1.2. I'll look at the transformers and the relay though. If the ferrite is loose then what do you use to make them not loose?

Thanks,

Hi De Ho Crabby,
Not trying to spoil things here, but weren't you the one calling Scott an illegal and criminal a short time back. Now all of a sudden you want to be friends with him. How come? You feeling guilty about all those harassing, derogatory, vile, accusatory post that were made from MIBX?
If you are truly changing your ways, Good

Hi De Ho & Good morning Crabby, Interesting, you did it, you can keep saying that it didn't come from you, but it did.Your AOL account, and MIBX don't lie. You have had your AOL account for years now, so don't continue to lie, your nose is growing longer by the moment.
You made the mistake and used your alias and got caught, but it was interesting when you see that RFenforcer was posting from MIBX too.
Keep trying, every day more e-mail comes with interesting proof you too were posting from MIBX with harassing, hate & dicontentful posts.

So Twisted WHO is paying you to stir up trouble on the news group? Or is being "paid to voice my opinion" just another lie on your part?
And all your opinions do is cause trouble on this news group,

"My opinions were pretty much kept to myself until you started forging me in the hammie groups. Now you're plate is full. Oh, ye reap what ye sow. Next time, pick on someone who can't manipulate you."

and I have NEVER seen you provide ONE bit of technical advice to anybody yet.

"That's because you need webtv. Your shitty browser and mulitports you access have screwed the inability of your cheap pc to deliver all messages."

It would be fair to say you're nothing but a hired Troll here,

"You must be pretty hated if I am a hired troll."

and not a very good one at that.
There is also the claim YOU MADE about you having Doug's (a.k.a. N8) "jock strap" mounted on your wall. You never answer that question either.

Your intelligence is raging again."

Aaron,

It's hard to believe how big a jackass you really are. We should be impressed that you at least know the name of this news group... but not much more...

No, some amplifiers are not illegal for use on CB, you've got a poorly informed one-track mind.

Anyone is allowed to place an external amplifier on the speaker leads and an rf amplifier on the receiver. They are legally sold and used all the time. You are a great example of why we need to keep watch over what the goverment is doing all the time... classic overkill bafoon.

Yeah, I insist this is the appropriate forum...

Maybe you should explain to everyone how you so often place your head up your behind over something you know so little about. You really give radio and the internet news groups a bad name.

You are the weakest link..!

Ask around as to the location of the part.

These are small KL Branded, Italian made amplifiers I see being sold on-line. KL-40 solid state versions are also often sold there. I've tried to buy one to play with, but near the auction end, someone comes in and sharks it away for some wacked high amount. Way over prices at the auction close.

Most of the newer tube amplifiers I've seen are shipping with the 509 or 519 tube in place. I would imagine these amplifiers are using the classic pair in parallel.

I just wanted to hear from someone who has or has tried one, what they thought of it and what type of tubes and construction it has onboard.

Yeah same here... I have quite the collection of amplifiers, all sizes and have been around them for years... I'm turning into a casual collector of amplifiers for my hobby. These newer units just look kind of neat to play with.

I was in your area of the world a few years ago on a big job... man it was hot as heck and you had the killer free form fm rock station out of the Barstow area... Ended up going out to Topoc and back via a few nights stay in Barstow...

Actually Twist, I was the one that brought up Tom Clancy, he was just making a further comment on it.

"Understood. It explains his bizarre beliefs and yields some insight as to why he may compare such a national tragedy to his personal pet peeves."

I do like to read, not only fiction but history, especially military history. I also try to keep current on military interests, as I come from a family with a stong military background, unfortunately I was physically unable to serve myself no matter how many times I tried to enlist.

"Good for you. We do have television in my corner of the swamp, but I am not one of it's followers (except for Bada Bing's namesake). While I am no fiction fan, I do share your enthusiasm and interest of the written word."

While Mr. Clancy is most famous for his fiction, he has also written some well respected non fiction military books, he has given lectures at various military functions, CIA, and is a very well informed and educated person.

"No doubt."

But, in reality I don't think I have to explain my actions to you.

"You are correct, you do not. It's not like we need to read between the lines or anything."

What is your point really, I am a hypocrite? I look at this Newsgroup and I see hypocrites all around yourself being one of the major players. What do I have to do with Sparky?
I know, it sounds unbelievable, but let me assure you, it happened.
"Some of what you said has merit, the majority is BS as usual."
Because you say so? :)
Of course, taking into account the emotional maturity levels of those making the threats, it is unlikely they could ever carry them out successfully.
"Like Doug? He was the very first one since I have been here to make a physical threat."
Really? Post his physical threat. Make sure the time and date stamp are correct, too.
However, it is sad that such an ugly strain of violence must reside in so many individuals.
"And you frolic with them."
I do? What consititutes "frolicking"? Who do I frolic with?
And over what? Not a dispute about property (as in the Chris Marquis case), but merely over conflicting opinions.
"Ha! One's that affect you so much you alias out and threaten cbers for it."
I threaten CBers? Gosh, I assume you can prove that, right? Of course you have no proof of anything. Freed from the burdens of reality, you write whatever comes into your head. Facts? You have none. All you have is a sleazy jailbird excuse formula. ("The crack cocaine in my pocket? Why no, that's not MINE, officer. I'm just holding it for a friend")

It is incredible that ANYONE could have such disregard for human life.

That's easy to explain. As another poster a short time back said about
Part 95 rules "I don't care", well you see what happens when that mind set gets applied in a different context. It is very apparent they didn't care about human life either, including their own.

Maybe the jock strap "inspires" him. I think Knight-Ridder puts out a supermarket tabloid, you know, the kind that have headlines like "FACE OF SATAN SEEN IN TORTILLA" and "WOMAN GIVES BIRTH TO SPACE ALIEN". I can picture Twistedhed getting paid $15 per headline for coming up with that kind of stuff. Lots of housewives pick up extra income that way.

Hi Leland,

No, not yet. With all that's going on in addition to the projected economic slump, I've not picked one up yet...but I plan to. If I plunked down seven bills for <another> radio right now, my XYL would turn it into a $700.00 crown. :-) I'm glad to hear that it's reviewed in QRZ. I took my issue out of the mailbox, but haven't touched it since.

Currently my spare time is being consumed by another woman...Rosalie White, K1STO. She's the voice on the ARRL code study/practice CDs. I anticipate using my Yaesu FT-840 before the Ten-Tec. My wife claims that she's finally going to grab her Tech ticket, so I'm in the process of putting a 2m mobile in her car. So many litle tasks, so little time. Take it easy, Leland.

2551. Letter From Bin Laden To Keyclownz

My Dearest Keyclowns,

Greetings!

I rejoice in your lawlessness!

US people who scoff at the laws of their corrupt federal government are heroes in the eyes of Allah! You prove that the USA is weak and helpless against anyone brave enough to defy it. (Upon your death, know that you shall be rewarded by the favors of 72 black-eyed virgins!)

You keyclowns are my jihad soldiers in the fight against the Great Satan! Every frequency you jam hastens the defeat of the USA. Your radio signals are heard the world over! No doubt your transmissions help confuse and harass the cowardly military of the USA.

Your government claims the USA is united and its citizens stand behind it. We know this is a lie! Your brave actions prove it to us. We wish that more of your citizens would openly resist, for our victory would come that much sooner!

Praise Allah (and keep transmitting)!

Your leader,
Osama Bin Laden

Im selling 2 items from my shack, due to numerous complaints from my condo association, (TVI PROBLEMS) im kind of forced to sell my 2 most favorite things. (IF I CANT USE THEM, THERES NO SENSE JUST LOOKING AT IT) The first item is a "NEW" (Used less than 15 hours) Yaesu FT 101EX Transceiver, it Transmitts/Receives from 150KHz-30MHz NO GAPS!!! this rig is truly beautiful, it uses 2 6JS6C final output tubes, and 1 12BY7A driver tube, power output is totally variable from 15 watts all the way up to 125 watts on AM, and it will easily do 125-135 Watts PEP (Peak Power) on USB/LSB, this radio will serve anyone who buys it very well for many many years, it was inherited from a family member that many years ago never had a chance to use it, so it was packed away. All features and functions operate perfectly, and all 3 tubes check out 100%. This is quite a heavy rig so im giving the buyer 2 options, I will sell it outright for $280.00, and I will pay all shipping charges. or $240.00 and you pay all shipping and extra insurance. (I reccomend insuring it for at least $400.00) because of its condition, I do NOT beleive there is another FT 101 in the country in this kind of condition. The second item im selling is a very nice, "BRAND NEW" 1 tube modulator, it has its own built in AC power supply, (Just plug it in and talk) its totally variable in its carrier output, and will work on AM/SSB modes. It will also easily do 135 Watts, ALL DAY LONG!!!! Very cool running unit, with very loud audio. For serious buyers, I will include a never used, new tube as well, which is an 8817, and they alone run approx 35-40 dollars. Please note: this amp has NEVER BEEN USED except to test it out, I have nothing but indoor antennas, and the TVI problems were too severe for me to operate either one of these 2 peices im selling, The price on this peice is going to be $100.00, and buyer will pay all shipping charges. Thank You all for reading this, and please send all serious offers directly to my e-mail address, GOD BLESS THE USA AND ALL OF YOU AS WELL.....73' Frank, (WPST 480) in CT.

P.S. Im sorry, I screwed up the type of tube in the amp im selling, The proper tubes are 2 8417's one is in the amp, and the 2nd is just a spare, "NEW" extra tube.......once again, im sorry. Frank,

I would use some rtv silicone, or just leave it alone since it is not hurting anything, btw you cannot check the swr coming out of the box you can only check the input swr of the box.

And once again Aannoying Aaron i ask, WHERE in his post is he encouraging people to use linears? WHERE in his post is he promoting their usage ? Where is this "encouragement" of breaking laws coming into play ? You still havent answered my questions. But thats about what i expect from those kind of mindless responses. Arguing with you over this is getting kinda redundant, I have never ever held an Aol account, like I said what would be the big deal for me to admit I do I know it means nothing nothing can be done and nothing would be done so I have no problem admitting it, but I am sorry again to Let you down, I will say it Real Slow for you. I have never posted from mibx and or Aol, I don't know how to make it any simplier than that. You are making assumptions and still have no proof yet I have proved Twisty, Moped, Train, Timmy, all have posted from mibx.I showed the same posts you did from mibx off of google You talk about spreading hate and discontent don't let me have to start posting your NG history. If you want to believe it's me More power to ya, you know your grasping at straws me or my ip address is not any where remotely connected to those posts, just because you say so doesnt make it so. haha Leland and Doug will be happy to know that they are not to blame!

in a classic battle between ac&dc.the old man with the pretty blue surbauban blew both doors of the other surburban. them 5 antennas didn't work this time.he got beat on the right side &leftside.that big dc box keeping the bird in the corner,was no match for the 2 3cx3000.just cruzzing at 15000 watts.
guess
his time is up and needs to stick tobeating up them dc boys. and leave the ac

Twisty, perhaps you need to read the parts that pertain to the internet.

"Perhaps you ought to have someone read to you the portion concerning electronic copyrighted formats and unauthorized reproduction in any way without exress written permission."

"Before you try to post a general link to a web page.

"Before WHAT? Next time, finish your sentence, Julius."

I got something for you to slap deez nutz across your chin.

"As I did to your predecessor Dogie, I must decline your vulgar invitation to engage in homosexual acts with you. Perhaps one of those that support you, or those that you refer to in your frequent usage of the word "we" can assist you in your quest for male/male sex."

"Of course I am glad. It was the posts by webtv that you couldn't forge properly that helped expose your cretin ways. It was also the posts by webtv that you claimed you couldn't tell from MIBX. Of course I am happy with webtv. Webtv has assisted in showing what skills Or lack of) you have acquired since graduating. Are you feeling stupid yet for that comment you made comparing freebanding to the tragedy in NY? You appear quite pissed, judging by your extreme efforts at removing yourself from the subject as much as possible and the time spent attempting to engage me in another topical argument of your choosing. to accept the above without verification. I don't think so.

"Well, then, you certainly have yourself a wedgie, eh?"

You could just as easily claim to write for the Pope himself since their is no way to prove or disprove it, and I'm not the trusting type.

"Sure I could. You asked a question, I answered. Now you want more.
Well, I'll give you more, but you must rollover first. You embarassed your coworkers and brought them into this conversation by claiming they share the same ignorance level as you. AS you say, it only fair that you tell us where you work, at the least so we can make up our own minds if you live with your mother and are unemployed on top of being a liar."

I did once with you then got burned as you proceeded to wage a misguided

"It wasn't misguided. You forged me in a hammie room then followed it up until you were reamed by some of your own for spreading your hate and discontent there. Wanna see it again? You deserved what you got, did it all by yourself, you did. You always do. Your temper and ego gets the best of you and you say stupid stuff, like the ignorant freebanding equates murder thing. You just need to think once in awhile, Leland, and not yield to your first impulse, which for some reason is always anger."

That experience I am not going to give you the opportunity to repeat.

"You have no choice in the matter. Once again, you are here howling and baying at my feet. I suggest you take your inquiries to email, as you appear to be the only one obsessing on me and hell bent on my personal life. Your refusal to take your personal grudges and problems to email as I suggested earlier to spare the group your pathetic inquisitions into my world roundly solidifies your true intentions."

RULE 9 - Equipment
{A} You must use an FCC type accepted CB transmitter at your CB station. You can identify an FCC type accepted transmitter by the 'type acceptance'label placed on it by the manufacturer. You may examine a list of type-accepted equipment at any FCC Field Office or at FCC Headquarters. Use of a transmitter which is not FCC type-accepted voids your authority to operate the station.
{B} You must not make, or have made, any internal modifications to a type-accepted CB transmitter. (*read Rule 25) Any internal modification to a type-accepted CB transmitter cancels the type-acceptance, and use of such a transmitter voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 10 - Power Output
{A} Your CB station transmitter power output must not exceed the following values under any conditions:
AM [Amplitude Modulation] - 4 watts carrier power [CP]
SSB [Single Side-Band] - 12 watts peak envelope power [PEP]
{B} If you need more information about the power rule, see Part 95/
Subpart E.
{C} Use of a transmitter which has carrier [CP] or peak envelope power [PEP]in excess of that authorized voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 11 - Linear Amplifiers
{A} You may not attach the following items (power amplifiers) to your type-accepted CB transmitter in any way:
[1] External radio frequency [RF] power amplifiers, also called linear amplifiers, or linears;
or
[2] Any other devices which, when used with a radio transmitter as a signal source, are capable of amplifying the signal.
{B} There are no exceptions to this rule and use of a power amplifier voids your authority to operate the station.
{C} The FCC will presume you have used a linear or other external [RF] power amplifier if-
[1] It is in your possession or on your premises; and [2] There is OTHER EVIDENCE that you have operated your CB station with more power than allowed by CB Rule 10.

If you love the USA then why do you break federal law?

RULE 9 - Equipment
{A} You must use an FCC type accepted CB transmitter at your CB station. You can identify an FCC type accepted transmitter by the 'type acceptance'label placed on it by the manufacturer. You may examine a list of type-accepted equipment at any FCC Field Office or at FCC Headquarters. Use of a transmitter which is not FCC type-accepted voids your authority to operate the station.
{B} You must not make, or have made, any internal modifications to a type-accepted CB transmitter. (*read Rule 25) Any internal modification to a type-accepted CB transmitter cancels the type-acceptance, and use of such a transmitter voids your authority to operate the station.

RULE 10 - Power Output
{A} Your CB station transmitter power output must not exceed the following values under any conditions:
AM [Amplitude Modulation] - 4 watts carrier power [CP]
SSB [Single Side-Band] - 12 watts peak envelope power [PEP]
{B} If you need more information about the power rule, see Part 95/ Subpart E.
{C} Use of a transmitter which has carrier [CP] or peak envelope power [PEP]in excess of that authorized voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 11 - Linear Amplifiers
{A} You may not attach the following items (power amplifiers) to your type-accepted CB transmitter in any way:
[1] External radio frequency [RF] power amplifiers, also called linear amplifiers, or linears;
or
[2] Any other devices which, when used with a radio transmitter as a signal source, are capable of amplifying the signal.
{B} There are no exceptions to this rule and use of a power amplifier voids your authority to operate the station.
{C} The FCC will presume you have used a linear or other external [RF] power amplifier if-
[2] There is OTHER EVIDENCE that you have operated your CB station with more power than allowed by CB Rule 10.

That statement is not true, Twist. You pay an inordinate amount of attention to Leland. I was reading that other thread where you talk about the Big Conspiracy Theory featuring Leland as the Mastermind, sort of a cross between Peter Sellers and Dr. Evil. I must say it was hilarious reading. It has Leland forging in multiple groups and using multiple ISP's and posting as multiple characters 24/7 - all for the sole purpose of aggravating you. Whew! You need to take some Bayer aspirin and put a cold towel on your forehead.

Sounds like you're having fun and I understand about the time. Good luck on the code tapes. I'm still working on putting together my AO-40 up-link, just waiting for the M Squared 70cm yagi to arrive. After doing all the trade offs of build v.s. buy, with the current crunch on my time, buying it was the best solution. I do have materials to build one if I want, I just don't have the time to do it now that I'm back in school. The down-link on 2.401 GHz works just fine by the way. I monitored a station just outside of Fairbanks Alaska one night on the bird.

Hello Skipp: Ok good deal.

I hope the linear amplifiers are better made than their antennas.

The two tube amps always worked great.

I picked up a old Mustang 100, it uses two of the shorter tubes, 12JT6's is guess off the top of my head. And of course the old PNP type switching transistors.

I use to have a Johnson 350, a two channel SSB only rig and the Mustang 100, while screaming into the mic you could get 22 watts PEP. I used this set up on the old mans fishing boat during summer and talked all over the world on channel 16 LSB, while fishing for Tuna off the Pacific Coast. Then we upgraded to to a Palmar 150, one small tube driving a pair of 6JE6C's, WOW this amp would deliver well over a 100 watts.

Dear old Dad installed a two element Quad Antenna on top of the wheel house, and we turned the antenna by hand, with a old Radio Direction Finder (RDF) antenna pointing mounting assembly, and heading indicator, that was dated back to 1938, and made by the Bendex Radio Corp. The old RDF was out to lunch for being made to work.

As we headed out from San Pedero Ca. to the Pacific Northwest, we could talk to all the guys in the San Ferenando Valley on channel 16 LSB. And as we cleared the Point Conception most all stations in Alaska could be heard and talked to. There was great group of SSB'ers all up and down the coast of California, Oregon, Washington, Canada, and Alaska. Some of the best radio contacts made in my life.

We used the Quad Antenna to zero in on other fishing boats that where in good fishing waters. The fishing fleets called the CB the Mickey Mouse Radio. Not believing it travelled very far. We DF'ed them and ran all night to catch up with then by morning. Several where 50 to 70 mile shoots. And the radio intercepts paid off many times.

The fishing fleets also use secret illegal HF frequencies, called Pirate frequencies or channels. These channels where used to pass real world fishing conditions, and to raise a buddy somewhere else, without blabbing the good fishing location on the known frequencies, for all the others to hear. But the fishing fleet had no problem giving out hot fishing locations on the CB, or Mickey Mouse Radio.

I have heard these Pirate frequencies used, you can hear a diesel engine in the background, and the radio operator sounds like a fisherman, not a cool Sac Bomber Command radio operator.

Thanks...

It's my only overseas voice contact... all my other overseas contacts are digital (PSK-31).. I haven't spent much time on voice, and I won't until I get the G5RV up in the air.

I'm not saying that HAM radio should replace CB; I still enjoy both...

What I am saying is this: Why limit yourself? Get your ticket, and work the world on way less power than it takes to work the bowl... and keep your CB's, because you'll still love talking on them too...

Why limit your horizons?

You guys are SO confused. You keep trying to prove that Skipp didn't break any laws. I never said he did. What I did was criticize him and say he's a thoughtless dolt and someone should tell his college (employer) he's promoting illegal CB on Usenet. But I didn't say his posts were illegal.

You don't like my opinions? Don't read them. Both you and I know that Skipps posts concern "illegal cb", so don't even bother with the lame excuses "oh he's talking about audio". Sheesh.

YOUR radio hobby is operating CB illegally. Why should someone be

Hi Bill...

I was thinking the same, dry joint on the selector switch - or the switch itself.
This could cause a "mis-code" situation where the pll says "no such channel", or the pll could accept the code, and take the vco out of range.

I wouldn't mess with the vco settings if the radio has not been touched since it last worked OK. They rarely go off tune unless got at.
Exclude all other possibilities first, as they are more likely.

If all else fails, the vco can be checked by the measuring the loop voltage, and vco frequency.

Regards,

Peter.

There were some British CBs made that didn't use the lock detect to disable TX.
These rigs are famous in the UK, as you can tell when a CBer is using one.
Every time the CB is Keyed, it transmits what can only be described as a short "fart" sound !!

The reason for this is that the lock detect would normally stop the CB from transmitting while the PLL locks on frequency, but these radios could transmit while locking. This, and the slow lock time caused the sound to be sent. The slower the lock, the bigger the fart.

The VCO on these radios shifted frequency for rx (27 - 10.695) and tx (27MHz / 2). So when you hit that mic button, the tx (double vco) output would sweep from around 34MHz down to 27MHz while the vco shifted back down from 17MHz.
Yes, this "fart" could be heard on other frequencies, and this may have been the most broadband "fart" in the world.

Peter.

FBI steps up Net surveillance, following terror attack
By Kieren McCarthy
Posted: 12/09/2001 at 12:17 GMT

The FBI has been accused of using yesterday's disaster as a way to install more of its Carnivore listening boxes into Internet systems.

FBI agents have reportedly turned up at several Internet and network service providers with a number of boxes in tow and requesting permission to install them at the heart of people's networks. Many have said yes.

You haven't answered anybody's question Twisted. Since "Cotse" is an anonymous E-mail service on the net that ANYBODY INCLUDING YOU could easily use it to post messages by simply sending E-mail from that account to any "mail2news" services to be found all over the Internet. Without the service's posting logs you're peeing in to the wind Twisted. All you are doing is spreading misinformation, and lies, to further your own warped personnel agenda against several people on this news group, when in fact you yourself very well could have been the sole source of much of the forged posts you attributed to others.

Everybody should check the following links for more information. It only took me about 10 minutes on Goggle to find them, so even somebody with limited mental capacity like Twisted could have done the same.

http://freemail.cotse.com/src/login.php

http://www.forward.to/mail2news

The second link above lays to waste any hope Twisted has to convince anybody his claims are true. If you read closely I think you will find several of the services mentioned were used in a number of the so-called forged posts, that Twisted claimed were done at his expense.

Of course at the zenith of his posting spree Twisted claimed to "know" how to read news group headers while ridiculing others for their lack of knowledge. Now if that were true then he has the knowledge to know what has to be done to hide one's identity on usesnet, and thus abuse it in the manner may of us witnessed some months passed.

Of course Twisted will continue his propaganda campaign, even in the light that no proof is ever possible for him to provide as long as services like the above are used. His case rests completely on others feeling sorry for him, while playing the role of a "victim", and thus "trusting" him. Given the crazy comments about getting dead fish in the mail, hanging "jock straps" on the wall, talking to "saucer men", and a number of lies discovered by others on this group, his state of mental health is very much in question as well as his truthfulness.

After the recent postings, I am now setting the script security to "prompt" while reading news messages. As these should be plain text, and scripts can only be sent in HTML messages, there should be no scripts in any newsgroup that I use.

Scripts could change some internet or mail settings, and there is at least one JS virus. KAKWORM is activated just by reading the e-mail!!
Useful site... http://www.antivirus.com/

Some viruses search your address book for new victims, so as a further precaution, I no longer use the Address book. I now manually type all addresses.

I can see nothing in that message to have caused your config to change.
Disable JavaScript, and check for other HTML posts in your ng messages.
You may find that someone (possibly Adam) has put a script in another message, and this message was the decoy.

When done, enable JavaScript again.
It could be an idea to disable javascript before reading news messages.

I have had a look in my groups, and found nothing. But then I blocked "Adam" as soon as I saw that he used such tricks. I have also done searches on the internet, and found absolutely no record of any virus called "alt.config". I also did a search on hoaxes, and it did not turn up there either.
There are viruses that use JavaScript, such as KAKWORM.
http://www.antivirus.com/vinfo/virusencyclo/default5.asp?VName=JS_KAKWORM.A

I have come across a similar settings problem, where the server name kept getting changed to "localhost", and my username was appended with my original server name.
I tracked this down to a new anti-virus package, that I had recently installed. The software did this when scanning for viruses in the e-mails, and the manufacturer even knew about this bug.

Regards,

Brainbuster.

So you you want to accuse me with no proof, my fingerprints are not on the post you imagination is I see your still grasping for straws. You could have written those posts since your arguementive style is all over them as well. Smack lips I have no reason to deny making those posts like I said there isn't shit any of you can do about it nor anything you will do about it so I would gladly accept credit if it were my work. Send a complaint into AOL and @home so they investigate . If you are correct it will lead right back to me . Go ahead I will be waiting with baited breath.

Thanks Leland,

The AO-40 sounds like fascinating stuff. Please let me have your opinion on the quality of the M2 antenna. They appear to have splendid marketing but I'd like to know about "the stuff behind the fluff" from an unbiased source. I trust that school is going well? You can never have too much education. "You too can join the ranks of the overqualified and underpaid." :-) My father in-law is "in-country" so I'm staying at my in-law's place for the week...oh joy!:'-(Hence,

I've not gotten to really look at my copy of QST yet. Santa Spouse has assured me though that I won't be disappointed this year. The last time I heard that, I found a Wagner power roller under the tree and the living room along with the kid's bedrooms were mysteriously devoid of wall pictures...hint, hint.

I might have to revise my previous assumption re. my wife's potential ticket. I did a kinda underhanded deed. I told her that my confidence was lacking and asked her if she could help me practice my code. Don't you know that after the kids crashed, an exhausted XYL sat down at the kitchen table with me and proclaimed "this is our half an hour code time, let's get cracking." What could I do but start the CD from the beginning? >;-) I can't say I see General in her future...but a Tech"+" is definitely a possibility. Maybe I'll swap that 2m mobile for a Lincoln 10m rig.

Catch the President's address last night? Hmmm, if I read between the lines correctly...I'd venture a guess that we might have to add two or three stars to our flag. I guess we could use a few oil-rich states. All jokes aside, I share Dick's (N0BK) admission of being afraid that we might possibly do something incredibly stupid. I just want our leadership to think it through carefully and then follow through fully with the best option. Easier said than done. If we do actually go to war, I hope everybody will put their freeband activities on hold for the duration. No judgements/preaching...just to ensure clear frequencies for our armed forces, should they need them. If they do; it should make for interesting monitoring, given the current sunspot cycle. Take care Leland and knock 'em dead in school.

I too am currently studying the code, and am studying for my general, once I get code down I might just skip tech and go right for general. On the military thing, I think we need to take action otherwise we will just increase the problem with respect we already have thanks to our bungling the situation with Saddam, he has been thumbinh his nose at us ever since, and the other assholes like bin laden see this and think we are weak. But I do agree with you Bert, that we need to do this carefully, have good intelligence before we stike, we do not want this blowing up in our faces. It will be interesting to listen to the military on the radio, but I am sure alot will be encrypted sat-link comms.

Before anyone goes berserk, this is a classic forgery of the type that has been going on for a long time. Our friend and buddy Leland Scott at work.
It is more than likely I fell for the first one.

"Here ya' go lelnad. Now, would you care to take your nonradio and jaundiced self to email or is it your goal to screw up the ng? Never mind, you answered that one methodically. Nevertheless, above is another example of your piss poor education in computer science. The subject was another of your forges, anyone can go read the thread, check headers, see how you forged me, forges train, lied about it, was smacked in your head by another hammie for doing so and being so stupid, then attacked the hammie for pointing it out witha nother subject altogether...that's real class. You always attack the messengers. Better yet, do a search of me in the hammie room, look at the number of my posts (eighty something) then check the headers. How many are from me? 5..hehehe. You love me lelnad. You are twisted, jealous, and obsessed with me and wish to make the entire ng privy to your desire to be me. Your big mouth says one thing but your feminine actions speak louder. Don't worry, no one will ever forget. Your posts serve example to all in amateur radio as to what ails it. Watch QRZ for upcoming article."

Hello & Good Morning Bert,
I have a suggestion that helped me get my code down. I used rhythm to send, just like a beat of music, it helped me to send & receive. I used rhythm like tapping my foot when reading, so that made it a little easier for me, not much but a little.

HI CrabbyRF,
Oh come now old boy, You know you did.
You are afraid of your "stellar image" being shown what you really are: Lying, cowardly, old man, that helped trash this group for months.
Now I love this statement:

Sorry my style is not one of posting vulgarity or profanity. An Yeah, right. You know there are far more than you are willing to admit.

Enjoy, please read just one of the vulgarities you posted from your @Home account, it was pretty mild by comparison to the ones from MIBX you did.

Hi Crabbier,
You know as well as I that it was you, you don't want any of the new people here to know what kind of harassing posts you made to the entire newsgroup, "your image" might be hurt.
It's not for the regulars out here, they all have seen an probably known, it's for the newbies that I show what a two face, lying, cowardly, hypocritical Old man you are.
So keep whining and each time a new post is shown from your AOL account, using MIBX as the posting portal.
I'll be leaving this morning, going to ride up and over to Reno for Street Vibrations, so please, if you can. limit your responses, I won't be able to

As many times as I have asked you to do so, and others as well, you have been totally, without exception, unable to provide the proof.

Hi David, Yea, it's Lelnad and his blood pressure again. He'll stay something extremely stupid, I'll point it out, he'll cry like a baby for a few days and post stuff trying to discredit somebody else, anything to get the light off him, he'll finally realize it's stupid, disappear for a few days and regroup, then come back and take a few shots at me over the weekends when Im off on the boat and no immediate danger of replying to him. I liken lelnads weekend postings to the classic sucker punch used by a coward, hit and run, when caught, lie, when confronted by one of his own with proof, disappear. He's very predictable and easliy manipulated when he thinks he is being manipulative himself.

He and the old codger in Pa. are, well, I'll let your imagination finish. In any event, you see the light landshark shined on the one clown, whose reasoning of repeated insults and vulgarities directed toward me of "I just don't like you," speaks volumes. He follows by extending to me an invitation for homo sex. Unreal. Then we have Lelnad, who can't for the life of him get over the fact that others have lives. He is so incensed by others control over him he demands intimate details to help him cope with his sorry existence and lack of impulse control in hopes he can discover the secret to gaining a personality, winning friends, and influencing people. Nowhere is this evidence made more clear than by his psycho, almost perverted overconcern of what others think. He came at me in the familiar cowardly way you have experienced via the akc pound pups...for no reason other than attention.

I asked him why he forged me (he teamed with Dogie and Cary in the beginning of the year) and never did receive an answer from him, but note the information he demands of me. This is his ego, he feels an entitlement is owed. Anyways, you obviously noted the clamoring for me demanded by my pack hounds that repeatedly profess I matter not...hehehe..but look at the thread headlines, which brings me to another fine point. We have always went back and forth with the few idiosos in the group, but have you noticed when Lelnad bites off more than he can chew and gets his clock cleaned by me that he immediatey attempts at burying his posts that started his BS then the entire contingency and thread heads are off topic and directed at me? Or is that just my delusional imagination again? <g>

"It's not all that hard. find a system that works for you. I learned it while I was still driving long ago with just about the oldest tapes one could find. Any and all road signs and billboards should be turned into a learning instrument by tapping on the wheel or dash. Works wonders."

On the military thing, I think we need to take action otherwise we will just increase the problem with respect we already have thanks to our bungling the situation with Saddam, he has been thumbinh his nose at us ever since, and the other assholes like bin laden see this and think we are weak. But I do agree with you Bert, that we need to do this carefully, have good intelligence before we stike, we do not want this blowing up in our faces. It will be interesting to listen to the military on the radio, but I am sure alot will be encrypted sat-link comms.

The friend part might be imaginary. After all you see how they try to settle down violent, and delusional, people by pretending to be their "friend". I'll bet Twisted knows a "'psychiatrist", the one he sees several times a week at 100 bucks an hour! I wonder if he is as "spastic" during the office sessions, with his "psychiatrist friend" as he is here on the news group.

Stick around, I can teach you plenty, like these type cases never even reach court, they are settled with an ALREADY ESTABLISHED monetary gain/loss figure in addition to any prosecutorial action. To educate you a bit further, there also exists sufficient grounds for malicious intent of character defamation, character defamation, malicious intent to libel, libel, malicious intent to slander, slander, (based on audio attachments) criminal conspiracy to all/any of the above if any passwords were shared and utilized with said malicious intent. This would normally be all drivel, but you know what makes this all valid? The FBI has been accused of using yesterday's disaster as a way to install more of its Carnivore listening boxes into Internet systems. FBI agents have reportedly turned up at several Internet and network service providers with a number of boxes in tow and requesting permission to install them at the heart of people's networks. Many have said yes.

Hi Keith,

Good luck with the General. (You kick a$$ and take names!) I'm having fun with it now. Dick was right, treat it like Nintendo and make a game of it. I have some good days and then I have some really horrendous days where my mind just draws a blank. The good days are outnumbering the bad though, so I'm gonna take a stab at it. I agree with you re. Saddam. That's what I meant by following through, no Vietnam and no Afghanistan. (The ex-USSR's Vietnam.) You're right, the comms will be interesting...at least the ones that are sent clear text and out in the open. I guess I'll just have to break out the old Yupiteru...er, I mean AOR? ;-) Take it easy, Keith.

Hi Landshark,

Cool suggestion, thanks. I've actually found myself doing just that with some of the longer and more difficult (...for me anyway.) letters like F, Q, L, and Y. It also helps me to think of F as the opposite of Q and L as the opposite of Y.

F ..-.
Q --.-
L .-..
Y -.--

Thanks for the tip, I'll beg, borrow, and steal to get past this.
Funny thing is that after I pass the test and just relax, I'll probably get better without the pressure of an exam. I actually plan on using it so I'm hoping for 20 to 25 w.p.m. eventually. The numbers give me heck too, your advice will likely work well with them too.
Take it easy.

Leland has a point. To a certain extent, the comparison tracks. Both illegal CBers and terrorists share a lack of respect for the US government. But the comparison stops there. If the FCC were to start vigorously enforcing CB rules the illegal CBers would 'give up' immediately, as they think it's fun to thumb their nose at the government as long as there is little chance of getting caught.
Conversely, the terrorists are not afraid of getting caught or killed and will not give up on terror until both they and their support system are totally eliminated.

The funny part that post was to Kari. haha... All this from an admitted liar, you were caught red handed posting as Frenchy, your ip address was on it that was very clear, so you can lie and say I made all these bad postings but not one is linked to me. You clearly are a desperate person, caught posting in the alt.sex.fetish rooms and caught posting as Frenchy, mow come the retalitory phase from you trying to get Back at me Well you have you work cut out for you since all your accusations are based on pure speculation, all lacking no credible proof. The only one who has been caught red handed and had to finally admit it after un-deniable proof is you, on more than one occasion. If i remember correctly I also caught you changing nick's and when I confronted you about it you even stated your not as good as me and whoops sorry, I guess you got me. If I feel like it i'll find that one for you too. Haha Only In America! But on a better note Have a Great Weekend! Subject: Quick note

I have read a few of the posts in the group lately and it makes me sick to see those idiots talking the same old stupid shit under the shadow of such a terrible tragedy. Sure, there are people that are going to do stupid things, and there are going to be some that will intentionally violate laws. But only a sociopathic moron would continue to mock the US now, and especially after the resistance had laid down arms in respect of the dead.

Yes, I said dead, a word that seems to evade the vocabulary of even twistie. Not only do those idiots ignore the reality of the situation, they cannot even harness enough self-discipline to put on a false face of respect. They will never care about anything or anybody other than themselves. I wouldn't be suprised in the least if some of them were responsible for the rash of stolen US flags. The only need I see to remain in the newsgroup is to expose these low-lifes for what they really are -- criminals with all the intelligence and integrity of foot fungus. I actually have more respect for bin Laden's terrorists than I do for most of those criminals, since the terrorists are willing to fight and die for their beliefs.

When my business here is done I will return to the group, and I will spare no expense to put real names to each and every alias that supports, defends, promotes or practices such willfully blatant violations of federal law.

Frank

P.S, Feel free to post this email if you want.

I will repeat this only once.....Freebanding has nothing to do with Terrorism. To even compare them in the same sentence is ignorant at the least. All of you Anti's need to reread your posts. The only reason you compare the 2 is because you want to start shit. As for Gilligan finding the real names for who supports Freebanding there is only one thing I can say " Who Cares " Freebanding will always be around and people like you Anti's will always be around. I for one will run all bands of communication and that is my business to do so. I dont hide under false names or handles. David Heath

Hey Ice, haven't heard from you in a day or two, hope all is well. I have a good friend from the Toledo Ohio chapter of the American Red Cross, who is now in NY working with the disaster relief. He is working at ground zero. I spoke with him this morning, he is doing well but is feeling stress. During our conversation I mentioned that I knew some people that had been there, and related your situation to him. Sounds like I might yet get called to go there.

Hey guys, if anyone is interested we are having a fund raising concert/festval. It will be called R.A.T. = Rock Against Terrorism. It will be held at the Summerfest Grounds in Hamler Ohio at starting at noon on October 6th, we will be having 3 local bands, plus the possibility of a special guest star I know, if he doesn't have prior commitments. This will be a fund raising event, to support the ongoing disaster relief effort going on in New York. There will be a 50-50 drawing, door prizes, and games for all ages.

Recently, a rather pid of ISP customer used this to get the details of their ISPs registered contacts (names, addresses, e-mail).
They then posted the results on the ISPs own newsgroup for other customers to use the addresses to send in complaints. I'll bet the ISP bosses will not be pleased to have these e-mails used for customer complaints.

So, how and where do you get Neo Trace?

Maybe your PA is a Public Address, not a Power Amplifier... lol.

But seriously...
I would also go for coils and transformers. I have often known chopper transformers in TVs to make noises as the TV gets older.

Loose windings, laminations, or even mountings can cause vibrations. With AM (and SSB), the power level changes with mod, magnetic fields will also be changing in strength. So the devices can vibrate with the modulation as the power through them changes.

If (as I suspect) it is a valve amp, be careful as the voltages are extremely high. Valve amps are like women... Try to poke around in one while it is running, and it is likely to kick.

Brainbuster.

Hi "Landshark" and "No Fear".

I hope that neither of you mind me giving my rather different view on this "Famous mibx,cotse,ynn" poster issue.
It seems that you each blame each other, and either I am missing something, or you are both falling into a trap laid by a certain troll on this group.

It is easy for a troll to send out one or two messages with your names and e-m addys forged in the headers to lay a false trail, and get you blaming each other.

Looking at the IP used, it would seem that the number is dynamically assigned.
The numbers you seem to be discussing are...
152.163.197.67, 205.188.200.33,
205.188.198.163, 205.188.198.188

IP numbers used for the "AKC group" inluded:
64.12.102.49, 64.12.105.29,
64.12.105.34, 152.163.213.59,
152.163.213.82, 152.163.213.178,
205.188.193.152, 205.188.193.176

But how about these...
64.12.103.48 64.12.103.54
64.12.105.23 64.12.105.29
64.12.105.33 64.12.105.39
152.163.195.206 152.163.201.194
152.163.201.209 152.163.201.213
152.163.207.52 152.163.207.62
152.163.213.58 152.163.213.184
152.163.213.197 205.188.196.26
205.188.196.44 205.188.198.178
205.188.199.167 205.188.200.31
205.188.201.197 205.188.201.203

All used recently by Mr. "Aaron Voobner".

But the numbers tell a different story. One of a parasitic troll, who lives not under a bridge - but on rec.radio.cb

MIBX postings numbers (dynamically assigned):
152.163.197.67, 205.188.200.33,
205.188.198.163, 205.188.198.188

"AKC" group numbers (dynamically assigned):
64.12.102.49, 64.12.105.29,
64.12.105.34, 152.163.213.59,
152.163.213.82, 152.163.213.178,
205.188.193.152, 205.188.193.176

Aarons numbers (also dynamically assigned):
64.12.103.48 64.12.103.54
64.12.105.23 64.12.105.29
64.12.105.33 64.12.105.39
152.163.195.206 152.163.201.194
152.163.201.209 152.163.201.213
152.163.207.52 152.163.207.62
152.163.213.58 152.163.213.184
152.163.213.197 205.188.196.26
205.188.196.44 205.188.198.178
205.188.199.167 205.188.200.31
205.188.201.197 205.188.201.203

Conclusions...
1. Aaron posted the crap, but is happy to pass the blame.
2. Aaron is a parasite. He creates hostility, anger, and conflict - then feeds off it.

But, heck, that's just the way I see it.

Mr. TrollBuster.

This is your problem, you can't see that which in front of your nose.
But then you probably wouldn't recognise "honorable intentions" if they jumped up and bit you on the nose.

> Just a lot of challenges,
--

Simple questions about your opinions should not be that challenging (if you really have opinions).

--
> chest-thumping and bragging about how you can buy a CB amp in the UK.
--

It is a FACT that you can legally buy and own a 10 metre RF amp in the UK.
There is no such thing as a "CB amp", as they are supposed to be for 10 Metre use.
If this is bragging, then it is also bragging when you quote the law.

> You'll continue to beat your drum about how Voobner won't answer > your question

No, unlike you, I realise when something is pointless.

--
> for a bit and then you'll quietly fade into the sunset....
--

No, YOU will fade into my "blocked trolls" list.
You claim to care about cleaning this newsgroup up, yet you never post anything of real use. Your only use for this ng is to argue with people.

If you succeded in your attempts to "evict" the users you don't agree with, you would have no further use for this group, and YOU would fade into the sunset (or another group to start again).

When asked about your opinions, you dodge the issue.
Your inability to actually state your opinions suggests that you have none, and you are merely here to annoy as many CBers as you can.
I believe that you know that your tactics will simply annoy people, even legal users. You know that the more you scream "you can't do that", the more people will want to try it.

You give the term "pro-legal" a bad name.

Voobner,
You are the weakest link....
Goodbye.

Yes it was true 212 an BB did get it on Sunday the 16th of September they pulled to the line an if they had been at a world wide break 212 would have went home in defeat because BB whipped him the first key . There would not have been another key, but that's just the way it went. 212 did pull off an do something but he still could not cut off the Big DC box of BB's. They tied up for a few keys an then BB's batterys were down, because of all the keys he gave 212. As only after they were down was when 212 got on top enough to get a win after that he won on both sides. Is that enough to say 212 could whip BB again ? In a break we will just have to see .

P.S. So who is the real winner ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

You know the answer to this. Even you are not that stupid.
But just in case you are, see the reply further down.

The posting of the rules is not a problem.
The problem was you flooding this newsgroup with the same information over and over again.

But then you know this, I have made this extremely clear - several times.
I am left with just one conclusion, you are just trying to disrupt the newsgroup.
And there's just one way to deal with newsgroup trolls...

Goodbye.

Hi Buster,

First of all, I must question why you have gone to so much trouble to try and silence me if I have (as you say) "no opinions". I certainly DO have opinions...you would have to be brain-dead not to know that I disagree with illegal CB - in all of its incarnations. This includes pirating, bootlegging, freebanding, high power 'keydowns' etc. My reasons have been discussed again and again in this NG.

Secondly, I don't buy your data, you could very well have made it up. But, if you are certain it is viable - then you already have more than enough evidence to get my account cancelled. So why post the data here? After all, you have done a lot of work already, why not present your research to my ISP and ask them to confirm it and cancel my account?

ANSWER: You could do that only if the data is real, and not a fantasy borne from a personal vendetta.

Sorry, Buster. You is busted.

But the numbers tell a different story. One of a parasitic troll, who lives
not under a bridge - but on rec.radio.cb

MIBX postings numbers (dynamically assigned):
152.163.197.67, 205.188.200.33,
205.188.198.163, 205.188.198.188

"AKC" group numbers (dynamically assigned):
64.12.102.49, 64.12.105.29,

64.12.105.34, 152.163.213.59,
152.163.213.82, 152.163.213.178,
205.188.193.152, 205.188.193.176

Aarons numbers (also dynamically assigned):
64.12.103.48 64.12.103.54
64.12.105.23 64.12.105.29
64.12.105.33 64.12.105.39
152.163.195.206 152.163.201.194

205.188.201.197 205.188.201.203

Conclusions...
1. Aaron posted the crap, but is happy to pass the blame.
2. Aaron is a parasite. He creates hostility, anger, and conflict - then feeds off it.

But, heck, that's just the way I see it.

Dave, your the joker that said no one is bad enough to stop you I never made any claims I just asked when and where, I would like to see it, I didn't threaten anyone like you brother. So your saying anyone could look you up in the St Cloud White pages under the name of David Heath if they wanted a piece of you?

Mr. Buster I have maintained my innocence for the whole ordeal because the numbers don't lie. Oh the post I did see of Landshark his Ip address was on a few of them and he had no excuse when it's plain as day, but he blames me and my ip address is on none of them and I am very confident of that. The truth will set you free! Take Care in the UK.

Had one and got rid of it. On the other hand you live a shabby aluminum shell, commonly called a "trailer", which is worth less when you move out then when you move in, unlike a house.

I have pretty much told ya that I aint into your or anyone of the Anti's games. If anyone of you want to run your mouth to me do it face to face instead of hiding behind these false names and handles. I dont claim to know it all but its a damn shame to compare "Freebanding to Terrorism"! I never said I am the baddest man out there.....But the bad dont fu*k with me either. I am a grown man and like talking on the radio no matter what band I am running. I dont know any of you personally but I dont stand by the Anti's point of view either. You have your opinion and I have mine and until you flip out a FCC ID you dont have much to say to me.
Peace Out

When the beam shows up and I have time to get it built, and tested, I'll let you know. I also got their 2m "Ho-Loop", a simple horizontal loop, antenna for sideband use on the van. The quality of engineering looks very good. The matching module connection is a machined aluminum block, and completely sealed with silicon gel, to prevent the elements from wrecking it. I have never seen any other manufacture go to that much trouble.

School is going well so far. We are going to do some TCP/UDP socket programing. Nothing complex at all, just to get a taste of the issues involved with several processes communicating with each other over a network. I guess I'm just going to be a student for a while longer, and like the last degree I got, I'm doing it just for fun.

There are certain elements in this group who make it a point to routinely ridicule me for being a no-code Tech, then by implication that I can't learn CW, and thus lazy etc. They point out it only takes a few weeks of months to learn fine. Then I simply ask is earning a four year university degree, just for the fun of doing it, any easier than learning CW. Then it becomes really entertaining to watch all the silly excuses and comparisons they cook up, none of which proves their point.

Bert, QST ran an article about 2 years ago where some 9 or 10 year old girl got her Extra ticket because her Dad drilled her on the code for almost a year, and had her take computer generated written exams until she had most of the correct answers for the question pool memorized. Your XYL should be able to memorize enough of the General Class pool to pass the exam.

Taking and holding land would be the stupid thing to do. All we want is to kill or capture the terrorists, then bug out of there. Holding land just makes us an easy target for guerrilla warfare. That was the same stupid thing that got many of our guys wasted in Nam. Powell was there at that time as a young solider, and I'm sure he will not let us repeat that mistake in the Middleast.

> I just want our > leadership to think it through carefully and then follow through fully

No kidding. The problem for us is many of our allies, and the terrorists, think we won't do much, as our past history has demonstrated. Not unlike a particular federal angency in regards to another problem.

> If we do actually go to > war, I hope everybody will put their freeband activities on hold for > the duration.

You are dreaming Bert. Just look at the past 2 weeks worth of posts. The many hard core elements on the freebanding side could care less. Their only interest is their own selfish interest to do whatever they please, when they please, and the heck with whom it inconveniences or harms, if it stands in the way of their having fun. That's the ugly truth about those people. Just read the sorry excuses they offer now to explain their current conduct.

About the only way to keep critical shortwave frequencies clear is to have the FCC issue an order to cease all shortwave transmissions escept for those stations and services it names. Anybody violating that order then should be delt with switfly, and jailed. Screw the fines. If they're in jail they can't be thumbing a mic again for a long while. The FCC did that during both world wars. So they can do it again during a critical operation by the military now.

> No judgements/preaching...just to ensure clear > frequencies for our armed forces, should they need them.

That would be the patriotic thing to do by a good citizen. Unfortunately it seems many just don't care, at least the ones who are the most vocal advocates of freebanding, and thus the disregard for the FCC's rules and regulations, which the rest of us respect.

Yes it would.

That fits with comments form others. It seems that somebody with musical skills has little difficulty learning CW. If that's you case it should be easy. Good luck.

You and David need to spend less time looking for reasons to blame others for your attitudes and a little more time on reading comprehension skills.
I never said that I put "freebanders" in the same class as terrorists.
In fact, I made a comparison only to draw a distiction, not a similarity.
Didn't you read the rest of the email? It's sickening just how morons like you only seem to read what you want and then pervert the meaning to justify your bullshit. Have you been taking lessons from Twistie?

Hell, get out a drum and beat it out to get a feel for the sound. Rhythm is neat but there are some other considerations. You may find yourself having some problems with sense inversions (i.e X turns into P, K to R) because drumming is a two-handed activity involving both sides of the brain. Some people do have trouble trying to copy both left and right-handed at the same time. You probably won't but be aware of it if it happens.

Perhaps the hardest thing about code copying is learning to 'copy behind', establishing a buffer so that if SERIES 5 is sent, you do not go running from the room thinking you are being machine-gunned. First you have to learn to wait for the entire variable length character: consider A, W, J, 1, P, L, R, and Period; all start with di-dah and go from there. So you have to give enough space to fill it in -- a Dimension statement in some compooter languages. You cannot copy 'on top' and it is futile to try.

Then comes the realization that 5wpm is an average but individual strings might run a bit faster like the Series mentioned above. You have to develop a buffer to get much beyond 10 and it sure lowers your blood pressure at 5. That is the reason for the 'hump' that you will hear the OTs talk about. It is also why the exercises in Morse Academy stretch you out a bit toward the end.

It is damned hard to develop a buffer if you invest your manhood in it and try to brute-force it. Which is why I suggest treating it like Nintendo. Calmnity and dignitude. Do your copying on butcher paper in longhand; no neatness prizes are awarded.

I would also advise particular attention to numbers and punctuation. They count as two in the exam so RST 5 7 9 is a third of the 25 letters you need to pass. This was true on every code exam since Marconi. You can depend on the antenna being a '3 element Quad' becauses it encompasses numbers, rare letters (Q), and a machine gun word. I know, 4 element Yagi works for the same reason. You can depend on KB6ZXY working WD9QPJ too. This is why doing a lot of work with code groups is recommended so rare letters in plain text are not so rare in your practice. Getting the callsigns right is 16 (with the de) of 25. Don't sweat inter-word separation because the exam is 25 letters, not five words. I copied my Extra in five letter groups; didn't disturb the FCC lady one bit.

Morse Academy is at http://ah0a.org. Read the directions, follow their plan. Do whatever makes any sense at all as code practice including tapping the steering wheel. So what if your carpool looks at you funny. And invest in a cheap set of headphones; having your family grouse about the incessant beeping is no fun at all.

Final days (hours) on mint or near mint CB base transceivers.

Check out a MINT condition Johnson 223 at:
http://cgi.ebay.com/aw-cgi/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=1276237180

This radio is in MINT condition, looks just like it came out of the box today! Tested and works OK. Original EF Johnson tubes, manual.

Or a near mint Tram Titan II at:
http://cgi.ebay.com/aw-cgi/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=1276234426

Near mint, tested and works fine. The pictures don't do it justice. With original manual. 23 channel SSB/AM. Own a piece of CB history!

Thanks, 73 and good bidding!

2772. Antenna tuners & match boxes

I bought a MFJ-16010 random wire antenna tuner to try out as a tune/match interface with a standard 4 watt power output CB, and want to use it for comparison checks of different antenna types.

Would I be further ahead to get a different model of tuner? After reading the enclosed instructions, the manufacturer states that this model is only for wire a antenna, and not a coax fed antenna. Additionally, it's stated that either rear connector can be used as input or output, depending on the relative impedence between the transmitter and the antenna.
Also, the box is to be used at the antenna end.. a better tuner solution/recommendation would be appreciated.

The specifics of the model 16010 are.. 1.8 to about 30 MHz, 200W. The 12 position inductor measures 0-40 uH, and the capacitor measures about 60-350 pF. This unit doesn't have a Tx Load adjustment as some other units do.
The inductor is wired in series with the Tx-Ant connectors, and the capacitor is wired in parallel with the Ant connector.

If anyone has any experience with using this tuner for coax feeds to any type of antenna, I'd be interested in knowing what their results were.

Thanks in advance
WB

Hello Wild Bill: Great question, I'll take a shot at answering it.

If you are using the tuner for CB type antenna comparisons tests, the tuner will not be a big help, or may even hid some problems with the antennas under test.

Most all CB antennas if assembled correctly will have a pretty much good match on the CB frequencies, and the tuner will not help anything. The tuner will only really help if you use a long wire antenna with a high SWR on the CB frequencies. And the long wire usually doesn't work all that well at CB frequencies. Also the tuner will work well if a balanced antenna and feed line are used, it will convert and match the radio to the feed line. But again as said in so many books, the match between the transmission line and antenna is where it counts.

I have known a few of the guys who use the antenna tuner as part of thier ham radio equipment, that looks great as a matched accessory all in a line and such. But again the tuner is not any type of help here.

I have had a tuner located right at the base of my whip antenna on my car, the 1/4 wavelength whip antennas don't seem to be able to get to a dead nuts on SWR of 1 to 1.

Let's spell it out. This is a club that advocates freebanding. In this time of global crisis they apparently feel that breaking the law (frebanding is not legal in any country) is still important.

Hey guys:

RULE 9 - Equipment
{A} You must use an FCC type accepted CB transmitter at your CB station. You can identify an FCC type accepted transmitter by the 'type acceptance'label placed on it by the manufacturer. You may examine a list of type-accepted equipment at any FCC Field Office or at FCC Headquarters. Use of a transmitter which is not FCC type-accepted voids your authority to operate the station.
{B} You must not make, or have made, any internal modifications to a type-accepted CB transmitter. (*read Rule 25) Any internal modification to a type-accepted CB transmitter cancels the type-acceptance, and use of such a transmitter voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 10 - Power Output
{A} Your CB station transmitter power output must not exceed the following values under any conditions:
AM [Amplitude Modulation] - 4 watts carrier power [CP]
SSB [Single Side-Band] - 12 watts peak envelope power [PEP]
{B} If you need more information about the power rule, see Part 95/
Subpart E.
{C} Use of a transmitter which has carrier [CP] or peak envelope power [PEP]in excess of that authorized voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 11 - Linear Amplifiers
{A} You may not attach the following items (power amplifiers) to your type-accepted CB transmitter in any way:
[1] External radio frequency [RF] power amplifiers, also called linear amplifiers, or linears;
or
[2] Any other devices which, when used with a radio transmitter as a signal source, are capable of amplifying the signal.

{B} There are no exceptions to this rule and use of a power amplifier voids your authority to operate the station.
{C} The FCC will presume you have used a linear or other external [RF] power amplifier if-
[1] It is in your possession or on your premises; and
[2] There is OTHER EVIDENCE that you have operated your CB station with more power than allowed by CB Rule 10.

Thanks for the reply Jay.. you confirmed the suspicion I had about using a long wire.
I might end up needing to use a mobile 1/4 wave as a temporary antenna from time-to-time.

What I noticed about the tuner when used with a dummy load on the output was that the SWR could reach 1:1, but that it could also make a more severe mis-match.
This check wasn't particularly conclusive since any SWR meters I've seen can't indicate to the left of 1:1.. heh.

Jay has the correct answer here. Most single band antennas (cb or ham) as well as a multiband yagi will present the proper impedance for your radio. This is why 50 ohm coax is used almost exclusively. The tuners come into use if feeding a longwire antenna (or some other antenna perhaps fed with ladder line - such as a rhombic). Jay is correct in that a tuner may possibly hide a problem with your antenna. You have a 1 to 1 SWR and can't seem to get out more than a mile or so ...

From the ARRL Letter, Vol 20, No. 38:

New York Amateur Radio Emergency Service and Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service volunteers generally are in good spirits, but tired, says New York City-Long Island Section Emergency Coordinator Tom Carrubba, KA2D. "The mood is positive," he said, more than a week into the grim reality of the World Trade Center attack response. "Overall, it's going very, very well. Everybody's settling into the routine of the operation."

Two dozen or more hams per shift are covering communications and logistical support for the American Red Cross as well as supplementing communication for the New York City Office of Emergency Management. "It's a great effort every day, 24/7, and it's expanding as we get more requests." A single, multi-purpose ARES/RACES net is being maintained on the 147.000 MHz repeater in Manhattan. New York City District Emergency Coordinator and RACES Radio Officer Charles Hargrove, N2NOV, is serving as the incident commander.

At this point, Carrubba said, the need for volunteers is being largely covered by amateurs from the Greater New York City Area--which includes New York City and Long Island, Eastern New York, Connecticut and Northern New Jersey. Hams have volunteered from all over, however, including at least eight Delaware-Lehigh Amateur Radio Club members from from Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley.

Hams are deployed to 13 American Red Cross shelters, two OEM sites, several staging areas, and Red Cross headquarters, and as net controls. At any given time, up to a half dozen amateurs are posted just outside the secure perimeter of the so-called "Ground Zero" World Trade Center site, where Carrubba described conditions as "terrible." Volunteers there have been asked to provide respirators and other protective clothing. Shifts at all locations are 12 hours long.

Carrubba explained that Amateur Radio volunteers are being rotated in and out of areas and duties in an effort to equalize the stress. "The first 30 or 40 hours everybody does 'the iron man act,' I call it, because they're running on adrenaline," he said. After that, everyone gets some rest and unwinds a little bit. "The people that are going back are fresh," he said.

Since September 11, more than 350 hams have volunteered in excess of 5000 work hours.

Carrubba anticipates the Amateur Radio support operations to continue for some time to come, since the normal telecommunications systems remain disrupted or problematic. "The communications in the shelter are being used like telephones," he said. Telephone service is available, but it can take 15 or 20 tries to get a call through. Carrubba said net traffic has been substantial, although there are occasional lulls.

Many more volunteers will be needed before the ARES and RACES operation stands down "Right now our task is a long-term effort, Carrubba said. "The schedule is being filled in on a day-by-day basis." To date, more than 200 individuals have signed up via the World Trade Center Disaster Relief Communications Web site, <http://wtc.ab2m.net>.

Carrubba expects that Amateur Radio assistance might be needed at least another week and possibly longer. "As long as there's a need for communications, we will be there," he said.

In the meantime, REACT International is seeking additional Amateur Radio and licensed GMRS users, primarily to support the Salvation Army's relief efforts in New York. "We still need volunteers," said REACT International Secretary Lee Besing, N5NTG, who added that some shifts on Wednesday went unfilled. "They're burning out and having to return to their jobs," he said. REACT is now running 20 volunteers per shift. Volunteers should visit the REACT International Web site, <http://www.reactintl.org/tragedy_09112001.htm> or contact Charles Bessels, <NYCHelp@reactintl.org>.

Months ago Twisted E-mailed me privately a message where he outlined the tricks he used in his messages to make them distinct from the forgeries that spring up on the group. I in fact did monitor his posts, and surprisingly he was very inconsistent in his employment of those tricks. He was too caught up in his crazy zeal to lash out at everybody that he forgot to follow his own bag of tricks. No wonder some people found him so easy to forge. Then he had the balls to accuse some people of giving away his "secrets", the same ones he rarely used himself.

At this point I don't care who is fake or not. After the way Twisted conducted himself, by accusing nearly anybody who disagreed with him to be a forger, whether true or not, now he's paying the price for his insane behavior at that time, and he well deserves it too. So if somebody else does something and Twisted gets the blame, well to quote another past poster (Roger Beep) to this news group "I don't care".

Hello A.E. 352:

Great posting. I have heard a lot of guys on the SSB channels say what a disappointment some of the SSB Clubs are, and how they enjoy the American Eagle Club.

Also got a great line on a 350Z amp, have a friend looking for one.

Good deal.

Twist, you are full of shit once more, I never represented myself as Glenn Sparks, or Bigfoot, or Leland, or anyone else you have claimed me to be. But you are correct that I do take pleasure whenever you accuse me of being someone else. Each of your assumptions is a wonderful example of your lack of intelligence, and every time you defend your own precambrian logic you reinforce the credibility of those that you try so hard to discredit.

I'm considering a Messenger M4V used for $75. I need something for 80-10m SSB for Ham emergency communcations purposes.

Is this a reliable amp? Anything I should know or ask before buying it?

I will be driving it at 5 watts, should I expect 100-200 solid (not manufacturer's puffed numbers)?

Thanks! & 73, Doc KD4E

The USA has more freedoms allowed under law than any other country in the world, yet dumbshits like you want more and more. So you spoiled little babies resort to stealing anything you want that isn't legal. And as if that wasn't enough, you do it in the name of "freedom".

Doc, amps are illegal on CB. There are plenty of ham newsgroups where you might find informed answers to your question. I am curious why a legitimate ham would come to a CB newsgroup and seek advice and information about equipment that CBers cannot legally use?

| The September 18, 2001 Los Angeles Times had information that no other "newspaper" has | yet reported.
| "Mexican immigration officials said they had taken into custody a man identified as | Abdel Salem Imal, 26, near the Piedras Negras border crossing (about 100 miles | south-west from San Antonio) for carrying apparently false identification indicating | Brazilian nationality. Police searching Imal's baggage became suspicious after finding | telephone numbers for Afghanistan, New York, Canada and Germany and separate | identification showing a different name, Imad Mohammed Abed."
| http://www.latimes.com/news/nationworld/nation/la-000074973sep18.story
| The reporting of news about who the FBI is seeking and where they came from has been | something worse than sketchy. That shouldn't be a surprise as these facts are directly
| at odds with the policy of the American two party fraud that has been perpetrated upon
| the American people. If the truth of how these animals got into the country is ever | focused upon the "open borders" policy that has invited the world to invade will have to | end. This would also end the central long term goal of the shadowy "New World Order"
| that was proclaimed by George Bush Sr. back in 1991.
| There is further evidence of a possible Mexican entry by the terrorists as well. The | same Los Angeles Times article reports the arrest of two others in Dallas:
| "The FBI office in Dallas reported Monday that two men, Mohammed Abdo and Anwar Al
| Marabi, were arrested over the weekend on immigration violations and were now being | questioned in connection with the attacks."
| Of course no further information is available and you'll have a frustrating time
| locating even this scrap of fact if you look somewhere other than the Los Angeles Times | (which did not give any notation as to the geographical proximity of the largely unheard | of border crossing known as "Piedras Negras" to San Antonio). However, there was an | article on the 18th of September in the Washington Post by Mary Beth Sheridan. This was

| about U.S. Immigration policy and was less than favorable toward the backlash that may
| be coming, but which the Post, Times (both L.A. and N.Y.) and the bogus flag waving TV
| media are profoundly opposed to. Let's examine some of the nuggets of wisdom culled from | this piece:
| "Fifteen of the 19 hijackers came into the country on tourist or business visas,
| according to the U.S. official who did not want to be identified. Also, at least one of
| the terrorists entered on an M-1 vocational-training visa, apparently to attend flight
| school, the official said. There was no information on how the other three arrived.
|
| FBI Director Robert S. Mueller III told reporters last week that some of the hijackers
| were "out of status," a phrase meaning that they had either stayed beyond the limits
| their visas or sneaked into the country. He provided no further details.
| In addition, 49 people who are related in some way to the investigation are in custody
| for possible immigration violations, the Department of Justice announced yesterday.
| "We're going to have to do a better job of making sure we know who comes into the | country, how long they're supposed to be here and whether they've left or not," said
| Rep. Lamar S. Smith (R-Tex.), a member of the House immigration subcommittee.
| In addition, he said, Congress needs to improve the system to ensure that visitors
| eventually return home. He noted that about 40 percent of all undocumented immigrants
| are people who came to the United States with visas but didn't leave when the visas
| expired.
| The number of people entering the United States to study, visit or work for short | periods has soared in recent years. From fiscal 1981 until 1998, the latest data | available, the number of annual admissions of visitors with visas nearly tripled to
| about 30 million, according to INS data."
| http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A46769-2001Sep17.html
| Clearly the entry point in the future for these monsters of Islam will be through | Mexico. Canada will tighten up its immigration laws in light of what has happened
| whether that is from domestic embarrassment or pressure from Washington. Mexico though | cannot do anything about who gets into their country. This "Abdel Salem Imal" would not | have been detained if not for the world wide scale of revulsion and the high level of | consciousness that exists about the attack. Mexico is so ridiculous that a factory
| worker in an "American" automobile assembly plant that once paid American workers $30 an | hour now pays Mexicans $5 per DAY. A police officer in Mexico does not make anymore

| that and most make less. Under normal circumstances this "Abdel Salem Imal" could have | given the immigration police there (probably making $20 per WEEK!) the equivalent of $5
| and been on his way to America. These terrorists were paying $15,000 each to learn to | fly a plane plus their rent in nice middle class enclaves throughout America, all this
| while not working a job to pay for any of this. Mexico is much cheaper to live.
| Assembling "safe houses" and erecting an "underground railroad" through Mexico to | America is relatively simple and quite cheap for these wealthy, sophisticated characters
| that are willing to work fulltime to make themselves into a human missile.
| America may secure its airports to the point where this cannot happen again but these | terrorists will not go home or stay there because they cannot steal a jet plane. The | truck bomb that destroyed the Federal building in Oklahoma City is thought to have cost
| less than $5,000 to assemble. That is one third the cost of training one human missile
| to fly a jet plane. Imagine two hundred of these guys each driving a Ryder truck into | several American cities next September 11, 2002? The last truck bomb detonated in the | now obliterated World Trade Center almost took it out. Imagine four Ryder trucks rolling | into an underground garage, one loaded with the ammonium nitrate explosive and the other | three loaded floor to ceiling with 55 gallon drums of gasoline. The first truck parks in
| the center on the top floor of the garage just underneath the first floor of the | building. The other three trucks then park along side the bomb and one behind. They then
| gather together like four musketeers for Islam, yell "God is great!" and boooom! A
| wicked, life destroying ball of fire goes straight up through several floors of the | skyscraper and likely three hours later the building collapses with most people still | trapped inside.
| Sure there is a little wooden gate and a couple of "security" guards at the entrance to
| the garage but is that going to stop four guys trying to blow themselves up?
| It is also important to remember that this is the most rudimentary bomb that could be | assembled and these individuals have much better capabilities. Many have enough
| education to manufacture a large quantity of C-4 plastic explosive and to acquire | flammable materials that produce temperatures several thousand degrees higher than | gasoline or jet fuel.
| What about biological agents and nerve gas? These are things which are not beyond their | capabilities to produce.
| In short, if they can get into America and stay here for months or longer than they will | strike again in the future. It is no longer theory, they now have experience. Close

the
| border with Mexico, seal it with troops or there will be more lethal incidents in the | future.
|
|

Whoopie do, landcarp...does anyone but you keyclowns<who are filth and drivel spewing idiots and therefore dont count>care about this?

All you are doing is showing how much you are a twithed wanna be. In reality, you are as stupid as twithed and as cowardly as trainedpuppet and moped.

I guess your real smart too huh Craig, not matter what forum you use you still are an illegal.

Subj: [rec-radio-cb] amp question
Date: 9/22/01 8:27:23 AM Eastern Daylight Time
From: cat88@helicon.net (Craig Lowanse)

hello, What is a good price on a dentron clipperton L amp, I can get one in exc. condition with box and manual for 500.00, what were the pro's and con's of this amp,what should I look for, it has the 10 meter mod. done , do you need a antenna turner if used with newer solid-state radio's. thanks for any info,craig

sir this is war and you had better know that right now.......and the suggestion mentioned is a good one in my opinion..........dead families do not produce offspring capable of revenge.........and in my opinion, most of the people here from the middle east, who somehow have gotten into this country, should be examined to see if they entered illegally and if so deported........all of them...........this is a war of cultures.....they believe one way, we believe another......this is not a moslem nation.......they are using our freedoms to operate their little terror cells.......actually all of this would not have happened if we had a decent immigration policy and the ins was doing its job........maybe now , we will have one, and they will be more efficient doing their jobs......a lot is at stake........did somebody say something about borders , language and culture.???????

Hello Doc: Wow only 75 dollars..... TILT!

My "Whats wrong with this" light would come on real bright!

The Messenger M4V amps go for 400 to 500 dollar range, maybe even more, I don't keep track that sort of thing.

I would suspect something wrong with the amp, at 75 dollars. If the amp has blown RF Transistors, and is need or repair I would ask for a lower price. Anyone can buy burned up amps all day long.

I suggest you have the guy show how it works with your watt meter, and dummy load.

The M4V uses one SD1446 to drive 8 SD1446 RF Transistors, these are 80 watt output transistors, If my memory is on line this morning. And this model works pretty good. Again I would have the owner show you how it works on the different bands, I believe some of the amps will not work all the way down to 80 meters. Maybe someone else can help here.

I have seen these M4V amps slam out right at 500 on my bird watt meter, on SSB with a Cobra 148 driving it. I am sure with a 5 watt drive level the amp will do 300 to 400 ball park. I also suggest installing a fan on the amp, RF Parts has one a nice large one with the (Is the fan really working) finger guard for only 15 bucks. It will keep the need for band aids down a little.

Also be advised the Messenger amps that use the 2SC2789 RF Transistors are junk incorporated big time. They are the same size as the M4V amps, and I suggest you look inside the amp and verify that it uses the SD1446 RF Transistors, (9 of them) and NOT the 2SC2789 transistors.

Everybody uses the 2SC2789 RF Transistors, but Messenger changed their design and went to the 2SC2789 transistors, in some of the amps. And you half to drive them twice as hard almost to get the same output as compared to a Texas Star amp, with the same 2SC2789 transistor complement.

I tried to get a diagram or schematic for the Messenger 4 or 8 2SC2789 Transistor amps. I could not run one down after many months of looking all over the net.

And I read here a year or so ago that Messenger went back to the use of the SD1446 transistors.

Be advised.

The official language of the US should be American English. It should be illegal to speak any other language in public. Of course, what one does in their abode is their business.

Hi all...

I find it hard to believe that this would scare any illegal CBers.

So who is going to sit reading every message flowing through the internet?
There's e-mails, newsgroup messages, and even web pages could be used to pass coded information.

To give an idea of the scale of such an operation, heres a figure from my (rather small) ISP...

280G a day, and that's just news messages alone. Add to this the e-mails and web pages, not forgetting that telephone and radio also exist as possible routes - that is a lot of reading and listening to get through every day.
The manpower needed to read these messages surely cannot be available. So we must assume that the "Carnivore listening boxes" will filter out the suspect messages, and the FBI are not going to read all mail.

Hands up everyone who believes that the FBI will use words such as "CB", "Keyclown", "Keydown", "Amplifier", "part 95", etc as keywords when looking for terrorist activity.

And Hands up all those who think that the FBI should put CB before the security of the whole nation.

It could be that the ISPs chosen are used by suspected terrorists, and that they are only after "tapping" the messages to and from those people.

OK Aaron, you can put your hand down now... And the other one.

Hi all...

We only have Aarons word that this was a real e-mail from Frank Gilliland.
Anyone can add a false e-mail to their posting, and the e-m addy given (fgillil@tincan.org) is not the one Frank gave on here, or on his website.
And if Frank is reading this newsgroup, why didn't he post it himself?
The "e-mail" reads like Aaron wrote it himself.

The bit I find most offensive is his claiming to have "respect" for the terrorists. Even if this was from frank (and I doubt it), Aaron obviously agrees, or he would not post it.
Murder is illegal, and in some parts of the world, can carry the death sentence. Yet Aaron seems to consider mass murder to be acceptable. So where is this "respect for the law" that Aaron claims to have??

Aaron is one very sick person, and he should seek help.

Brainbuster.

Paleface, you make a good point, quite by accident I'm sure. If you are of Asian, African, or European descent, pack your bags and head on out. The original cultures and languages here had names like Algonquin, Souix, Cree, Hopi, and Cherokee.

That may be your opinion but I can verify that it is not universally shared. I would rather my grandkids grew into freedom loving adults than for theirs to grow into rabid terrorists who vow death to everything they see as foreign. You must remember who started this little fracas.

Hi all,

Well, I'm back home and feeling pretty good now. I took some time and checked out the Ten-Tec 526 review in QST and I'm dropping the Christmas hints hot and heavy now. I just want to make sure that Santa Spouce doesn't mistake Ten-Tec with Wagner. :-) I gotta tell ya though...the review following that of the Ten-Tec 526 picqued my curiosity a bit more though. Not because of the radio, I know it well. (...and don't particularly care for it.) But because it actually got a kind review...from QST? On page 74, you will find the review for the Ranger 'RCI-2970DX 10/12 Meter Transceiver.' Well, I remembered reading the old review of the RCI-2950 10 Meter rig just following the days of "Novice enhancement." Phrases like "an overgrown CB" immediately come to mind, along with the advice of adding a couple of hundred dollars and getting a "real" multi-band ham rig.

=>=>=>Fast Forward=>=>=>

Hey, is that a Ranger advertisement I see on page 14? Hmm, it's a full page color ad for their RCI-5054, and they're rumored to be coming out with other single-band multi-mode rigs too. I bet they'll need some advertising for those as well. Those full page color ads can be pretty expensive, you know. Gee, come to think of it...I've seen full page color ads for the rig reviewed here in the past five or six issues of QST.

Speaking of the review, it says "In addition to the extra band, the '2970DX entices prospective buyers with a few other features that you won't find in some of the competing transceivers." Could this be the, somewhat dirty no-so-linear, 150 watt amplifier bolted on to the bottom of this little gem? Well, they do state "These include high RF power: an advertised 150 W on SSB; all mode operation: AM, FM, USB, LSB AND CW; memory and scan capabilities; and built-in SWR metering." All of which the '2950DX had...sans the 150 W "bolt-on kicker" of course. Perhaps it's the PA function, the very same feature that led to the "overgrown CB" statement in the first review. Although now it says "This function (PA) might also come in handy as a means of checking the sound of the transmit audio when testing alternative microphones or setting levels for digital operation." Well, that's mighty open-minded of them, wouldn't you say?

Hry, you don't think the current change in AR demographics and/or advertising dollars (...present AND potential!) had any influence on this review of probably the most popular "freeband" radio of ALL time, do you? Nah, me neither.

Just wondering if anyone can tell me if you need a special antenna to receive weather on a CB equipped with NOAA weather channels. I noticed that Wilson has advertised "weather channel ready" on some of their antennas (BTW, their site has been down for a few days now, are they still in business?). I was thinking about buying a Firestik, but they don't make any claims on weather channel capability. Do they do something to the antenna, or is this marketing fluff?

Can someone clarify this for me? Thanks

Darryl

I hope this has helped you out a bunch. Your welcome.

I have known many people to use the fire stick antennas as a recieve antenna for police scanners and have had great luck.
Most of the CB antennas will work fine on the receiving of such signals.
Hope this helps...

Hello All: Just found my Oct. QST Magazine in the street complete with tire marks and Mojave Desert Sand & dirt. How wonderful!

On Page 42 shows a great Log Periodic (broadband beam antenna) Antenna for 130 to 170 MHz.

Simple to construct.

On page 45, figure 8, I would use 3/4" x 3/4" x 1/8" square aluminum tubing, instead of the U channel the article shows. Also I would thread the 3/16 solid aluminum rod so that the nuts could be tighten on the outside of the square tubing.

The article also show how to easily allow the antenna to be mounted vertically or horizontally.

Very well written.

As this would bring up enough info to keep me busy for the next few weeks reading, is there any particular link I should be looking for?
Anything that links to the message that this was about?

I don't recall asking in the first place, but seeing as you are offering...
Have you anything more specific to offer than the words "do a search"?

eg.
http://securityresponse.symantec.com/avcenter/venc/data/js.alert.trojan.html
This refers to the original warning message as a "Trojan Horse".
http://securityresponse.symantec.com/avcenter/refa.html#defs Gives definitions of terms used.

And no they didn't come from a Google search, but from someone who was more specific with his info... Thanks Scott.

>I'm the answerman.

As long as the answer is "Do a google search".

Brainbuster.

I've thinking of setting up a MURS station. I know some of the ham guys would love to use their modified Kenwoods and such to attempt yet another contact on yet another frequency.

Can that be scanned and emailled?

Time to go back out and drive around topless and yak on the ray-did-ee-oh! I'll be on 36 and 38 upper and lower. Had no conditions earlier. I'll try again.

Glad you are getting magazines, my PO seems to have forgotten they exist.
If you want to see a monster LP antenna look down embassy row in DC for the

You asked why would a ham hang out in a Cb Newsgroup, I didn't read anything into it, let me ask you what was your point with the statement you made? I only stated a ham or a cber using an amp on 11 meters is illegal. I didn't blame him for anything you need to learn how to read correctly and comprehend what you read. But, I am wondering which rig he will use at only 5 watts output on SSb 10- 80 to drive this amp.

My comments in (paremphasis) and my emphasis CAPITALIZED:

"The FCC's Riley Hollingsworth today (a day on or since the 11th) suggested that the amateur community remain calm but ready (was he referring to N8?). He invited amateurs monitoring any SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITY to contact him and he will relay relevant information to the FCC duty team. He advised monitors to TAPE such radio traffic, if possible."

I also agree with him, and we need to ALSO monitor the CB BAND (24 - 28.0 mc) for any UN-American ISLAMIC, Arabic, and or Jewish activity that may be TERRORISTS trying to use CB to destroy THE REPUBLIC. 27.185 does NOT need to be monitored--the Truckers already do a great job doing that. You might hear some French (Quebec) truckers on the normal 40 passing through--no problem with them. IF you hear some wierd language that you do not understand, TAPE IT and send it with date, time & location, and possible direction of travel to the FCC (and the local Sheriff) for their possible routing out of UN-American activities. If it is local or on skip, note that too. We must join the American "communists" in monitoring ALL UN-American transmissions, from 10 hz to 890 mhz, and into the microwave spectrum. The Hams can't hear it all---us CB'ers MUST monitor OUR CB Band for UN-American activities to make sure THE ENEMY won't use CB ! CB is the People's band, NOT the criminals band! I don't know if N8 is on our side in this one, but maybe he is a Mooszlim or a Taliban . If he is an American, then he will be on our side (I'm sure we'll hear from him)! So GO and DO your DUTY, AMERICANS!!!!!

Remember that next time you get in your car and not wear a seat belt or exceed the posted speed limit.
Train PS.....The 365GTC/4 does nice 145MPH runs up and down 287 here in Jersey and certain sections of 80.

This has absolutely nothing to do with Bert's comments, I was just thinking. It was a passing thought really. The ARRL knows that if freebanding is encouraged as the stepping stone to ham radio then that would bode ill for the hobby. What official organization would sanction illegal activity? I know that many unlicensed bootleggers would like to think of themselves as "the new wave" of hobbyists, but honestly, no credible organiziation would recognize them as anything other than lawbreakers. As far as ads go, do you think that Ranger's presence signals the beginning of freeband legitimacy? Nah.

Odd that doc would specifically include the phrase "for (ham) emergencies". Is that like "for educational use only"? Someone (Jay) mentioned that the amp will not even tune down to 80 meters. Also the 5 watt driver requirement. Not too many hams have an 80-10 meter 5 watt radio. I suppose they could turn down the variable RF power output on their Kenwood or Yaesu, but why specify 5 watts? Is doc really gonna use his amp legally or are we just being suspicious? Nah.

Twithed Went up to Jersey----to the tune of "The devil went down to Georgia"

Twithed fag went up to Jersey
She was lookin for a cock to suck
At every truckstop in the southland
She'd plum run outta luck

Then she came across this faggot slurpin on a pekker
And suckin' it hot
So twithed jumped up on another fags cock
And said "Queer let me tellya what..."

"You suck pretty good dick my boy, but give my gay ass it's due..."
"I'll bet a gold dildo against your asshole..."
"cuz I think I'm better that you!"

The fag said "My name is trainedpuppet, and I've sucked dick since age ten"
"I'll take your bet, it aint no sweat...cuz I'm the queerest ever been!"

CHORUS
Trainfag put on your lipstick and get your weiner hard Cuz twithed's in from F-L-A, that fucking gay retard
And if you win you get a shiny dildo made of gold
But if you lose twithed pumps asshole!

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

Twithed opened her overnite case and took out a pink nightgown
She said "I'll dress up just right, as a faggot assed keyclown."
Then she pulled her 1 inch pecker out and the keyclowns moaned with lust Landcarp and moped joined right in and the faggot sounds were thus...

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

When twithed fisnished trainedpuppet said "You're a pretty decent fag"
"But sit yer ass down right there, and I'll suck dick 'til I gag!"

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

Twithed bowed his head, he knew he'd been outclassed
Then he stuck that golden dildo all the way up trainfag's ass

Trainfag moaned "Twithed just come on back if you ever wanna try again"
"It gets boring 'round here just having sex with dogs and the same old men"

Twithed opened her overnite case and took out a pink nightgown
She said "I'll dress up just right, as a faggot assed keyclown."
Then she pulled her 1 inch pecker out and the keyclowns moaned with lust Landcarp and moped joined right in and the faggot sounds were thus...

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

When twithed fisnished trainedpuppet said "You're a pretty decent fag"
"But sit yer ass down right there, and I'll suck dick 'til I gag!"

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

Twithed bowed his head, he knew he'd been outclassed
Then he stuck that golden dildo all the way up trainfag's ass

Trainfag moaned "Twithed just come on back if you ever wanna try again"
"It gets boring 'round here just having sex with dogs and the same old men"

Twithed Went up to Jersey----to the tune of "The devil went down to Georgia"

Twithed fag went up to Jersey
She was lookin for a cock to suck
At every truckstop in the southland
She'd plum run outta luck

Then she came across this faggot slurpin on a pekker
And suckin' it hot
So twithed jumped up on another fags cock
And said "Queer let me tellya what..."

"You suck pretty good dick my boy, but give my gay ass it's due..."
"I'll bet a gold dildo against your asshole..."
"cuz I think I'm better that you!"

The fag said "My name is trainedpuppet, and I've sucked dick since age ten"
"I'll take your bet, it aint no sweat...cuz I'm the queerest ever been!"

CHORUS
Trainfag put on your lipstick and get your weiner hard
Cuz twithed's in from F-L-A, that fucking gay retard
And if you win you get a shiny dildo made of gold
But if you lose twithed pumps asshole!

And "BS" in this case is defined as what? Federal law? Please explain.

Also, I challenge Bert to go to QRZ or CQ magazine or the QST letters column and pose his question there to average hams. I wonder how many would say that changing AR demographics are influencing the marketing of "freeband" equipment?

Yup! Money and circumstances can turn yesterdays adversaries into today's bedfellows. Although, the language will be laid down VERY carefully. The messages will read "between the lines."

>The ARRL knows that if >freebanding is encouraged as the stepping stone to ham radio then that

Slight correction Aaron, the ARRL knows that ACKNOWLEDGING freebanding as a (NOT the) stepping stone to ham radio would bode ill for their "older" membership renewal rate. I think it's safe to say that the league is well aware that many of their members have indeed freebanded in the past.

Congress. Osama's about to find that out when he wakes up to the muzzle of an H&K MP5 in the hands of a CIA operative.

Not so "new wave," Aaron. Freebanding's allot older than you think...and isn't that "rule"breakers? :-)

>As far as ads go, do you think that Ranger's

Of course not. It is a sign of where the money's coming from though. I'll sit back and have a hearty laugh though when I see an ad for the new Superstar 40m rig 0r their older 10m rig (a Cherokee CB in disguise) in QST. Take care and

Hi Aaron,

If you take a look at the U.S. amateur radio statistics provided by Mr. Speroni, you'll see that Technician class amatuers make up almost HALF of the TOTAL number of U.S. licensed amateurs. You don't think any of them...dare I say...freebanded, do you?

http://www.ah0a.org/FCC/Licenses.html

Bert's currently a Technician class licensee. (Not for much longer I gather from some of the posts here, good luck Bert!) Just who do you define as the "average" ham, only those who view the issue as you do? Take care and 73.

I don't think a large percentage did or do. Apparently you think that if a large percentage of Techs did/do freeband then that makes it OK?

Look, I don't hold anything against former freebanders and outlaws who GO LEGIT and get their license and NEVER BREAK FCC LAW AGAIN. Whoever is in that category will get no trouble from me.

However this thread involves a transceiver which some say is MARKETED WITH FREEBANDERS IN MIND. Some are even implying that hams should encourage or overlook freebanders.

Strong-arming the ARRL and the FCC into sanctioning freebanding and bootlegging via sheer numbers is a wild fantasy that no one but "illegals" could dream up.

Hells Bells, I turned out a dozen or so ex-freebanders myself. By and large, freebanders are better equipped than the average OT Extra.

As a practical matter, a newbie is much more likely to become radio-active via CB and most of us recognize that fact. Another is that the SSB changeover cost us the SWLers that had been the mainstay after the ex-military ops showed up after WW2. Face it, while most people interested in radio do obtain ham tickets along the way, there are multiple paths to Nirvana.

The Amateur Service has a lot of traditions that go back to the Titanic era. If you notice, only 80 and 160 meters actually contain the wavelength for which the band was named after 80 years of World Radio Conferences. It works a lot better if the newcomer to the ham bands listens a bit and adopts the local lingo. Pygmalion is not dead nor are 2 meter repeaters real radio.

To obey Federal law just like a car Craig, your car can exceed the speed limit but the driver is responsible for keeping it at or below that level same as a responsible radio operator is supposed to do the same. What are you gonna do with that Dentron ? paper weight?

Sorry, I hit the 'Send' button instead of the 'quote' button. The question was and remains:

>You don't think any of them...dare I >>say...freebanded, do you?

Operative word = "any."

>Apparently you think that >if a large percentage of Techs did/do freeband then that makes it OK?

Incorrect, Aaron. If they're middle-class tax-payers, it DOES make them a targetable consumer market, not to mention a constituency. Doesn't make the illegal activity ok, but it does provide some leverage for the possibility of future legislative action re. said illegal activities.

>Look, I don't hold anything against former freebanders and outlaws who >GO LEGIT and get their license and NEVER BREAK FCC LAW AGAIN. Whoever >is in that category will get no trouble from me.

That's nice, Aaron. I'm comforted by this.

>However this thread involves a transceiver which some say is MARKETED >WITH FREEBANDERS IN MIND. Some are even implying that hams should >encourage or overlook freebanders.

Last time I checked, this was still the USA, and it's still entirely legal to engage in disussions re. illegal activities. (conspiracy notwithstanding) What next Mt. Orwell, the "Thought Police?"

>Strong-arming the ARRL and the FCC into sanctioning freebanding and >bootlegging via sheer numbers is a wild fantasy that no one but >"illegals" could dream up.

Yeah, who would've ever though that the British Govt. could be "strong-armed" by committing the "illegal" act of extracting salt from the sea rather than pay taxes on the British refined salt. Hey didn't another country do that to the British, except with tea in Boston harbor? Betcha Ghandi and Samuel Adams were freebanders! Hey, they both broke laws hence they were "illegals." This is too fun. Aaron, we're clogging up the NG, why don't we take it to AOL IM? Take care and 73.

Richard, you made a most interesting comment. Whilst many people blame the ARRL and incentive licensing, you got me to thinking about when I got into amateur radio. 1962. There still was a lot of AM activity as well as considerable SSB - hey, there were a number of DSB transmitters around (much cheaper than the SSB units)! I remember some of the neighborhood kids hearing me at the top of their AM radios when I was on 160 meters. As I recall, almost all of the activity by 1968 was SSB. This might be the real truth behind the drop in new amateurs. The average shortwave listener could no longer listen in to the activity. Thanks for the memories!

Don't give me any credit; I do not run a recruiting office. In the long run of things no one has ever figured out how to motivate anyone to do anything; fear works but only sporadically and temporarily at that before some form of fragging occurs. The Aaron nag is about as effective.

What one can do is maintain his intelligence and sanity about him and not demotivate anyone. Much like the annual 'How I made a gazillion by realizing my employees weren't idiots' article in just about every business school mag in the country, try realizing there is a people inside the title and quit fighting symbols instead of reality. (These always reminded me of the How I shot a bear in my pajamas articles in the old mens mags -- and I have no idea how the bear got into my pajamas).

Nobody turns because he is nagged or even encounters the cynical-chic grandpa type OT ham on a newsgroup. At some point he makes his own decisions and you try to make the path a little clearer and smoother as someone did for you a thousand years ago. No bigger deal or cosmic issue than that.

Aaron, You knothead!
He said NOTHING about running it on CB. I know of several hams who have M4V Messengers. From what I have seen of them, they DO meet spectral purity requirements, and put out a clean signal from 80 thru 10 meters
with up to 600 watts.

Now, just to aggravate you, I happen to HAVE one of these amps. It is sitting on a shelf not being used--it is just part of my "excess" inventory. It works fine.
I tested it into a cantenna dummy load and it is sitting in the shack. I can have that amp, USE it....BUT! I do fine with 100 watts into one of my own versions of the "screwdriver' genre, so I don't need the battery drain, big cables running under the floor, and battery isolators. I did take the time to set it for 100 watts drive. Other than that, it is just sitting. I might take a notion to install it, I might cannibalize it, I might leave it sitting. Don't that just tear you up?
LOL!

There ain't nothin like firing up some All-American five mess you scarfed out of an old combination console with SW added as an afterthought and hearing HCJB.

I really was not aware of a drop. Fairly continuous growth even if you factor out the Novice, Tech thing where renewal ratios stink.

In the context you've presented them, why sure! You seem to present the case that everybody who ever broke a law is automatically wrong and should not be afforded the opportunity to change the legislation. Want something less "colonial" and more domestic? How about a president that admits to having DWI'd? And BTW Aaron, I've always considered driving while intoxicated a tad more dangerous that "freebanding." You're the best, Aaron.

Aaron, you've stepped in it with BOTH feet. Do you remember the thread entitled "A Better Way To Help/Defend CB/11 Meters?" It advocated using legal method of changing laws, or in this case...an FCC rule. (RM-9807) It also offered a better way to deal with any interference from private interest groups (ARRL & NAB) in pursuing said changes, all legally and while following current laws/rules. Do you remember you're response, Aaron? Let me refresh your memory.

"I oppose you."

Well which is it, Aaron? Do you oppose this approach or do you advocate it? The answer appears to be neither, it comes back to the same observation over and over. It's all about the argument; trolling for nothing other than the sake of the troll. All too easy. Take care and 73, Aaron.

Now, THAT one I can answer! It is sometimes called "headroom". It simply allows the amp to run cooler, idle along at less than half of its max, and last many times longer. My car, for example, has a powerful engine that would allow me to drive at 120 MPH. IF I drove it that way ALL the time it would likely wear out sooner--maybe even blow up. Even though I have the CAPA-BILITY to go 120, I do not do so because it is dangerous and illegal. Outside of the legal issues, driving along at 55-60, my tach is at about 1800 RPMS. Same way with the 3000 watt linear. SOME people might run the max sim-ply because they can. They are in the minority in the ham community. I know where there is a 5,000 watt AM transmitter. The owner runs it at about 500 on 75 and 40 meters. The tubes have been in there almost 9 years! On the air, he is called the "Static Eliminator" because when that transmitter comes on with a CLANK, there is nothing but broadcast quality AM. Why doesn't he crank it up "pedal to the metal"? It is against the law, and he doesn't need it to talk all over the place on 7290 KHZ.

"That would normally be true. However the past histroy of this group, over that last 6 months, has shown one or more people who have very deliberately forged messages in the name of another, with the intentions of stirring up trouble. I would keep that in mind since your nic, in the replay E-mail address, "twistedhed" matches the spelling of an individual who went on a crazy mission to accuse anybody and everybody of forging him. If you don't believe me you can privately E-mail some of the other long time posters to this group who will confirm those facts.

Was there a point you wanted to make? It is generally

After further consideration, I'd bet it's a cold joint on a programming pin, the ribbon cable that connects to the channel selector, or on the channel selector itself. I'd start by checking the programming pin logic against the truth chart.

Hey Brainbuster, looks like you busted your own brain on this one. Why didn't you just email me? Too simple, huh? That's even more simple than getting a license to run 1000 watts legally. But what should anybody expect from a criminal mind.

I'll tell ya what, bb brain, I don't think anyone here would disagree that what those terrorists did was well beyond our limits of morality.
But they were probably raised from birth to believe that what they were doing was both moral and just. They were warped from the beginning by minds even more warped than theirs. But I do respect anyone that has the courage and dedication to give his life for what he thinks is right.
The real terrorists are the ones that warped these men's minds into such a perverted state of morality, then run and hide when it's time to stand up and be counted. The real terrorist is bin Laden, and you will find him hiding, mingling among the innocent, using false identities to avoid responsibility, denying his guilt, mocking the laws that he violates, and constantly trying to turn people toward his cause. Does that sound familiar?

bin Laden will never surrender, he is too much of a coward. He won't even wait to be killed, he would rather pull a Hitler and commit suicide, probably with some nice painless poison. He will shame the lives of all of those naive followers that bravely gave their lives for his selfish little vendetta against the US (which is probably just a ruse to thicken his wallet).

So yes, I have some respect for the puppets that flew the planes, but none for those pulling the strings. I also have no respect for anyone that mocks the best government in the world, abuses the GIFT of freedom that was given to them at the cost of millions of lives, and screws the people of that great nation just to satisfy a petty, selfish whim. Whether those criminals are here or abroad, I have no respect for any of them.

Now fuck off.

As long as these radical Islam terrorist are alive a lot of innocent people are going to die, the choice we may well have to make is, is it going to be a lot of innocent people here or a lot of innocent people there. I just happen to have this thing about self preservation for me, my family, friends and this country, so if the choice has to be made as far as I am concerned, it is there.

Of course I oppose turning the ARRL into the tool of CBers who want to bootleg on unauthorized frequencies. I still oppose it. And since you came up with this bright idea, I oppose you.

It's all too easy, Mark, because what you're all about is all there in

Why Old man again, you don't need a body (though it would be nice), you don't need DNA.
You did a lot of those posts from MIBX using a portal through AOL. You have admitted as such when I showed you that I don't even own a modem, only DSL. Your style, accusatory, harassing, whining is all over those posts, so again you did a lot of them.
Face it you blew it, Helmut and Bada were used and you forgot, so fess up old chap.
Oh one more thing, nice lie about spending time at liberty park, what did you do, drive by, ok then head straight home and get on the computer.
Yeah your word is credible.

Funny, posting at 9:00am , 11:40am, 3:30 pm, 6:30pm, 7:00 pm so again you lied and never left the house. What a real credible source of misinformation.

You show me a statute from the Gov that says he cannot own the amp, show me where he cannot buy the amp in kit form, show me why he cannot use the amp on 10 meters, how do you know every last detail of his deal? You don't he may be buying the thing with no pills in it , is that illegal? No its not perhaps he is making a experimental medical device and would like to run it into a dummy load. You have no info other than he got ripped off, Why not stick to the facts of what we do know, Not your assinine presumed use, and assumptions. When you provide me any info I asked for maybe then you will be credible other than that they are all your opinions.

B'rit Hadashah ...Mattityahu-Yochanan..

Though Why do you insist on the King James version ? As the King James version first of all now is not what the King James version was in 1611 when it was created..and further more..

Psalm 119 is the longest chapter in the Bible.
Psalm 117 is the shortest chapter in the Bible.
Psalm 117 is also the middle chapter of the Bible.
594 chapters precede it and 594 chapters follow it.
Add these two numbers to get 1188.
That's 1188 as in Psalm 118:8.
Psalm 118:8 is the center verse of the Bible.
Want to be in the center of God's will?
Go to the center of His Word:
"It is better to trust in the LORD than to put confidence in man." (Psalm 118:8)

Though my other side of my brain says read the talmud.

"And you shall love your fellow like yourself" VaYikra (Leviticus) 19:18
"You shall not hate your brother in your heart" (VaYikra 19:17)
Which actually The talmud says hating someone is one of the higher sins of man.

BUt personally I could not get into the whole you must have your head covered within 8 feet or 4 cubits.. not my thing..Just like married women should cover there hair while non married women do not have too.. Then you throw in this whole twist that my girl is armanian / Italian .. I have a screwy life hehe..

One more thing .. Dave nothing against you personally but it is great you have faith but this is not faith.god.biblehumpers...

In article <3bae7407@news.planetc.com>, "Dave or Debby" <truth@planetc.com> writes:

>Biblically, his "face" is that of a ROARING LION, trying to devour YOU. I'm >glad that Jesus Christ IS the Savior that gives us who believe and OBEY the >Gospel the power over the wicked one. Get a King James translation today

Yep, it appears now that the first settlers in North America came from Europe and the later immigrants from Asia killed them off.

It's not illegal if you pay for the service. Besides, there are a few garage-band remakes and dozens of MIDI versions -- you can't to a web search and not find a few. So blow it out your ass, dumbshit.

Federal Communications Commission (FCC)

Part 95 - Subpart D - Rules for CB Service
Citizens Band (CB) Radio Service

General Provisions-

[RULE 1] Description
[RULE 2] Usage of Rules
[RULE 3] Who is Eligible
[RULE 4] Licenses
[RULE 5] Areas Of Legal Operation
[RULE 6] Special Restrictions
[RULE 7] Operating Channels/Frequencies
[RULE 8] Antenna Height
[RULE 9] Equipment
[RULE 10] Power Output
[RULE 11] Linear Amplifiers
[RULE 12] Permitted Communication
[RULE 13] Illegal Communication
[RULE 14] Paying for Actual Use
[RULE 15] Who Is Held Accountable
[RULE 16] Time Limit of Transmissions
[RULE 17] Identification Methods
[RULE 18] Emergency Usage and Assisting Travelers
[RULE 19] Remote Control Operations
[RULE 20] Telephone Patches and Telephony with CB
[RULE 21] Penalties
[RULE 22] Correspondence from FCC
[RULE 23] Notice of Interference
[RULE 24] Service to Transmitters and Antennas
[RULE 25] Modifications to Transmitters
[RULE 26] FCC Inspections
[RULE 27] Keeping Station Records
[RULE 28] Contacting the FCC

RULE 1 - Descriptions The Citizens Band Radio Service (CB) is a private, two-way, short-distance voice communications service for personal or business activities. The CB Radio Service may also be used for voice paging.
RULE 2 - Usage of Rules You must comply with these rules when you operate a station in the CB Service from:
{1} Within or over the territorial limits of places where radio services are regulated by the FCC.
{2} Aboard any vessel or aircraft registered in the United States or
{3} Aboard any unregistered vessel or aircraft owned or operated by a United States citizen or company.
Your CB must comply with Part 95/Subpart E [Technical Rules].
Where the rules use the word "you", "you" means a person operating a CB station. Where the rules use the word "person" the rules are concerned with an individual, a corporation, a partnership, an association, a joint stock company, a trust, a state, territorial or local government unit, or other legal entity. Where the rules use the term "CB station", that means a radio station transmitting in the CB Radio Service.
RULE 3 - Eligibility To Use CB You are authorized to operate a CB station unless:
{A} You are a foreign government, a representative of a foreign government, or a federal government agency.
or
{B} The FCC has issued a cease and desist order to you, and the order is still in effect.
RULE 4 - Licenses You do not need an individual license to operate a CB station. You are authorized by this rule to operate your CB station in accordance with the rules stated in this Subpart. (*also read Rule 17)
RULE 5 - Areas of Legal Operation You are authorized to operate your CB station from:
{A} Within or over any area of the world where radio services are regulated by the FCC. Those areas are:
[1] The 50 United States
[2] The District Of Columbia
[3] Commonwealth of Puerto Rico
[4] Navassa Island
[5] United States Virgin Islands, it's 50 islets and cays
[6] American Samoa
[7] Baker Island
[8] Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands
[9] Guam Island
[10] Howland Island
[11] Jarvis Islan
[12] Johnston Island
[13] Kingman Reef
[14] Midway Island
[15] Palmyra Island, and it's 50+ islets
[16] Wake Island
{B} Any area of the world, except, within the territorial limits of areas where radio services are regulated by -

[1] An agency of the United States other than the FCC, you are subject to it's rules.
[2] Any foreign government, you are subject to it's rules.
{C} An aircraft or ship, with the permission of the captain, within or over any area of the world where radio services are regulated by the FCC or upon or over international waters. You must operate your CB station according to any applicable treaty to which the United States is a party.
RULE 6 - Special Restrictions
{A} If your CB station is located on premises controlled by the Department of Defense you may be required to comply with additional regulations imposed by the commanding officer of the installation.
{B} If your CB station will be constructed on land of environmental or historical importance (such as a location significant in American history, architecture or culture), you may be required to provide information to comply with Part 1.1305 through 1.1319 of the FCC Rules.
RULE 7 - Operating Channels/Frequencies Your CB station may transmit only on the following channels / frequencies:

Channel	Frequency	Channel	Frequency
1	26.965	21	27.215
2	26.975	22	27.225
3	26.985	23	27.255
4	27.005	24	27.235
5	27.015	25	27.245
6	27.025	26	27.265
7	27.035	27	27.275
8	27.055	28	27.285
9*	27.065	29	27.295
10	27.075	30	27.305
11	27.085	31	27.315
12	27.105	32	27.325
13	27.115	33	27.335
14	27.125	34	27.345
15	27.135	35	27.355
16	27.155	36	27.365
17	27.165	37	27.375
18	27.175	38	27.385
19	27.185	39	27.395
20	27.205	40	27.405

{B} * Channel 9 may be used ONLY for emergency communications OR for traveler assistance.
{C} You must, at all times and on ALL channels, give priority to emergency communication messages concerning the immediate safety of life or the immediate protection of property.
{D} You may use ANY channel for emergency communications or for traveler assistance.
{E} You must share each channel with other users.

{F} The FCC will not assign any channel for the private or exclusive use of any particular CB station or group of stations.
{G} The FCC will not assign any channel for the private or exclusive use of CB stations transmitting single sideband or AM.
RULE 8 - Antenna Height
{A} "Antenna" means the radiating system (for transmitting, receiving or both) and the structure holding it up (tower, pole or mast). It also means everything else attached to the radiating system and the structure.
{B} If your antenna is mounted on a hand-held portable unit, none of the following limitations apply;
{C} If your antenna is installed at a fixed location (whether receiving, transmitting or both) it must comply with EITHER one of the following:
[1] The highest point must not be more than 20 feet (6.10 meters) higher than the highest point of the building or tree on which it is mounted;
or
[2] The highest point must not be more than 60 feet (18.3 meters) above the ground.
{D} If your CB station is located near an airport, and if your antenna structure is more than 20 feet (6.10 meters) high, you may have to obey additional restrictions. The highest point of your antenna must not exceed 39.37 inches (1 meter) above the airport elevation for every 109.36 yards (100 meters, 1 hectometer) of distance from the nearest point of the nearest airport runway. Differences in ground elevation between your antenna and the airport runway may complicate this formula. If your CB station is near an airport, you may contact the nearest FCC field office for a worksheet to help you figure the maximum allowable height for your antenna.
WARNING: Installation and removal of CB station antennas near powerlines is dangerous. For your safety follow the installation directions included with your antenna.
RULE 9 - Equipment
{A} You must use an FCC type accepted CB transmitter at your CB station. You can identify an FCC type accepted transmitter by the 'type acceptance'label placed on it by the manufacturer. You may examine a list of type-accepted equipment at any FCC Field Office or at FCC Headquarters. Use of a transmitter which is not FCC type-accepted voids your authority to operate the station.
{B} You must not make, or have made, any internal modifications to a type-accepted CB transmitter. (*read Rule 25) Any internal modification to a type-accepted CB transmitter cancels the type-acceptance, and use of such a transmitter voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 10 - Power Output
{A} Your CB station transmitter power output must not exceed the following values under any conditions:
AM [Amplitude Modulation] - 4 watts carrier power [CP]
SSB [Single Side-Band] - 12 watts peak envelope power [PEP]

{B} If you need more information about the power rule, see Part 95/ Subpart E.
{C} Use of a transmitter which has carrier [CP] or peak envelope power [PEP]in excess of that authorized voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 11 - Linear Amplifiers
{A} You may not attach the following items (power amplifiers) to your type-accepted CB transmitter in any way:
[1] External radio frequency [RF] power amplifiers, also called linear amplifiers, or linears;
or
[2] Any other devices which, when used with a radio transmitter as a signal source, are capable of amplifying the signal.
{B} There are no exceptions to this rule and use of a power amplifier voids your authority to operate the station.
{C} The FCC will presume you have used a linear or other external [RF] power amplifier if-
[1] It is in your possession or on your premises; and
[2] There is OTHER EVIDENCE that you have operated your CB station with more power than allowed by CB Rule 10.
{D} Paragraph C above in this section does not apply if you hold a license in another radio service (HAM, etc.) which allows you to operate an external RF power amplifier.
RULE 12 - Permitted Communications {A} You may use your CB station to transmit two-way plain language communications. Two-way plain language communications are communications without codes or coded messages. Operating signals such as "ten codes" (10-4, etc.) are not considered codes or coded messages. You may transmit two-way plain language communications only to other CB stations, to units of your own CB station, or to authorized government stations on CB frequencies about-
[1] Your personal or business activities, or those of members of your immediate family living in your household;
[2] Emergencies;
[3] Traveler assistance;
[4] Civil Defense activities in connection with official tests or drills conducted by, or actual emergencies announced by, the Civil Defense Agency with authority over the area in which your station is located.
{B} You may use your CB station to transmit a TONE SIGNAL only when the signal is used to make contact, or to continue communications (Examples: tone operated squelch, selective calling circuits). If the signal is an audible tone, it must last no longer than 15 seconds at one time. If the signal is a subaudible tone, it may be transmitted continuously only as long as you are talking.
{C} You may use your CB station to transmit one-way communications (messages not intended for two or more CB stations) only for emergency communications, traveler assistance, brief tests (radio checks) or voice paging.
RULE 13 - Illegal Communications {A} You must NOT use a CB station-[1] in connection with activity which is against federal, state or local law;

[2] to transmit obscene, indecent or profane words, language or meaning;
[3] to interfere intentionally with the communications of another CB station;
[4] to transmit one-way communications, EXCEPT for emergency communications, traveler assistance, brief tests (radio checks) or voice paging;
[5] to advertise or solicit the sale of any goods or services;
[6] to transmit music, whistling, sound effects or any material to amuse or entertain;
[7] to transmit any sound effect solely to attract attention;
[8] to transmit the word "MAYDAY" or use any other international distress signal, EXCEPT when your station is located in a ship, aircraft or other vehicle which is threatened with GRAVE AND IMMINENT danger and you are requesting IMMEDIATE assistance.
[9] to communicate with, or ATTEMPT to communicate with, any CB station more than 155.3 miles (250 kilometers) away;
[10] to advertise a political candidate or political campaign (You may use your CB radio for the business or organizational aspects of a campaign, if you follow all other applicable rules);
[11] to communicate with stations in other countries, except stations in Canada (on General Radio Service).
[12] to transmit a false or deceptive communication.
{B} You must not use a CB station to transmit communications intended for live or delayed rebroadcast on radio or television. You may use your CB station to gather news items or to prepare programs.
RULE 14 - Paying for Actual Use {A} You may not accept direct or indirect payment for transmitting with a CB station.
{B} You may use a CB station to help you provide a service, and be paid for that service, as long as you are paid only for the service and not for the actual use of the CB station.
RULE 15 - Who Is Held Accountable You are responsible for all communications which are made BY YOU from a CB station.
RULE 16 - Time Limit of Transmissions {A} You must limit your CB communications to the minimum practical time.
{B} If you are communicating with another CB station or stations, you, and the stations communicating with you, must limit each of your conversations to no more than five (5) continuous minutes.
{C} At the end of your conversation, you, and the stations communicating with you, must not transmit again for at least one minute.
RULE 17 - Identification Methods {A} You need NOT identify your CB communications...
{B} You are ENCOURAGED to identify your CB communications by any of the following means:
[1] Previously assigned FCC CB call sign
[2] K prefix followed by operators initials and residence zip code
[3] Your name;
or

[4] Description of your organization including name and any applicable operator unit number
{C} You are encouraged to use a "handle" (nickname) ONLY IN CONJUNCTION WITH the methods of identification listed above in paragraph B of this section.
RULE 18 - Emergency Usage and Assisting Travelers {A} You must at all times and on all channels, give priority to emergency communications.
{B} When you are directly participating in emergency communications, you do not have to comply with Rule 16 about length of transmissions. You must obey all other rules.
{C} You may use your CB station for communications necessary to assist a traveler to REACH A DESTINATION or to RECEIVE NECESSARY SERVICES. When you are using your CB station to assist a traveler, you do not have to obey Rule 16 about the length of transmissions. You must obey all other rules.
RULE 19 - Remote Control Operations {A} You MAY NOT operate a CB station transmitter by RADIO remote control.
{B} You MAY operate a CB transmitter by WIRELINE remote control IF you obtain specific approval in writing from the FCC. To obtain FCC approval you must show why you need to operate your station by wireline remote control. Send your request and justification to: FCC, Gettysburg, PA 17325.
If you receive FCC approval, you must keep the approval as part of your station records (read Rule 27 on station records).
RULE 20 - Telephone Patches and Telephony with CB {A} You MAY connect your CB station transmitter to a telephone if you comply with ALL of the following:
[1] You or someone else must be present at your CB station and MUST-
(i) manually make the connection (the connection cannot be made by remote control);
(ii) supervise the operation of the transmitter during the connection;
(iii) listen to each communication during the connection; and
(iv) stop all communications if there are operations in violation of these rules.
[2] Each communication during the telephone connection must comply with all of these rules.
[3] You must obey any restriction that the telephone company places on the connection of a CB transmitter to a telephone.
{B} The CB transmitter you connect to a telephone must not be shared with any other CB station.
{C} If you connect your CB transmitter to a telephone, you must use a phone patch device which has been registered with the FCC.
RULE 21 - Penalties may not be current penalty information. {A} If the FCC finds that you have WILLFULLY or REPEATEDLY violated the Communications Act or FCC Rules, you may have to pay as much as $2,000 for each violation, up to a total of $5,000.
{B} If the FCC finds that you have violated any section of the Communications Act or FCC Rules, you may be ordered to stop whatever action caused the violation.
{C} If a federal court finds that you have WILLFULLY and KNOWINGLY violated any FCC Rule, you may be fined up to $500 for each day you committed the violation.

{D} If a federal court finds that you have WILLFULLY and KNOWINGLY violated any provision of the Communications Act, you may be fined up to $10,000 or may be imprisoned for one year, or both.
RULE 22 - Correspondence from FCC {A} If it appears to the FCC that you have violated the Communications Act or these rules, the FCC may send you a discrepancy notice.
{B} Within the time period stated in the notice, you must answer with:
[1] A complete written statement about the apparent discrepancy;
[2] A complete written statement about any action you have taken to correct the apparent violation and to prevent it from happening again; and
[3] The name of the person operating at the time of the apparent violation.
{C} If the FCC sends you a letter asking you questions about your CB radio station or its operation, you must answer each of the questions with a complete written statement within the time period stated in the letter.
{D} You must not shorten your answer by references to other communications or notices.
{E} You must send your answer to the FCC office which sent you the notice.
{F} You must keep a copy of your answer in your station records.
RULE 23 - Notice of Interference {A} If the FCC tells you that your CB station is causing interference due to technical reasons, you must follow all instructions in the official FCC notice (This notice may require you to have technical adjustments made to your equipment).
{B} You must comply with any restricted hours of CB station operation which may be included in the official notice.

RULE 24 - Service to Transmitters and Antennas {A} You may adjust an antenna to your CB transmitter and you may make radio checks (One-way transmissions for a short time in order to test the transmitter).
{B} Each internal repair and each internal adjustment to your FCC type-accepted CB transmitter must be made BY or under the DIRECT SUPERVISION of a person licensed by the FCC as a GENERAL RADIOTELEPHONE OPERATOR.
{C} Except as provided in paragraph D below in this section, each internal repair and each internal adjustment of a CB transmitter in which signals are transmitted must be made using a NON-RADIATING antenna (Dummy Load).
{D} Brief test signals (signals not longer than one minute during any five minute period) using a radiating antenna may be transmitted in order to:
[1] adjust an antenna to a transmitter;
[2] detect or measure radiation of energy other than the intended signal;
or
[3] tune a receiver to your CB transmitter.

RULE 25 - Modifications to Transmitters {A} You must not make or have any one else make any internal modification to your CB transmitter.
{B} Internal modification does NOT include:
[1] Repair, or servicing of a CB station transmitter; or
[2] Changing plug-in modules which were type-accepted as part of your CB transmitter
{C} You must not operate a CB transmitter which has been modified by anyone in any way, including modification to operate on unauthorized frequencies or with illegal power.
RULE 26 - FCC Inspections {A} If an authorized FCC representative requests to inspect your CB station, you must make your CB station and records available for inspection.
{B} A CB station includes all of the radio equipment you use.
RULE 27 - Keeping Station Records Your station records include the following documents, as applicable: [1] A copy of each response to an FCC violation notice or an FCC letter.
[2] Each written permission received from the FCC.
RULE 28 - Contacting the FCC {A} Write to your nearest FCC Field Office to: [1] Report an interference complaint; or [2] want to know if the FCC has type-accepted a particular transmitter for CB service.
{B} Write to the FCC if you have questions about the CB Rules: FCC Private Radio Bureau Personal Radio Branch Washington, DC 20554

That's funny, when I look up the definition of 'crime' it only says "a violation of a law" and nothing about "damage". What dictionary are you using, Dave? Oh, and wouldn't the intentional disruption of the peaceful and organized use of the RF spectrum be considered "damage"? How about interference with legal communications on pre-approved frequencies? If the person created the interference unintentionally but because of an intentionally illegal act, is the interference willful or negligent? Let's say, for example, that a freebander is interfering with a television broadcast station. If the station loses some of it's audience because of the interference, isn't that "damage"? Or if a ham is operating on a freq that he can legally use but a freebander steps on his signal, isn't that "damage"? Or does your dictionary say that the damage must be to a tangible object? Well, if that's the case, then why is it a crime to disturb the peace, or cause a nuisance? How about libel and slander? You like to talk about religion quite a bit. If someone deprived you of your right to practice your religion, wouldn't that be "damage"?

Maybe it's YOU that is the commie, Dave.

This proposal was about a method of dealing with outside interference, on the part of the ARRL, with the efforts of CBers to change Part 95 rules using the correct procedures and protocol. Pretty cut and dry, Aaron. You're trolling again.

Read it again, Aaron. If you apply the slightest measure of common sense you'd infer the age-old adage, "Be good. If you cant be goog, then be careful." I certainly see nothing wrong with that. If they outlawed breathing today, Aaron, would you still be holding your breath tomorrow? Oh yeah, it's really not about the rules, is it? In the end, it's just another troll.

Check out the latest issue of 73 Amatuer Radio magazine, Aaron. Look in the 'Letters From The Ham Shack' column. Read it and weep, Seï¿½or Voobner. I won't go into the gory details, but it involves a ham, a President Grant "export" rig, and some rather gracious non-judgemental commentary from one of ham radio's most infamous curmudgeons. Geez Aaron, that wasn't much of a challenge at all. Must be going soft in your advanced years. I should talk! :-)

Now that's funny, you ASSuming, I am freebanding. My PC-122 has no extra channels, but it does have a 2-pill bolted to it. My first contact yesterday was Loveland, CO, you he told me he likes what he hears, clean and loud, with no distortion. The whole time I was QSO'ing, I was moving, with the top down and using a stock mike.

Let me know when you monitor me on the extras.

I rarely use profanity, but the phrase "f--k 'em" seems to be the most appropriate to those you describe above. Dick's right, CW is Nintendo.
Although I don't plan on being a Tech much longer, I've nothing against anybody who doesn't care for the code. It's their choice. Gee, does that make me "pro-choice?" Sounds like I should be careful when I

I don't think a large percentage did or do. Apparently you think that if a large percentage of Techs did/do freeband then that makes it OK?

He was crying about it covering keydowns and articles concerning freebanding, and showed the world he has not the first clue about informative journalism (again) by actually proclaiming (and I am NOT making this up) that the media in question, should not only take sides concerning the topics they report on, but should also CONDEMN those he doesn't agree with. Not having the patience to teach him any longer, someone may wish to clue this college grad in on the difference between subjective and objective media, maybe include a coupon for a subscription of the old line Pravda."

Oh goody. Is this where we start labeling people communist by skin color and/or language? Most of the cab drivers up here are in the 30-40 range speaking their native tongue. No one in America has the right to oppress someone because of the language they are speaking.

THOSE WHO DON'T REMEMBER THE PAST ARE DOOMED TO REPEAT IT.

news:<9olevi$86p$2@chilli.nntp.netline.net.uk>... Hi all...
We only have Aarons word that this was a real e-mail from Frank Gilliland. Anyone can add a false e-mail to their posting, and the e-m addy given (fgillil@tincan.org) is not the one Frank gave on here, or on his website. And if Frank is reading this newsgroup, why didn't he post it himself? The "e-mail" reads like Aaron wrote it himself. The bit I find most offensive is his claiming to have "respect" for the terrorists. Even if this was from frank (and I doubt it), Aaron obviously agrees, or he would not post it. Murder is illegal, and in some parts of the world, can carry the death sentence. Yet Aaron seems to consider mass murder to be acceptable. So where is this "respect for the law" that Aaron claims to have?? Aaron is one very sick person, and he should seek help. Brainbuster.
--
Sparky angrily barked: Hey Brainbuster, looks like you busted your own brain on this one. Why didn't you just email me? Too simple, huh?
"Maybe it was because you lied and implied you were somewhere other than your hole, er home."
    That's even more simple than getting a license to run 1000 watts legally.
"Does this have a point or relate to anything?"
But what should anybody expect from a criminal mind.
"Pretty much nothing other than what you have always offered up."
I'll tell ya what, bb brain, I don't think -"(sigh) That's been your embarrassment for quite some time..you DON'T think...ever."
anyone here would disagree that what those terrorists did was well beyond our limits of morality.
"YEa, the shaky one in Pa. did. So did Lelnad. One compared the mindset and the other came right out and equated those in here with the terrorists. He was hallucinating he was being attacked by the ng and said as much."

- But they were probably raised from birth to believe that what they were doing was both moral and just.
  They were warped from the beginning
"The beginning? The beginning of WHAT?"
by minds even more warped than theirs. But I do respect anyone that has the courage and dedication to give his life for what he thinks is right. The real terrorists are the ones that warped these men's minds into such a perverted state of morality, then run and hide when it's time to stand up and be counted. The real terrorist is bin Laden, and you will find him hiding, mingling among the innocent, using false identities to avoid responsibility, denying his guilt, mocking the laws that he violates, and constantly trying to turn people toward his cause. Does that sound familiar?
"Certainly. Matter of fact, you mocked brainbuster several times in this post and I haven't finished shredding it yet."
bin Laden will never surrender, he is too much of a coward. He won't even wait to be killed, he would rather pull a Hitler and commit suicide,
"You ought to get a clue instead of carrying on like you know something. Suicide is not an option to the Muslim faith. Under the Jihad belief, they can be killed even if it is by their own hand (IE A plane going into a building) if they are engaged in act of war, but they may NOT commit suicide, as you speak of."
probably with some nice painless poison. He will shame the lives of all of those naive followers
"Naive? You poor, clueless, uneducated man. Many of his followers are college grads..some from American Universities. People that feel they are naive may be labeled as a sympathizer to their cause, for that is what each and everyone that is apprehended claim, that they are naive, and people like you buy it."
that bravely
"Not brave. Cowardly."
  gave their lives for his selfish little vendetta against the US (which is probably just a ruse to thicken his wallet).
-"As is your post, to shoot off your mouth about things which you have no clue."
So yes, I have some respect for the puppets that flew the planes,

"Of course you do, you're vermin, as were they."
but none for those pulling the strings. I also have no respect for anyone that mocks the best government in the world, abuses the GIFT of freedom
"Such as the freedom of uninhibited speech that you take issue with?"
that was given to them at the cost of millions of lives, and screws the people of that great nation just to satisfy a petty, selfish whim. Whether those criminals are here or abroad, I have no respect for any of them.
-"I wouldn't worry. You're not respected either."
Now fuck off.
"Can that be considered a mock?"

Aaron, You knothead!
He said NOTHING about running it on CB. I know of several hams who have M4V Messengers. From what I have seen of them, they DO meet spectral purity requirements, and put out a clean signal from 80 thru 10 meters with up to 600 watts.
Now, just to aggravate you, I happen to HAVE one of these amps. It is sitting on a shelf not being used--it is just part of my "excess" inventory. It works fine.
I tested it into a cantenna dummy load and it is sitting in the shack. I can have that amp, USE it....BUT! I do fine with 100 watts into one of my own versions of the "screwdriver' genre, so I don't need the battery drain, big cables running under the floor, and battery isolators. I did take the time to set it for 100 watts drive. Other than that, it is just sitting. I might take a notion to install it, I might cannibalize it, I might leave it sitting. Don't that just tear you up? LOL!

Months ago Twisted E-mailed me privately a message where he outlined the that spring up on the group. I in fact did monitor his posts, and surprisingly he was very inconsistent in his employment of those tricks.

"Of course I was inconsistent once it was obvious you were forging me, Tim, Train, and others, I changed several things which you haven't been able to duplicate since. You threw a temper tantrum over this for days."
  He was too caught up in his crazy zeal to lash out at everybody
"Uhh, who was I lashing out at? I certainly gave you and Sparky and Dogie attention, but that is what you follow me and forge me for, why my dogie in Pa. imitates me, and why Dogie is on Prozac."
that he forgot to follow his own bag of tricks.
"The only tricks are the consistent lies. What shift do you work again, lelnad?"

No wonder some people found him so easy to forge. Then he had the balls to accuse some people
"No "some" people, Lelnad, just you busted by hammies for being a rat."
of giving away his "secrets", the same ones he rarely used himself.
"You demonstrated what I thought was a sincere concern over replying to forges of me which is why I emailed you and told you what to watch for.
Little did I know I was dealing with intentional ignorance.."
At this point I don't care who is fake or not.
"Only because you can't tell."

After the way Twisted conducted himself, by accusing nearly anybody who disagreed with him
"Never accused anyone disagreeing with me in here of anything, ever, except you and the other 2 for posting porn and forging. Just you and the other dogies, that's all."
to be a forger, whether true or not,
"Oh, it's true, it's true, so true that some have taken to posting disclaimers in their sig alerting people to your forging. As all are aware, you forged several in here. Your other dumping ground is the hammie rooms, only you were slapped for forging in there by the hammies that reject you as an equal. You know where you rank."
now he's paying the price for his insane behavior at that time,
"I am?"
and he well deserves it too.
"Why thank you, lelnad. Your face is extremely red today."
  So if somebody else does something and Twisted gets the blame, well to quote another past poster (Roger Beep) to this news group "I

Hey Ice, haven't heard from you in a day or two, hope all is well. I have a good friend from the Toledo Ohio chapter of the American Red Cross, who is now in NY working with the disaster relief. He is working at ground zero. I spoke with him this morning, he is doing well but is feeling stress. During our conversation I mentioned that I knew some people that had been there, and related your situation to him. Sounds like I might yet get called to go there.

  Good Morning, Keith. I was wondering if you have been in touch with the latest developments via your source at React. As of last week, you no longer have to wait to be called. All members wishing to volunteer are urged to contact
REACT Team Support as of September 21, 2001 We have received some calls from teams who want to come and help. At this time a team from the Missouri State Council is on its way to NYC to assist.
Because of the troubles with the internet, we have had some problems over the last two days, but we are still busy in Manhattan and continue to provide the services I described 2 days ago. The Mayor of New York City, Rudolph Guiliani, told the press yesterday that this operation is expected to go on for at least six more months. We are not sure what our involvement will be, at this time, in the long term, but are definitely needed for at least 1 more month. This is without a doubt the biggest and longest REACT operation ever, and we are going to need help.
If there is a team out there that would like to make a donation to the NYS REACT Council, we could use some GMRS radios, chargers and batteries. We presently have Motorola HT-600's donated by a local dealer but could use more! Please contact us before you send anything so we can make sure we can use it. THANKS
  Volunteers should visit the REACT International Web site, http://www.reactintl.org/tragedy_09112001.htm

Sex slavery thriving in Holy Land
By Megan Goldin NEVE TIRZA PRISON, ISRAEL

Christina, an 18-year-old university student from Moldova, has been bought and sold so many times she has lost count.

Christina, who declined to give her real name, studied classics and anthropology and played basketball as a hobby before she was lured from a rural town in one of Europe's poorest countries to sex slavery in Israel.

She is not alone.

Hundreds of thousands of 'Christinas' have been bought like merchandise, beaten, raped and chained in Western brothels in a 21st century form of slavery.

Christina received top marks in her anthropology studies but couldn't scrape together enough money to pay for photocopies, let alone buy textbooks.

Her dire economic situation made her fair game for women hired by criminal gangs to lure young, naive girls from Moldova and other financially-strapped Eastern European countries into prostitution with promises of large sums of money.

"I never thought I would actually have to do it," Christina said in bewilderment. "I thought once I arrived I would find a way to escape and find other work, as a waitress or something."

Christina was flown to Egypt where along with 20 other Moldovan and Russian women aged between about 18 and 24, she was escorted across the Sinai desert into southern Israel by a Bedouin smuggler.

They walked over dunes, eventually crawling under a barbed-wire border fence in the middle of the night.

Rolls of money changed hands between the Bedouin and the Russian-speaking men who bought the women. Christina doesn't know how much they paid, but the market price for a woman like her in Israel is around $8,000.

Frightened, an illegal alien, unfamiliar with Hebrew or Israeli geography, Christina had no real hope of escaping.

Instead she was taken to a brothel in northern Israel where she was forced to have sex with around 15 men every day, raped, beaten and threatened with death if she ran away.

Eventually she did and is now a witness in a court case against the pimp who bought and mistreated her under a new Israeli law that makes human trafficking punishable by up to 16 years in prison.

"It's very easy. You just put them on a plane, walk them through the desert and you have slaves," said lawyer Nomi Levenkron, who represents women like Christina who are locked in a special wing of the Neve Tirza prison near Tel Aviv while they wait to testify or to be deported for entering Israel illegally.

Sex slavery, or white slavery as it was called in the 19th century, is almost as old as prostitution itself. But it has had a sudden resurgence since the collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991 devastated many eastern European economies.

Women who earn around $20 a month in Moldova are promised $1,000 a month abroad to work as prostitutes. It is a tempting offer for young women with bleak futures in their home countries or burdened with supporting a large family.

Sometimes the women don't know they are being sent to work as prostitutes and are told they will be waitresses or secretaries. Others are simply kidnapped.

Almost always they are trafficked by the local Mafia, frequently on a forged passport and threatened that if they don't behave, their family back home will suffer the consequences.

"They come from a place with no money, a very poor family in a poor village, looking for a better future," said Levenkron, a legal adviser to the Hotline for Migrant Workers, the only organization in Israel that helps former sex-slaves.

"These women are so na&#65533;ve, they don't realize people are lying to them," she said.

Israel is a popular destination for the human trade. It is not difficult to smuggle and hide Russian-speaking women in a country where almost a million people originate from the former Soviet Union.

"It's very easy for them to disappear between all the Russian-speaking women in Israel," Levenkron said. "It's very easy for traffickers to bring women here and when you have the supply, you have the demand."

A recent U.S. State Department report on human trafficking put Israel on a list of countries where the phenomenon is rampant. It has until 2003 to implement "minimum standards for the elimination of trafficking" or face stiff economic sanctions.

According to Zahava Gal-On, who heads an Israeli parliamentary committee on trafficking, that means deterring traffickers with hefty prison sentences instead of a few months in jail, the usual punishment handed down by Israeli courts.

It also means putting women like Christina in safe houses instead of jail, thereby encouraging them to stay and testify.

In the past the victim has been locked up, sometimes for as long as six months, while the pimp is let off with a small fine or a brief stay in jail although under the law, it is the brothel owner, not the woman, who has committed a crime.

Like most former sex-slaves, Christina is penniless. Those lucky enough to be paid a paltry sum, usually a few dollars, by their pimps save the money to buy themselves freedom from their brothel-prisons. Often they are sold before they can do so.

"They are slaves and slaves of the worst kind," Levenkron said. "They are disposable people because it's so easy to buy a person."

Human trafficking is becoming a modern day scourge, said Tal Raviv, an advocate for the International Organization for Migration who works in Kosovo where trafficking is widespread.

"This has become a huge phenomena in the last decade," said Raviv during a visit to Israel. "The estimates are between half a million to 700,000 women trafficked every year just to the West, but the global figures are for millions."

Law enforcement officials say human trafficking is almost as rampant as drug and weapons smuggling. Many of the women being trafficked are forced to work in brothels.

In Africa and Asia, men are often sent to sweatshops and children forced to work in cocoa plantations in West Africa. Some of those trafficked are slated to be unwilling donors for black market organ transplants, Raviv said.

"Trafficking people is much easier than trafficking drugs and weapons," she said.

"It's easier because if you find drugs or the arms, there is no question something illegal has happened. But if you find a person with a passport, how do you know this person is not traveling out of their own free will?"

Raviv says the only difference between the 21st century version of slavery and that of the plantations in the Americas some 200 years ago is that today slavery is illegal.

"When you buy and sell a person, then it means a person is merchandise and that is slavery," Raviv said. "The person has no freedom, no control over his or her fate."

Hi "Landshark" and "No Fear".
I hope that neither of you mind me giving my rather different view on this "Famous mibx,cotse,ynn" poster issue. It seems that you each blame each other, and either I am missing something, or you are both falling into a trap laid by a certain troll on this group. It is easy for a troll to send out one or two messages with your names and e-m addys

Looking at the IP used, it would seem that the number is dynamically

Mr. Buster I have maintained my innocence for the whole ordeal because

"Forget the numbers. Your own posts are malicious, insulting, and you lower yourself daily to hurl names at those who take issue with your behavior or laughable incorrect diatribe."

Oh the post I did see of Landshark his Ip address was on a few of them and he had no excuse when it's plain as day, but he blames me and my ip address is on none of them and I am very confident of that.

"Oh, <g> and do not forget your own efforts at placing blame, pointing the finger, and your own callous blaming of innocents."

Don't forget that child sex and slavery is very common in Nepal, Thailand, and many parts of SE Asia. And that 35000 children starve to death in the world every day. Our problems seem pretty minor sometimes, but perhaps it is a good thing that we are suddenly awakened to all the nasty stuff that really is going on out there.

Rather than spend any time investigating claims from people like you (especially the ones using fake names), they'd rather have you go away so they can get back to what they do.

They don't want to spend the time do the option of stop or job go is given in plain real terms.

The economy is not good enough right now to have a job rocked out from under one. Using his companies domain was probably not a hot idea.

Hey Ice, haven't heard from you in a day or two, hope all is well. I have a good friend from the Toledo Ohio chapter of the American Red Cross, who is now in NY working with the disaster relief. He is working Good Morning, Keith. I was wondering if you have been in touch with the latest developments via your source at React. As of last week, you no longer have to wait to be called. All members wishing to volunteer are urged to contact

Yes I have been contacted both directly and via the REACT mailing list.
Unfortunately I do not have a GMRS license or my ham ticket yet, so all I can offer is CB, and I doubt that could be of much use :/. What I am doing instead is coordinating with those here in Ohio along with the Ohio State REACT Council to recruit members locally and in surrounding areas who do have the licenses so they can assist.

3043. Odd power/ant. problems with Cobra 29wx/st

Hi gang-
I've been helping a friend install a Cobra 29wx/st in his truck, but apparently I'm not helping too well!!! We have encountered some very odd problems which I have not previously experienced.
First, the power plug is new and in good shape (continuity checks fine) and goes into the cig lighter socket. No probs so far. But even when the truck is "off", not running or on in any way, there is an audible second or two of the weather station when I plug the cord into the cig. socket. Then it cuts out. It's like it powers up for a moment, even though the radio is definitely OFF, and so is the truck. Grounding? Wiring mistake? Idiosyncracy of the model of radio?
Another thing, he's installed a Firestick antenna, which needed to be trimmed for SWR matching, and we shaved off just a bit at a time (the usual 1/8" or so) to get it tuned. It got into beautiful 1.3:1 range for most of the 40 channels (this is an un-modified radio), until we tried to put the red plastic tip back on the Firestick. I mean, we got consistently good SWR over the whole band without the tip being on, then everytime we put it on, it shot up to 2.5 or 3:1 above ch. 18 or so. It stayed safely under 2:1 for the channels below 18. I put it halfway on, all the way on, twisted it, nothing changed the fact of the SWR being worse when we put the tip back on. OFF, no prob. ON, big prob.
Funny, we wrapped black electrical tape around the tip to keep it dry, and the SWR was fine. The tape was on tighter than the red cap, and yet it was fine. But that little, non-conductive (I can only assume) red tip causes the SWR to go haywire... very odd.
At any rate, I'm good at base stations, not so hot with mobile set-up, and any help or advice would be gratefully accepted.

The cig.lighter socket is hot all the time, and the radio has a "weather alert" feature that works all the time. In other words, all of that is normal.

trimmed

The antenna problem is odd. The cap has to be reacting to the windings underneath. If it were me, I would determine which way you have to go to get it to tune with the cap on (more wire or less). If it requires less wire, keep trimming until it matches with the cap on. If it requires more, take it back and exchange it. Explain what it happening. Try another cap. If it's the same with another cap, exchange the entire unit. Be careful to take the effect of the cap into account when tuning the new one. If you can't exchange it, you can add length by adding a spring, a quick-disconnect, or a combination of the two.

First of all, the radio should really be wired either to the fuse block or directly to the battery. preferally to the battery with both hot and ground going to the battery with both having an inline fuse and an inline noise filter.

As to what happens when you plug it in and the weather channels sounding off for a short bit, it sounds like a problem with the radio itself, a short somewhere or solder bridge somewhere. Is the radio new? or used. If it is used, has it had any mods done on it? if it has been modified I would suspect a butchered modification.

Now to the antenna, I never used fiberlass antennas, I've always used whire wips on my mobile installations, so I can not be of much help other than to say it sounds wierd, have you looked inside the cap to see if there is some metal inside that is conducting?

Sorry I couldn't be of more help.

Twisty you babbling moron no one said speed limits were set by the federal gov, Perhaps a reading comprehension class for your ignorance is showing again. Craig asked why someone would turn down a 3000 watt amp to 1500 watts. My answer was so they can obey Federal law. If you werent so worried about trying to pick apart my words, and actually read the part you snipped maybe just maybe it would get thru to that thing you sit on called a brain. Even someone as ignorant as you would see that.

I sure do use an amp I use a Kenwood 922 it does 1500 easily on 10-80 meters. I also use a Yaesu fl 2100B it does maybe 600 to 800 pep. All of course are Ham amplifiers used strictly on Ham bands. I also am not advocating any illegal amp usage either. Perhaps you should also take my advise from the below post "

The outlaw CBers in rec.radio.cb share your pain. They cry because they want to sell illegal equipment and not be 'dissed' for it. They

Hi De Ho No Fear etc etc etc, <snipped>

Hi "Landshark" and "No Fear".
I hope that neither of you mind me giving my rather different view on this "Famous mibx,cotse,ynn" poster issue. It seems that you each blame each other, and either I am missing something, or you are both falling into a trap laid by a certain troll on this group. It is easy for a troll to send out one or two messages with your names and e-m addys forged in the headers to lay a false trail, and get you blaming each other.
Looking at the IP used, it would seem that the number is dynamically assigned.
The numbers you seem to be discussing are... 152.163.197.67, 205.188.200.33,
205.188.198.163, 205.188.198.188
IP numbers used for the "AKC group" inluded: 64.12.102.49, 64.12.105.29,
64.12.105.34, 152.163.213.59,
152.163.213.82, 152.163.213.178,
205.188.193.152, 205.188.193.176
But how about these...
64.12.103.48 64.12.103.54
64.12.105.23 64.12.105.29

Yes it is, and I'm working on my Master's degree now, but that has nothing to do with the matter at hand. If somebody wants to forge your nic, or uses it by accident, where you get blamed for the post's contents, so be it. I'm not wasting my time to determine who is real and who isn't. If somebody wants to imitate you Twisted, well that's the price you pay for being so "famous" on this group. And if that is not to your satisfaction, then good luck wasting your time trying to change it. If anybody uses your name, and you get the blame, I'm not going to feel sorry for you.

Old boy Ill ask again you said I was 40/41 which is it am I a old man or not? I don't consider people who atre 40 old men unless your a pre teen. The 10,000 post figure was a guesstimate not an admission since you have said I made thousands and thousands of post, I post from Aol, I post from Mibx, I post from Cotse, I post from uplink, what have I missed . If thats the case 10,000 post may be a small number right. If I have done what you claim I must have some sort of record. 10,000 posts and not one from alt.sex.transgender from me... Yeah, one of those out buildings is the house trailer you live in. You just rent the place from the guy who really owns the property.

We read it, Bert.

It seems to infer that CBers should join a ham radio organization, not to advance the cause of ham radio, but instead to pressure the ARRL to de-regulate CB.

Either that or it infers that CBers should get ham licences and then pressure the ARRL with their overwhelming numbers to de-regulate CB.

Since freebanders and bootleggers "take what they want" already - I'm not sure how many of them would run to jump on your bandwagon.

The other fly in the ointment is that freebanders and bootleggers DON'T WANT the frequencies they are squatting on "legalized" - for obvious reasons. It would bring every yahoo from the lower 40 pouring into their freeband 'sanctuary'.

As you can see, my opinions conflict with yours. Why not show you can deal with that in a civilized manner?instead of resorting to dismissing these opinions as a "troll"?

Take it easy :)

Yes it is, and I'm working on my Master's degree now, but that has nothing to do with the matter at hand. If somebody wants to forge your nic, or uses it by accident, where you get blamed for the post's contents, so be it. I'm not wasting my time to determine who is real and who isn't. If somebody wants to imitate you Twisted, well that's the price you pay for being so "famous" on this group. You must be as stupid as they come. After all the discussion on the topic, haven't you at least read the US Constitution? Pay special attention to Article VI. Then go tell any Federal Court Judge that you refuse to follow the United States Code of Federal Regulations because you think they are not laws. I'm sure they will sit you down and shove a dictionary in your face.

Yes it is, and I'm working on my Master's degree now,

"Now? Right now? Day classes or night?"

but that has nothing to do with the matter at hand.

"So why mention it?"

If somebody wants to forge your nic, or uses it by accident, where you get blamed for the post's contents,

"Only by you. No one else can match you for ignorance."

so be it.

" I'm not wasting my time to determine who is real and who isn't. If

"Price? Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery."

for being so "famous" on this group. And if that is not to your satisfaction, then good luck wasting your time trying to change it.

"Why would I change it? I can't buy entertainment that amuses me as much as your ignorance does."

If anybody uses your name, and you get the blame, I'm not going to feel

Yes I have seem Embassy row and all the Log Periodic antennas, a few months ago.

I'll bet they get bleed over! Who do they complain to????

Wonder what type linears they got?

Hi Landshark,

I have seen some interesting web pages about some known trolls, and some of their tactics certainly seem familiar.
I feel sure that we do have the odd Troll or two on here, and as a Troll does not believe in sending helpful messages (they could see this as being counter-productive), I think this narrows down the shortlist somewhat.

But even the Trolls are not stupid, they know what they are here to do, and have a plan of how to achieve it. They may be mentally unbalanced, they may feel that the whole world is out to get them, and they may even know very little about CB, but they can plan their activities.

The trouble is that the Trolls may trick some people into thinking that they are genuine, and so back them up. This can spark off flame wars between the genuine users, and the Troll can then sit back and watch their creation grow.

Regards,

Brainiac.

Thats correct my statement has nothing to do with equating anyone or anything to the WTC attack, I have been there and saw what happened first hand, as well as watching it unfold from across the Hudson as it happened. I equated your (3 musketqueers) tactics with those of a terrorist, you guys act in gang fashion, think its ok to break federal laws and perform cowardly acts. You guys don't like legal Cb you are rebels running around shooting your gun in the air just making a lot of noise.

This is America we don`t care about little laws....If you drive the speed limit on Interstate 95 I promise you you will be passed by 95% of the other cars...Litter?....Yeah right.....Jay walking?...Please.....Go to a mall any weekend and watch the able bodied people hanging their fake handicapped permits on their mirrors and running in the place....At the mall near me there are a total of 75 handicapped spaces.All filled and replaced hourly and I have never seen a handicapped person get out of a single car..Worry about serious crime and don`t worry about some guy who`s going to bleed over somebodys TV for 10 seconds once a month as he passes by...I`ve only had people interferring on my signals and other devices maybe 10 times I can recall in the past 5 years and it was very short lived...The FCC realizes this is a non-issue which is why they don`t even bother messing with it untill some lifeless person like you call up whinning and then they will investigate just to shut you up but the whole time they are thinking "What an ass.".....You`re just an idiot.

It sounds like quite a few people have fun with different names.

You use certain names to prove your point about names not being protected (unless a registered trading name).
But you are also highlighting another important issue... all that glitters is not gold. Two posts with the same senders name, could be from different people. You leave obvious clues such as the use of a lowercase letter and an @home address, but not all people would.

When I first used newsgroups, I (rather naively) believed that posters to the groups were all genuine, and had an interest in the subject that the group covered. While the vast majority of posters are genuine, most groups may have a fake or two who are there just to annoy the genuine users.
If these trolls can get the genuine users to argue amongst themselves, then they don't have to work so hard, and they have a better chance of destroying the newsgroup.

One thing that really opened my eyes to the need to check headers was a post in my ISPs feedback newsgroup. The newsgroup was filling up with complaints about one of the ISPs products, when a couple of posts appeared which were aimed at one of the customers, but offended all those on the ng. When the headers were examined, it became clear that the offending posts did not come from a customer, but direct from one of the ISPs own computers!! I think the employee concerned will have got severely "spanked".
I suspect that some ISPs use "stooges" to post fake "great service" messages on newsgroups.

There's some heavy st on the internet. I have just read about how someone could remove an existing message in the group and replace it with one of their own.

Regards,

Brainbuster.

Not to mention the fact that two IP's in a Class C space within a Class B subnet aren't necessarily geographically close... in fact, it's likely that those two IP's are in entirely different cities, from the traces here..

Too bad you got E-mail that was intended to go to him. The Florida Lunatic did much in this news group to earn the fan mail it seems he is getting. Good for him. Maybe you can change your nic, while keeping the same E-mail address. That may cut down on the miss directed "fan mail". Don't even think about mentioning header addresses etc. He can't figure them out to save his life, and his sanity. He still can't read them right, and I don't even bother looking. We have several people on the group who like to switch names like changing socks. It gets really tiresome to keep pouching up the source to look at the headers. Then trying to "prove" who posted what is a complete waste of time since access to the ISP, or free-bee E-mail service posting logs are REQUIRED. So unless you work for one of those services, ISPs, or know somebody who does all you end up with is one big question mark for the smoking gun evidence. In other words you can't prove a thing without more info.

> btw, All my posts come from the same Isp each and everytime.

So do many of the people who post to this news group as well. In fact some use large ISP's with POP's (Point of Presence) all over the country. Then depending on the service you pay for you get either a dynamic IP, semi static IP, or fully static IP address. Unless it is the last one the best anybody can hope to do, without help from the ISP, is figuring out what domain somebody posted from. And that's as far as it goes. Our resident Florida Lunatic can't seem to understand that you can have more that one person posting to this group using exactly the same ISP. Heck my ISP got picked up by several other larger compaines that also offer high speed service across the country. Even some of the smaller ISP's will lease bandwidth from the big boys, so when you do a route trace you see the other ISP's nodes listed.

Train, spewed forth incorrect info once again. You didn't score anything you low life Nj inbred, the owners of the copyright need to tell napster they don't want the files on there system then they will be blocked if it they aren't notified then it isn't blocked so there is no infringement. Loser!

Straight Outta Napster

Copyright Owners
Upon proper notice to Napster, Napster is ready and willing to use its file name filtering technology to prevent access through the Napster system to any work that a copyright owner or its duly authorized agent claims to own or control. The U.S. District Court in San Francisco issued an Order on March 5, 2001, that calls for Napster to exclude individual file names from the Napster index, certified to contain the copyright holder's work, and the correlating Artist & Title pair (or Composer & Title pair) for the work. Once excluded, a file on a user's computer under that Artist & Title pair (or Composer & Title pair) or file name (or reasonable variants thereof) will not appear in the index of files available to the Napster sharing community.

To implement this exclusion, however, we need copyright owners' assistance. Owners must send to us a notice which complies with the Court's Order. To send us a complying notice, the following items of information must be supplied for each allegedly infringed work available through the Napster system:

A certification of your ownership of the rights in each work, or that you are the duly authorized agent of a certified copyright owner, and that you have a good faith belief that the disputed use of the copyrighted material is not authorized by the copyright owner, its agent, or the law (e.g. fair use). You should specify whether you own rights in the master (i.e., sound recording), composition (i.e., song embodied within a master), or both. [Note - this certification can be one statement covering all specified masters, and one statement covering all specified compositions; it doesn't have to be repeated for each individual work, as do items #2-4].

Napster Copyright Policy

Napster is an integrated browser and communications system provided by Napster, Inc., to enable musicians and music fans to locate bands and music available in the MP3 and WMA music formats. The MP3 and WMA files that you locate using Napster are not stored on Napster's servers. Napster users decide what content to make available to others using the Napster browser, and what content to download. Napster utilizes file name filtering technology within the limits of the Napster architecture in order to attempt to prevent access to material that copyright owners specifically request not be made available for sharing through Napster.

Napster respects the prerogatives of copyright owners to control commercial uses of their material, and expects our users to do the same. Users are responsible for complying with all federal and state laws applicable to the content Napster makes available, including copyright laws. Unauthorized copying, distribution, modification, public display, or public performance of copyrighted works may be an infringement of the copyright holders' rights in certain circumstances.

Napster users should be aware that some MP3 and WMA files may have been created or distributed without the authorization of the copyright owner or as authorized by law. As a condition to your account with Napster, you agree that you will not use the Napster service to infringe the copyrights or other intellectual property rights of others in any way. Napster reserves the right to terminate the account of a user and to block use of the Napster service permanently in appropriate circumstances upon any single infringement of the rights of others in conjunction with use of the Napster service; or for those users identified as repeat infringers; or if Napster believes the user's conduct is harmful to the interests of Napster, its affiliates, or other users; or for any other reason in Napster's sole discretion, with or without cause. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, Napster will terminate any user whom it determines is intentionally attempting to evade Napster's mechanism for excluding (from the Napster file index) file names identified as containing unauthorized materials, including evasion by repeatedly encoding or otherwise obfuscating filenames or posting methods of evasion to Napster forums.

In the case of sound recording rights: the name of the featured recording artist performing each song. In the case of musical composition rights: the name of the composer, and, if possible, in order to further assist in identifying files, the name of the recording artist (since most Napster users do not list the composer in file names that they share).
The title of each song. [Album title will not suffice].
One or more filename(s) containing the work as found on the Napster system.
Your street or mailing address, telephone number, and email address so that we may contact you.
To expedite processing of your request, we suggest that you do the following: Send the foregoing electronically via an email message to notification@napster.com. To the email attach an Excel spreadsheet or a delimited text file with items #2-4. Ideally, the first column will be the Artist, the second column will be the Title, and the third column will be a file name as found in the Napster index corresponding to the Artist & Title. In the case of composition rights, please add an additional column for the composer.

Once you supply us with the foregoing information for each of the songs you want blocked, we will act to disable access to that file name(s) and to other file names that contain the song title and the performer's (and/or composer's) name. We encourage you to supply us with any other file names and reasonable variations used to identify artists and titles that you believe embody your works in the Napster index, so that we may be as successful as possible in blocking such variations

Napster users decide what content to make available to others using the Napster browser, and what content to download. Napster utilizes file name filtering technology within the limits of the Napster architecture in order to attempt to prevent access to material that copyright owners specifically request not be made available for sharing through Napster.

Look at how angry twisty is at people screwing up his once sacred freeband, using amplifiers and even calling it a keyfest similiar to a keydown!

As copied from Twistys Column in Sporadic waves

"Gone Crazy? International DX on the eleven meter and free-band is there for the taking just about everyday on sideband. AM is also giving up rare contacts. But one of the better known frequencies for international DX contacts, 27.555 USB, once a jewel of pleasant listening and international contacts, has unfortunately deteriorated rapidly over the last few months, morphing itself into a vile cesspool, spewing forth all it's bile and waste, due to a small, intellectually-challenged, rapid group of angry, self-loathing and pathetic operators who have taken it upon themselves to take up a permanent-like residential status there, and in the process, completely abdicated any civil, polite conversation."

"This small but nefarious group is attempting to jam, interfere, and prevent any DX contacts from being made on frequency. In case you haven't listened in on 555 as of late, the frequency has literally become a key down fest with language that one would be embarrassed to hear in the company of children, while only those blowing ridiculous amounts of power are being heard."

Top-loaded antennas can be lengthened electrically by grabbing 3 or 4 coils and raising them a 1/4" above the other coils, or you can solder more wire in place and rewind it.
The weather cap obviously has some conductive properties and should be cleaned or replaced.
Tuning the antenna to match the defective cap would be foolish.
Forget the S.W.R. meter unless youre using a "electrical 1/2 wave length of coax".
Find a cb shop and use a antenna analyzer for tuning purposes.
I am most saddened that he bought a S/T, i will be glad when Cobra quits selling the "lie".
Find a 25 or 29LTD or GTL, but stay away from the Sound Tracker.....

But Sam, what am I supposed to believe?
Your a liar, your a hypocrite so which post am I or others for that fact supposed to believe? Especially from someone that has had at least 50 plus screen nics in less than a year, which person am I going to think is telling the truth or a lie? Probably none, because you have done nothing but lie for the last 10 months.

Yes, the radio does have weather alert. AND it is unmodified, and 'new', as in never used before but not off a store shelf (my pal got it about $20 from a flea market dealer pal of his)...
Thanks for your helpful replies. I will see about wiring power differently, if the cig. socket is always hot (I wouldn't want him to have his battery drained if he left the rig plugged in overnight)...
As to the antenna, I will keep looking into it, and keep you posted on my progress.
Thanks again, very much-
Linus

You'll have to draw your own conclusions. 8-) Of course anybody who writes for a living would exhibit superior craftsmanship of written prose than the ultimately poor result, an example I provide the link for. A professional writer should be able to punctuate, and use grammatically correct sentence structure while chewing gum at the same time, because it's becomes instinctive with long hours of practice.

People do it all the time. Nothing new to me. Of course there was that time when a buddy and me had to take the wife of another friend up to Toronto to catch a flight to Brazil. Her father was dying in the hospital. The guy couldn't take his wife because he screwed up, didn't renew his I-94 form in time, and the Toronto flight was the quickest one down there that still had seats left. You should have seen the look on the pretty 25 year old women at the immigration desk, on the Canadian side of the bridge, when she asked us for some ID. My buddy at the time pulled out his Federal Investigator Photo ID wallet. She did a classic movie triple take. We were out of there in under 5 minutes with no more questions asked. 8-))

Again No answers from the Strawman. Which is it are any of my post believable or just the ones that fit what you want to say. Richard I guess you are ancient if 40 is old. Do you think I could be 26? how about 31? which is it Landshark which post reveals the truth perhaps I am 55. Hows the

HOW TO WRITE LIKE TWISTEDHED
Lesson One: Obfuscation

Never say anything simply. The whole idea is to try and show off your "intelligence" by using "big" words. Try and imagine how the Queen Of England would say it. Example:

NORMAL SENTENCE: "I said I would"
TWISTI-FIED SENTENCE: "I orated a previous affirmation"

What "score"? I just pointed out your ignorance. You have no clue about copyright laws, since most music copyrights last only a few years. That's why you hear so many familiar songs in rap and on commercials. The Charlie Daniel's tune probably expired over a decade ago. So what do you consider to be a "score", dumbfuck?

Make a bolo out of some guitar wire and a couple fishing weights. Works great and you don't even have to step on anyone's property -- you just have to practice at being a good shot.

A few years......About 90 years for music to come into "public domain".

That's
> why you hear so many familiar songs in rap and on commercials.

Because the OWNERS of the music are PAID to allow use of it for that purpose!
How is it that Michael Jackson OWNS the copyright to almost all of the old Beatles recordings?
HE BOUGHT THEM AT AUCTION!

Landshark does what he despises from others. You havent been anything close to perfect your whole NG life a google search shows this to be true. Awww he gets so tired of hearing about legalities he just has to act like an ass because of it.. hahah Is this guy for real... give him a hankie before he crys some more. Lord knows he never posts anything of value to the NG, and he . He is consumed by a few people in here so he wastes his wholelife searching for posts trying to find the elusive burning gun post. Read some of his postings He has never been a nice person here always arguing telling people he wish they die, he has run the whole gamut Yet crys like a newborn baby when someone acts like he has. Truely sickening but funny.

Why all the hostility? I have no problem with the reposting. All I did

Just had to share this one...

YOU KNOW YOU'RE A REDNECK WHEN:

You take your dog for a walk and you both use the same tree.
You think fast food is hitting a deer at 65 mph.
Your boat has not left the driveway in 15 years.
You come back from the dump with more than you took.
You think a subdivision is part of a math problem.
You know how many bales of hay your car will hold.
You have a rag for a gas cap.
Your lifetime goal is to own a fireworks stand.
You sit on your roof at Christmas time hoping to fill your deer quota.
You have a complete set of salad bowls and they all say Cool Whip.
You use your ironing board as a buffet table.
A tornado hits your neighborhood and does $100,000 worth of improvement.
You missed 5th grade graduation because you had jury duty.
You can yell to your mom, "Hey, Aunt Betty!"
The UFO hotline limits you to one call per day.
You have ever been accused of lying through your tooth.

Brainbuster.

Hello Scott:

Just go pick up a Oct 01 QST at the local Ham Radio Store, this will give ya time to ask em iffins any of these little liners will load up on 11 meters!!!!

Then ya tell em that the ones you seen at the local key down was much bigger! While grabbing a hand full of donuts.

At that point they'll be on your side, and want to help you out. (the door)

Pay for the QST first.

Or I can scan them and send them to ya's if ya needs. And this will save the store employee's nerves.

For one a straight pin in the coax kills the receive in the radio, most people notice this and do not transmit until the problem is found. Second the power these guys are referring to would quickly remove the pin, it would take an ice pick. Third I doubt you live in Florida but if you did you would have a very hard time getting inside their vehicles to plant the ice pick.

Hello Aaron:

I agree, Doc is doing what a lot of other Amateurs are doing, using the Linear Amplifiers for the Ham Bands.

As I have seen at the Keydowns, Swap Meets, Tea Hunts, and Coffee get together, a lot of Hams are using the 4 and 8 pill Linear Amplifiers to get a little more fire in the wire for there old 5, 10, or 20 watt HF Radios.

Also be advised from e-mail I have received info the Messenger M4V will go to and below the 80 meter band, well below the 80 meter band.

The old gaffer down the dirt road a few miles has a new Icom 756 with a X Force 8 pill Linear Amplifier. Says: "On 40, 20, and 15 this thing roars big time, but had to install another alternator"..... We hear the old guy shootin skip on 36 and 38 LSB, once in a while. Keep an ear open for "Old Mountain Man"

Have ah nice day.

Sounds like a succinct conveyance of the current situation to me.. Of course, it should have been, "rabid group of angry....", not rapid... (Diseased, not fast)

Kindof ridiculous that those who want to stop the DX on a non-band are actually making the problem WORSE by their actions...

I've listened to freebanders for years, and that non-band has seriously deteriorated, most likely due to the influences of certain almost-people who seem to think that the ends justify the means... Toss Machiavelli in the closet again, AKC folks.. he was wrong.. and "jamming" 27.555 is MORE against the FCC's rules than just transmitting there on the first place, because not only are you transmitting on a frequency you're not authorized to transmit on, but you are intentionally interfering with other signals... Breaking two rules instead of one. Kindof counterproductive if your goal is to get rid of the "freebanders" in the first place...

It used to be that most freebanders were just as professional on the air as most HF-authorized HAMs. When an emergency situation arised, I remember hearing all transmissions stop except those with emergency traffic... Messages were relayed, phone calls placed, people contacted, etc... Now, while it's agreed that the FCC's rules were broken by those transmitting between 27.405 and 28.000, the job they were doing in these instances was along the lines of the Amateur radio service...

So I guess either some no-code techs are jealous of the freebanders and their professionalism, or some no-code techs have no lives, and have nothing better to do... Either way, the bullshit that's flying around here now is exceedingly counterproductive...

Why should we perpetuate a situation which is mutually nonbenificial to all parties involved?

Everyone notice how when I have proved him wrong all he does is throw out insults and accusations. Amazing!
He posts one thing, then in later posts tries to deny it.

Here's a couple fine post by our friend selling an amp on the cb newsgroup.

You alter ego or buddy whichever makes this statement, you then say that you only give people hard times when they do it first to you. Now I posted proof above and what do you do, try to advert attention away from your wrong doings, by blaming other people.
Classic liar!.

Why Old boy, you are trying to do a classic case of recrimination, how special.
Yes, you come out here spouting illegal amps here, export radio's mods here. Then all of a sudden everyone else is a federal criminal and you are a bed of roses. Well Old chap, I have proven you a hypocrite and liar and all you can do is try to advert attention away from you.
I am consumed by a few people? Not really, just your constant whining, harassing & accusing posts. Do I pick on Aaron, Doug, Taxi Driver, Leland, Jay, Mopar, Twistedhed, Dave H, Ice, RecRadioPolice, Dweebo Spanka, The real Sparky (not since or disagreement on rules not laws) etc etc, so that theory is out So please continue with how I am the problem here. I'll bet you that if I didn't post for one week you would still argue with, Mopar, Train, Dave H, Bill E, Jay and whom ever disagreed with you.

I love this one, haha He we will sell it to you but you had better use it properly. Still see no disclaimer saying these amps are for export only ::wink wink::

Pricing

3 year warranty on parts & labor when returned to the factory for repair
1 year warranty on tubes (tube manufacturers warranty)
It is the users responsibility to operate this and all amplifiers in a legal manner.

Well what if I am growing(homebrewing) it Tim, is it still considered a drug (amp), am I allowed to export the seeds (pills) to anyone in another country.
Seriously Tim, If it is illegal to manufacture an amp, which it is, then how could you build one to sell out of the country. Ok so you may say well I bought the amp of someone else who made it. Bingo again it is illegal to sell an amp in the USA so now it is illegal for you to buy this amp from this same person in the USA. The best part of all this Tim, You know he is full of shit when he says this but you Keyclowns will look for any loophole real or imaginary, to try and accomplish the goal

Hahahahahahaha...

I DID !!

Hahahahahahaha...

I e-mailed Frank "Sparky" Gilliland at the e-m he gave last time he was on here. The same e-mail that is still on his web site.
Oh, and the same e-mail address that I used last time I e-mailed him, and he replied to that other e-mail.
Oh dear, did you expect me to use the e-mail you give, and ask "is that really you, Frank"? Hahahahaha.

So will the real Frank "Sparky" Gilliland please stand up.

And if that is you, then you will know what the original e-mail was about, and what your reply was. You will also know about the latest e-mail I sent, and how that is linked to your e-mail to me.
In fact, if you are that person, you could e-mail your response direct to the address you used last time.

If not, the please stop pretending to be someone you are not.

So if you're not Frank, then who could you be?

Well, you avoided the issue, you made false accusations, you obviously got personally angry about a post referring to "Voobner", you did plenty of whining, and you used offensive language....
That rather reminds me of someone.

> Too simple, huh?

No more than it is for you to check your mail, if you are who you claim to be.

Hahahaha....

I am waiting....

> <BS snipped>

And as for your last, rather offensive suggestion (Obviously an attempt to silence the truth)...
NO.

I have e-mailed "Sparky" at the same e-mail I used last time I e-mailed him.
If this is the same "Sparky", then he will know about it.

He is making false accusations about the type of equipment I use on CB.
Doesn't that sound like someone else on this ng?

Notice another false accusation, this so called "Sparky" really sounds more like someone else on this ng.

> "Certainly. Matter of fact, you mocked brainbuster several times in

You hit the nail on the head here.
I have never had arguments with Frank "Sparky" Gilliland, and in fact received an e-mail from him. There is only one person on this ng that gives me this kind of attitude... but I know it's not personal, he has the same contempt for all other people.

> Now fuck off.
> "Can that be considered a mock?"

An attempt to silence those who disagree.
What a Hypocrite.

I still do not believe that this is the "Sparky" that was using this group before. But if it is, then he will be able to answer my questions, and e-mail me direct at the address I gave him some time back.
If he can't give real answers, then I will assume that he is the same troll that I blocked last week, just using another posting host.

We will have to see...

Hi Leland,

Imagine that there was a CBer running illegal equipment near you. This guy was knocking out every TV in the area, but his antenna was not easily seen. So all the offended neighbors, seeing your big antenna, decide that YOU must be to blame. So in the night, someone cuts your coax into small pieces, and destroys your antenna.
Would that be the price you pay for being "famous" locally because your antenna was so big?

I feel sure that you believe, as I do, that the guilty should be punished, and the innocent should not be made to suffer for what they didn't do.

Regards,

Brainbuster.

I monitor the freeband from time to time. I see more professionalism exhibited by a couple of kids fighting over a toy compared to what I have heard there. When it gets to the point where people dare each other to meet someplace, and the dials all go to the right on the amplifiers I tune out. If I want to hear a good fight I tune in to a hockey game. At least they get paid for slamming people around. Go Red Wings.

I don't think so. Not everybody on this group, with a Ham ticket, is a No Code Tech. We'll all here for one reason or another, but I seriously doubt it is for the reason you suggested. For me I can guarantee the above is not the reason.

Would anyone have any experience with the performance of this antenna?
http://www.4cbradio.com/ant-president-base1.htm

Anyone have any links to other technical info?

I don't know how long this dish has been available, but this is the only online reference for this particular model that I can find.
I assume it's directional, since it's stated that it has a mount on the rear side.

Thanks in advance

Bwaaaawwawawa Hook Line And Sinker, This is definatly getting better by the post, hahaha go look up the specs of the amp I posted you numb nutz I posted that in an effort to get the Anti's to bite I dug it up on this web page http://www.manitousys.com/Pages/rf_generator.html. Haha Instead you are the one who bit big time only 7 months later hahahaha researching every post I ever made and trying to twist it to fit. Go take a look fag boy. I guess If I had a plasma cutter for sale It would be illegal. Haha the only thing illegal is the stuff you do with the Tv-Ts you meet on the internet.He keep digging I will pay you $500 dollars for just one post with my IP address on it from mibx, cotse or any of the others you claim. This out to keep you busy for a while. Just answer one question before I go, If I am such a liar why do you believe some of my posts and not others?

http://www.manitousys.com/Pages/rf_generator.html
Series HPG RF Generators (27.12 - 60 MHz)

The HPG series are typically used for high power applications. Their hybrid design (solid state driver/ vacuum tube final amplifier) is designed to drive CO2 laser cutting and welding systems and very high power plasma processes including sputtering and etching.

HPG RF generators are available in the following frequency bands:
13.56 MHz Band
27.12 MHz Band
40.68 MHz Band
60 MHz Band

HPG series General Specifications
All models are constructed in a stand-alone electronics rack enclosure. These high power RF generators are also available with AC Mains input voltages other than 208 VAC upon special order. Specify AC Mains frequency at the time of order placement.

40+ and 40 down are illegal to transmit on. Please check the FCC rules.

Federal Communications Commission (FCC)

Part 95 - Subpart D - Rules for CB Service
Citizens Band (CB) Radio Service

General Provisions-

[RULE 1] Description
[RULE 2] Usage of Rules
[RULE 3] Who is Eligible
[RULE 4] Licenses
[RULE 5] Areas Of Legal Operation
[RULE 6] Special Restrictions
[RULE 7] Operating Channels/Frequencies
[RULE 8] Antenna Height
[RULE 9] Equipment
[RULE 10] Power Output
[RULE 11] Linear Amplifiers
[RULE 12] Permitted Communication
[RULE 13] Illegal Communication
[RULE 14] Paying for Actual Use
[RULE 15] Who Is Held Accountable
[RULE 16] Time Limit of Transmissions
[RULE 17] Identification Methods
[RULE 18] Emergency Usage and Assisting Travelers
[RULE 19] Remote Control Operations
[RULE 20] Telephone Patches and Telephony with CB
[RULE 21] Penalties
[RULE 22] Correspondence from FCC
[RULE 23] Notice of Interference
[RULE 24] Service to Transmitters and Antennas
[RULE 25] Modifications to Transmitters
[RULE 26] FCC Inspections
[RULE 27] Keeping Station Records
[RULE 28] Contacting the FCC

RULE 1 - Descriptions The Citizens Band Radio Service (CB) is a private, two-way, short-distance voice communications service for personal or business activities. The CB Radio Service may also be used for voice paging.
RULE 2 - Usage of Rules You must comply with these rules when you operate a station in the CB Service from:
{1} Within or over the territorial limits of places where radio services are regulated by the FCC.
{2} Aboard any vessel or aircraft registered in the United States or
{3} Aboard any unregistered vessel or aircraft owned or operated by a United States citizen or company.
Your CB must comply with Part 95/Subpart E [Technical Rules].
Where the rules use the word "you", "you" means a person operating a CB station. Where the rules use the word "person" the rules are concerned with an individual, a corporation, a partnership, an association, a joint stock company, a trust, a state, territorial or local government unit, or other legal entity. Where the rules use the term "CB station", that means a radio station transmitting in the CB Radio Service.
RULE 3 - Eligibility To Use CB You are authorized to operate a CB station unless:
{A} You are a foreign government, a representative of a foreign government, or a federal government agency.
or
{B} The FCC has issued a cease and desist order to you, and the order is still in effect.
RULE 4 - Licenses You do not need an individual license to operate a CB station. You are authorized by this rule to operate your CB station in accordance with the rules stated in this Subpart. (*also read Rule 17)
RULE 5 - Areas of Legal Operation You are authorized to operate your CB station from:
{A} Within or over any area of the world where radio services are regulated by the FCC. Those areas are:
[1] The 50 United States
[2] The District Of Columbia
[3] Commonwealth of Puerto Rico
[4] Navassa Island
[5] United States Virgin Islands, it's 50 islets and cays
[6] American Samoa
[7] Baker Island
[8] Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands
[9] Guam Island
[10] Howland Island
[11] Jarvis Islan
[12] Johnston Island
[13] Kingman Reef
[14] Midway Island
[15] Palmyra Island, and it's 50+ islets
[16] Wake Island
{B} Any area of the world, except, within the territorial limits of areas where radio services are regulated by -

[1] An agency of the United States other than the FCC, you are subject to it's rules.
[2] Any foreign government, you are subject to it's rules.
{C} An aircraft or ship, with the permission of the captain, within or over any area of the world where radio services are regulated by the FCC or upon or over international waters. You must operate your CB station according to any applicable treaty to which the United States is a party.
RULE 6 - Special Restrictions
{A} If your CB station is located on premises controlled by the Department of Defense you may be required to comply with additional regulations imposed by the commanding officer of the installation.
{B} If your CB station will be constructed on land of environmental or historical importance (such as a location significant in American history, architecture or culture), you may be required to provide information to comply with Part 1.1305 through 1.1319 of the FCC Rules.
RULE 7 - Operating Channels/Frequencies Your CB station may transmit only on the following channels / frequencies:

Channel	Frequency	Channel	Frequency
1	26.965	21	27.215
2	26.975	22	27.225
3	26.985	23	27.255
4	27.005	24	27.235
5	27.015	25	27.245
6	27.025	26	27.265
7	27.035	27	27.275
8	27.055	28	27.285
9*	27.065	29	27.295
10	27.075	30	27.305
11	27.085	31	27.315
12	27.105	32	27.325
13	27.115	33	27.335
14	27.125	34	27.345
15	27.135	35	27.355
16	27.155	36	27.365
17	27.165	37	27.375
18	27.175	38	27.385
19	27.185	39	27.395
20	27.205	40	27.405

{B} * Channel 9 may be used ONLY for emergency communications OR for traveler assistance.
{C} You must, at all times and on ALL channels, give priority to emergency communication messages concerning the immediate safety of life or the immediate protection of property.
{D} You may use ANY channel for emergency communications or for traveler assistance.
{E} You must share each channel with other users.

{F} The FCC will not assign any channel for the private or exclusive use of any particular CB station or group of stations.
{G} The FCC will not assign any channel for the private or exclusive use of CB stations transmitting single sideband or AM.
RULE 8 - Antenna Height
{A} "Antenna" means the radiating system (for transmitting, receiving or both) and the structure holding it up (tower, pole or mast). It also means everything else attached to the radiating system and the structure.
{B} If your antenna is mounted on a hand-held portable unit, none of the following limitations apply;
{C} If your antenna is installed at a fixed location (whether receiving, transmitting or both) it must comply with EITHER one of the following:
[1] The highest point must not be more than 20 feet (6.10 meters) higher than the highest point of the building or tree on which it is mounted;
or
[2] The highest point must not be more than 60 feet (18.3 meters) above the ground.
{D} If your CB station is located near an airport, and if your antenna structure is more than 20 feet (6.10 meters) high, you may have to obey additional restrictions. The highest point of your antenna must not exceed 39.37 inches (1 meter) above the airport elevation for every 109.36 yards (100 meters, 1 hectometer) of distance from the nearest point of the nearest airport runway. Differences in ground elevation between your antenna and the airport runway may complicate this formula. If your CB station is near an airport, you may contact the nearest FCC field office for a worksheet to help you figure the maximum allowable height for your antenna.
WARNING: Installation and removal of CB station antennas near powerlines is dangerous. For your safety follow the installation directions included with your antenna.
RULE 9 - Equipment
{A} You must use an FCC type accepted CB transmitter at your CB station. You can identify an FCC type accepted transmitter by the 'type acceptance'label placed on it by the manufacturer. You may examine a list of type-accepted equipment at any FCC Field Office or at FCC Headquarters. Use of a transmitter which is not FCC type-accepted voids your authority to operate the station.
{B} You must not make, or have made, any internal modifications to a type-accepted CB transmitter. (*read Rule 25) Any internal modification to a type-accepted CB transmitter cancels the type-acceptance, and use of such a transmitter voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 10 - Power Output
{A} Your CB station transmitter power output must not exceed the following values under any conditions:
AM [Amplitude Modulation] - 4 watts carrier power [CP]
SSB [Single Side-Band] - 12 watts peak envelope power [PEP]

{B} If you need more information about the power rule, see Part 95/ Subpart E.
{C} Use of a transmitter which has carrier [CP] or peak envelope power [PEP]in excess of that authorized voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 11 - Linear Amplifiers
{A} You may not attach the following items (power amplifiers) to your type-accepted CB transmitter in any way:
[1] External radio frequency [RF] power amplifiers, also called linear amplifiers, or linears;
or
[2] Any other devices which, when used with a radio transmitter as a signal source, are capable of amplifying the signal.
{B} There are no exceptions to this rule and use of a power amplifier voids your authority to operate the station.
{C} The FCC will presume you have used a linear or other external [RF] power amplifier if-
[1] It is in your possession or on your premises; and
[2] There is OTHER EVIDENCE that you have operated your CB station with more power than allowed by CB Rule 10.
{D} Paragraph C above in this section does not apply if you hold a license in another radio service (HAM, etc.) which allows you to operate an external RF power amplifier.
RULE 12 - Permitted Communications {A} You may use your CB station to transmit two-way plain language communications. Two-way plain language communications are communications without codes or coded messages. Operating signals such as "ten codes" (10-4, etc.) are not considered codes or coded messages. You may transmit two-way plain language communications only to other CB stations, to units of your own CB station, or to authorized government stations on CB frequencies about-
[1] Your personal or business activities, or those of members of your immediate family living in your household;
[2] Emergencies;
[3] Traveler assistance;
[4] Civil Defense activities in connection with official tests or drills conducted by, or actual emergencies announced by, the Civil Defense Agency with authority over the area in which your station is located.
{B} You may use your CB station to transmit a TONE SIGNAL only when the signal is used to make contact, or to continue communications (Examples: tone operated squelch, selective calling circuits). If the signal is an audible tone, it must last no longer than 15 seconds at one time. If the signal is a subaudible tone, it may be transmitted continuously only as long as you are talking.
{C} You may use your CB station to transmit one-way communications (messages not intended for two or more CB stations) only for emergency communications, traveler assistance, brief tests (radio checks) or voice paging.
RULE 13 - Illegal Communications {A} You must NOT use a CB station-[1] in connection with activity which is against federal, state or local law;

[2] to transmit obscene, indecent or profane words, language or meaning;
[3] to interfere intentionally with the communications of another CB station;
[4] to transmit one-way communications, EXCEPT for emergency communications, traveler assistance, brief tests (radio checks) or voice paging;
[5] to advertise or solicit the sale of any goods or services;
[6] to transmit music, whistling, sound effects or any material to amuse or entertain;
[7] to transmit any sound effect solely to attract attention;
[8] to transmit the word "MAYDAY" or use any other international distress signal, EXCEPT when your station is located in a ship, aircraft or other vehicle which is threatened with GRAVE AND IMMINENT danger and you are requesting IMMEDIATE assistance.
[9] to communicate with, or ATTEMPT to communicate with, any CB station more than 155.3 miles (250 kilometers) away;
[10] to advertise a political candidate or political campaign (You may use your CB radio for the business or organizational aspects of a campaign, if you follow all other applicable rules);
[11] to communicate with stations in other countries, except stations in Canada (on General Radio Service).
[12] to transmit a false or deceptive communication.
{B} You must not use a CB station to transmit communications intended for live or delayed rebroadcast on radio or television. You may use your CB station to gather news items or to prepare programs.
RULE 14 - Paying for Actual Use {A} You may not accept direct or indirect payment for transmitting with a CB station.
{B} You may use a CB station to help you provide a service, and be paid for that service, as long as you are paid only for the service and not for the actual use of the CB station.
RULE 15 - Who Is Held Accountable You are responsible for all communications which are made BY YOU from a CB station.
RULE 16 - Time Limit of Transmissions {A} You must limit your CB communications to the minimum practical time.
{B} If you are communicating with another CB station or stations, you, and the stations communicating with you, must limit each of your conversations to no more than five (5) continuous minutes.
{C} At the end of your conversation, you, and the stations communicating with you, must not transmit again for at least one minute.
RULE 17 - Identification Methods {A} You need NOT identify your CB communications...
{B} You are ENCOURAGED to identify your CB communications by any of the following means:
[1] Previously assigned FCC CB call sign
[2] K prefix followed by operators initials and residence zip code
[3] Your name;
or

[4] Description of your organization including name and any applicable operator unit number
{C} You are encouraged to use a "handle" (nickname) ONLY IN CONJUNCTION WITH the methods of identification listed above in paragraph B of this section.
RULE 18 - Emergency Usage and Assisting Travelers {A} You must at all times and on all channels, give priority to emergency communications.
{B} When you are directly participating in emergency communications, you do not have to comply with Rule 16 about length of transmissions. You must obey all other rules.
{C} You may use your CB station for communications necessary to assist a traveler to REACH A DESTINATION or to RECEIVE NECESSARY SERVICES. When you are using your CB station to assist a traveler, you do not have to obey Rule 16 about the length of transmissions. You must obey all other rules.
RULE 19 - Remote Control Operations {A} You MAY NOT operate a CB station transmitter by RADIO remote control.
{B} You MAY operate a CB transmitter by WIRELINE remote control IF you obtain specific approval in writing from the FCC. To obtain FCC approval you must show why you need to operate your station by wireline remote control. Send your request and justification to: FCC, Gettysburg, PA 17325.
If you receive FCC approval, you must keep the approval as part of your station records (read Rule 27 on station records).
RULE 20 - Telephone Patches and Telephony with CB {A} You MAY connect your CB station transmitter to a telephone if you comply with ALL of the following:
[1] You or someone else must be present at your CB station and MUST-
(i) manually make the connection (the connection cannot be made by remote control);
(ii) supervise the operation of the transmitter during the connection;
(iii) listen to each communication during the connection; and
(iv) stop all communications if there are operations in violation of these rules.
[2] Each communication during the telephone connection must comply with all of these rules.
[3] You must obey any restriction that the telephone company places on the connection of a CB transmitter to a telephone.
{B} The CB transmitter you connect to a telephone must not be shared with any other CB station.
{C} If you connect your CB transmitter to a telephone, you must use a phone patch device which has been registered with the FCC.
RULE 21 - Penalties may not be current penalty information. {A} If the FCC finds that you have WILLFULLY or REPEATEDLY violated the Communications Act or FCC Rules, you may have to pay as much as $2,000 for each violation, up to a total of $5,000.
{B} If the FCC finds that you have violated any section of the Communications Act or FCC Rules, you may be ordered to stop whatever action caused the violation.
{C} If a federal court finds that you have WILLFULLY and KNOWINGLY

violated any FCC Rule, you may be fined up to $500 for each day you committed the violation.
{D} If a federal court finds that you have WILLFULLY and KNOWINGLY violated any provision of the Communications Act, you may be fined up to $10,000 or may be imprisoned for one year, or both.
RULE 22 - Correspondence from FCC {A} If it appears to the FCC that you have violated the Communications Act or these rules, the FCC may send you a discrepancy notice.
{B} Within the time period stated in the notice, you must answer with:
[1] A complete written statement about the apparent discrepancy;
[2] A complete written statement about any action you have taken to correct the apparent violation and to prevent it from happening again; and
[3] The name of the person operating at the time of the apparent violation.
{C} If the FCC sends you a letter asking you questions about your CB radio station or its operation, you must answer each of the questions with a complete written statement within the time period stated in the letter.
{D} You must not shorten your answer by references to other communications or notices.
{E} You must send your answer to the FCC office which sent you the notice.
{F} You must keep a copy of your answer in your station records.
RULE 23 - Notice of Interference {A} If the FCC tells you that your CB station is causing interference due to technical reasons, you must follow all instructions in the official FCC notice (This notice may require you to have technical adjustments made to your equipment).
{B} You must comply with any restricted hours of CB station operation which may be included in the official notice.

RULE 24 - Service to Transmitters and Antennas {A} You may adjust an antenna to your CB transmitter and you may make radio checks (One-way transmissions for a short time in order to test the transmitter).
{B} Each internal repair and each internal adjustment to your FCC type-accepted CB transmitter must be made BY or under the DIRECT SUPERVISION of a person licensed by the FCC as a GENERAL RADIOTELEPHONE OPERATOR.
{C} Except as provided in paragraph D below in this section, each internal repair and each internal adjustment of a CB transmitter in which signals are transmitted must be made using a NON-RADIATING antenna (Dummy Load).
{D} Brief test signals (signals not longer than one minute during any five minute period) using a radiating antenna may be transmitted in order to:
[1] adjust an antenna to a transmitter;
[2] detect or measure radiation of energy other than the intended signal;
or
[3] tune a receiver to your CB transmitter.

RULE 25 - Modifications to Transmitters {A} You must not make or have any one else make any internal modification to your CB transmitter.
{B} Internal modification does NOT include:
[1] Repair, or servicing of a CB station transmitter; or
[2] Changing plug-in modules which were type-accepted as part of your CB transmitter
{C} You must not operate a CB transmitter which has been modified by anyone in any way, including modification to operate on unauthorized frequencies or with illegal power.
RULE 26 - FCC Inspections {A} If an authorized FCC representative requests to inspect your CB station, you must make your CB station and records available for inspection.
{B} A CB station includes all of the radio equipment you use.
RULE 27 - Keeping Station Records Your station records include the following documents, as applicable: [1] A copy of each response to an FCC violation notice or an FCC letter.
[2] Each written permission received from the FCC.
RULE 28 - Contacting the FCC {A} Write to your nearest FCC Field Office to: [1] Report an interference complaint; or [2] want to know if the FCC has type-accepted a particular transmitter for CB service.
{B} Write to the FCC if you have questions about the CB Rules: FCC Private Radio Bureau Personal Radio Branch Washington, DC 20554

Well which is it my alter ego or my Buddy ? Remember you know it all. You have posted no proof of anything other than your opinion your "proof" is 1 part of a story, now after the fact you want to read into what I said and not even post the rest of the thread or previous post between myself and the afformentioned suspect. I can certainly take all your posts with just your side and craft them into many wild stories Landwhale, the best part is what does it matter i certainly don't care are youafter a Pulitzer Prize? you got the hard on for me and we know why but blame yourself you made the misfortune to transgress into the taboo world of crosdressing and transexual men. Do you think you will find some incriminating evidance against me? keep digging Boy. It keeps you of the Cb radio, and keeps your trash off the airwaves.

I am not giving you anyones call sign on a cb Ng without there permission, and I see little if any reason to do so. Are you completly insane ? I wouldnt even do that to you Landwhale! Yet you say everything of what I said in previous statements are true? But this one is not which is it today

Hey Genocide, time again to trot out all the lame-o excuses of why you run ham gear on cb.

Sure, it's legal cuz you're a ham. (wrong)
Sure, it's legal in Uzbekistan. (wrong)
Sure, the Constitution allows it. (wrong)
Sure, you just use it to listen. (a lie)

For further details, check out the FCC rules:

[RULE 24] Service to Transmitters and Antennas
[RULE 25] Modifications to Transmitters
[RULE 26] FCC Inspections
[RULE 27] Keeping Station Records
[RULE 28] Contacting the FCC

RULE 1 - Descriptions The Citizens Band Radio Service (CB) is a private, two-way, short-distance voice communications service for personal or business activities. The CB Radio Service may also be used for voice paging.
RULE 2 - Usage of Rules You must comply with these rules when you operate a station in the CB Service from:
{1} Within or over the territorial limits of places where radio services are regulated by the FCC.
{2} Aboard any vessel or aircraft registered in the United States or
{3} Aboard any unregistered vessel or aircraft owned or operated by a United States citizen or company.
Your CB must comply with Part 95/Subpart E [Technical Rules].
Where the rules use the word "you", "you" means a person operating a CB station. Where the rules use the word "person" the rules are concerned with an individual, a corporation, a partnership, an association, a joint stock company, a trust, a state, territorial or local government unit, or other legal entity. Where the rules use the term "CB station", that means a radio station transmitting in the CB Radio Service.
RULE 3 - Eligibility To Use CB You are authorized to operate a CB station unless:
{A} You are a foreign government, a representative of a foreign government, or a federal government agency.
or
{B} The FCC has issued a cease and desist order to you, and the order is still in effect.
RULE 4 - Licenses You do not need an individual license to operate a CB station. You are authorized by this rule to operate your CB station in accordance with the rules stated in this Subpart. (*also read Rule 17)
RULE 5 - Areas of Legal Operation You are authorized to operate your CB station from:
{A} Within or over any area of the world where radio services are regulated by the FCC. Those areas are:
[1] The 50 United States
[2] The District Of Columbia
[3] Commonwealth of Puerto Rico
[4] Navassa Island
[5] United States Virgin Islands, it's 50 islets and cays
[6] American Samoa
[7] Baker Island
[8] Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands
[9] Guam Island
[10] Howland Island

[11] Jarvis Islan
[12] Johnston Island
[13] Kingman Reef
[14] Midway Island
[15] Palmyra Island, and it's 50+ islets
[16] Wake Island
{B} Any area of the world, except, within the territorial limits of areas where radio services are regulated by -
[1] An agency of the United States other than the FCC, you are subject to it's rules.
[2] Any foreign government, you are subject to it's rules.
{C} An aircraft or ship, with the permission of the captain, within or over any area of the world where radio services are regulated by the FCC or upon or over international waters. You must operate your CB station according to any applicable treaty to which the United States is a party.
RULE 6 - Special Restrictions
{A} If your CB station is located on premises controlled by the Department of Defense you may be required to comply with additional regulations imposed by the commanding officer of the installation.
{B} If your CB station will be constructed on land of environmental or historical importance (such as a location significant in American history, architecture or culture), you may be required to provide information to comply with Part 1.1305 through 1.1319 of the FCC Rules.
RULE 7 - Operating Channels/Frequencies Your CB station may transmit only on the following channels / frequencies:
Channel Frequency Channel Frequency
1 26.965 21 27.215
2 26.975 22 27.225
3 26.985 23 27.255
4 27.005 24 27.235
5 27.015 25 27.245
6 27.025 26 27.265
7 27.035 27 27.275
8 27.055 28 27.285
9* 27.065 29 27.295
10 27.075 30 27.305
11 27.085 31 27.315
12 27.105 32 27.325
13 27.115 33 27.335
14 27.125 34 27.345
15 27.135 35 27.355
16 27.155 36 27.365
17 27.165 37 27.375
18 27.175 38 27.385
19 27.185 39 27.395
20 27.205 40 27.405

{B} * Channel 9 may be used ONLY for emergency communications OR for traveler assistance.
{C} You must, at all times and on ALL channels, give priority to emergency communication messages concerning the immediate safety of life or the immediate protection of property.
{D} You may use ANY channel for emergency communications or for traveler assistance.
{E} You must share each channel with other users.
{F} The FCC will not assign any channel for the private or exclusive use of any particular CB station or group of stations.
{G} The FCC will not assign any channel for the private or exclusive use of CB stations transmitting single sideband or AM.
RULE 8 - Antenna Height
{A} "Antenna" means the radiating system (for transmitting, receiving or both) and the structure holding it up (tower, pole or mast). It also means everything else attached to the radiating system and the structure.
{B} If your antenna is mounted on a hand-held portable unit, none of the following limitations apply;
{C} If your antenna is installed at a fixed location (whether receiving, transmitting or both) it must comply with EITHER one of the following:
[1] The highest point must not be more than 20 feet (6.10 meters) higher than the highest point of the building or tree on which it is mounted;
or
[2] The highest point must not be more than 60 feet (18.3 meters) above the ground.
{D} If your CB station is located near an airport, and if your antenna structure is more than 20 feet (6.10 meters) high, you may have to obey additional restrictions. The highest point of your antenna must not exceed 39.37 inches (1 meter) above the airport elevation for every 109.36 yards (100 meters, 1 hectometer) of distance from the nearest point of the nearest airport runway. Differences in ground elevation between your antenna and the airport runway may complicate this formula. If your CB station is near an airport, you may contact the nearest FCC field office for a worksheet to help you figure the maximum allowable height for your antenna.
WARNING: Installation and removal of CB station antennas near powerlines is dangerous. For your safety follow the installation directions included with your antenna.
RULE 9 - Equipment
{A} You must use an FCC type accepted CB transmitter at your CB station. You can identify an FCC type accepted transmitter by the 'type acceptance'label placed on it by the manufacturer. You may examine a list of type-accepted equipment at any FCC Field Office or at FCC Headquarters. Use of a transmitter which is not FCC type-accepted voids your authority to operate the station.
{B} You must not make, or have made, any internal modifications to a type-accepted CB transmitter. (*read Rule 25) Any internal modification to a type-accepted CB transmitter cancels the type-acceptance, and use of such a transmitter voids your authority to operate the station.

RULE 10 - Power Output
{A} Your CB station transmitter power output must not exceed the following values under any conditions:
AM [Amplitude Modulation] - 4 watts carrier power [CP]
SSB [Single Side-Band] - 12 watts peak envelope power [PEP]
{B} If you need more information about the power rule, see Part 95/ Subpart E.
{C} Use of a transmitter which has carrier [CP] or peak envelope power [PEP]in excess of that authorized voids your authority to operate the station.
RULE 11 - Linear Amplifiers
{A} You may not attach the following items (power amplifiers) to your type-accepted CB transmitter in any way:
[1] External radio frequency [RF] power amplifiers, also called linear amplifiers, or linears;
or
[2] Any other devices which, when used with a radio transmitter as a signal source, are capable of amplifying the signal.
{B} There are no exceptions to this rule and use of a power amplifier voids your authority to operate the station.
{C} The FCC will presume you have used a linear or other external [RF] power amplifier if-
[1] It is in your possession or on your premises; and
[2] There is OTHER EVIDENCE that you have operated your CB station with more power than allowed by CB Rule 10.
{D} Paragraph C above in this section does not apply if you hold a license in another radio service (HAM, etc.) which allows you to operate an external RF power amplifier.
RULE 12 - Permitted Communications {A} You may use your CB station to transmit two-way plain language communications. Two-way plain language communications are communications without codes or coded messages. Operating signals such as "ten codes" (10-4, etc.) are not considered codes or coded messages. You may transmit two-way plain language communications only to other CB stations, to units of your own CB station, or to authorized government stations on CB frequencies about-
[1] Your personal or business activities, or those of members of your immediate family living in your household;
[2] Emergencies;
[3] Traveler assistance;
[4] Civil Defense activities in connection with official tests or drills conducted by, or actual emergencies announced by, the Civil Defense Agency with authority over the area in which your station is located.
{B} You may use your CB station to transmit a TONE SIGNAL only when the signal is used to make contact, or to continue communications (Examples: tone operated squelch, selective calling circuits). If the signal is an audible tone, it must last no longer than 15 seconds at one time. If the signal is a subaudible tone, it may be transmitted continuously only as long as you are talking.

{C} You may use your CB station to transmit one-way communications (messages not intended for two or more CB stations) only for emergency communications, traveler assistance, brief tests (radio checks) or voice paging.
RULE 13 - Illegal Communications {A} You must NOT use a CB station-
[1] in connection with activity which is against federal, state or local law;
[2] to transmit obscene, indecent or profane words, language or meaning;
[3] to interfere intentionally with the communications of another CB station;
[4] to transmit one-way communications, EXCEPT for emergency communications, traveler assistance, brief tests (radio checks) or voice paging;
[5] to advertise or solicit the sale of any goods or services;
[6] to transmit music, whistling, sound effects or any material to amuse or entertain;
[7] to transmit any sound effect solely to attract attention;
[8] to transmit the word "MAYDAY" or use any other international distress signal, EXCEPT when your station is located in a ship, aircraft or other vehicle which is threatened with GRAVE AND IMMINENT danger and you are requesting IMMEDIATE assistance.
[9] to communicate with, or ATTEMPT to communicate with, any CB station more than 155.3 miles (250 kilometers) away;
[10] to advertise a political candidate or political campaign (You may use your CB radio for the business or organizational aspects of a campaign, if you follow all other applicable rules);
[11] to communicate with stations in other countries, except stations in Canada (on General Radio Service).
[12] to transmit a false or deceptive communication.
{B} You must not use a CB station to transmit communications intended for live or delayed rebroadcast on radio or television. You may use your CB station to gather news items or to prepare programs.
RULE 14 - Paying for Actual Use {A} You may not accept direct or indirect payment for transmitting with a CB station.
{B} You may use a CB station to help you provide a service, and be paid for that service, as long as you are paid only for the service and not for the actual use of the CB station.
RULE 15 - Who Is Held Accountable You are responsible for all communications which are made BY YOU from a CB station.
RULE 16 - Time Limit of Transmissions {A} You must limit your CB communications to the minimum practical time.
{B} If you are communicating with another CB station or stations, you, and the stations communicating with you, must limit each of your conversations to no more than five (5) continuous minutes.
{C} At the end of your conversation, you, and the stations communicating with you, must not transmit again for at least one minute.
RULE 17 - Identification Methods {A} You need NOT identify your CB communications...

{B} You are ENCOURAGED to identify your CB communications by any of the following means:
[1] Previously assigned FCC CB call sign
[2] K prefix followed by operators initials and residence zip code
[3] Your name;
or
[4] Description of your organization including name and any applicable operator unit number
{C} You are encouraged to use a "handle" (nickname) ONLY IN CONJUNCTION WITH the methods of identification listed above in paragraph B of this section.
RULE 18 - Emergency Usage and Assisting Travelers {A} You must at all times and on all channels, give priority to emergency communications.
{B} When you are directly participating in emergency communications, you do not have to comply with Rule 16 about length of transmissions. You must obey all other rules.
{C} You may use your CB station for communications necessary to assist a traveler to REACH A DESTINATION or to RECEIVE NECESSARY SERVICES. When you are using your CB station to assist a traveler, you do not have to obey Rule 16 about the length of transmissions. You must obey all other rules.
RULE 19 - Remote Control Operations {A} You MAY NOT operate a CB station transmitter by RADIO remote control.
{B} You MAY operate a CB transmitter by WIRELINE remote control IF you obtain specific approval in writing from the FCC. To obtain FCC approval you must show why you need to operate your station by wireline remote control. Send your request and justification to: FCC, Gettysburg, PA 17325.
If you receive FCC approval, you must keep the approval as part of your station records (read Rule 27 on station records).
RULE 20 - Telephone Patches and Telephony with CB {A} You MAY connect your CB station transmitter to a telephone if you comply with ALL of the following:
[1] You or someone else must be present at your CB station and MUST-
(i) manually make the connection (the connection cannot be made by remote control);
(ii) supervise the operation of the transmitter during the connection;
(iii) listen to each communication during the connection; and
(iv) stop all communications if there are operations in violation of these rules.
[2] Each communication during the telephone connection must comply with all of these rules.
[3] You must obey any restriction that the telephone company places on the connection of a CB transmitter to a telephone.
{B} The CB transmitter you connect to a telephone must not be shared with any other CB station.
{C} If you connect your CB transmitter to a telephone, you must use a phone patch device which has been registered with the FCC.
RULE 21 - Penalties may not be current penalty information. {A} If the FCC finds that you have WILLFULLY or REPEATEDLY violated the Communications Act or FCC Rules, you may have to pay as much as $2,000 for each violation, up to a total of $5,000.

{B} If the FCC finds that you have violated any section of the Communications Act or FCC Rules, you may be ordered to stop whatever action caused the violation.
{C} If a federal court finds that you have WILLFULLY and KNOWINGLY violated any FCC Rule, you may be fined up to $500 for each day you committed the violation.
{D} If a federal court finds that you have WILLFULLY and KNOWINGLY violated any provision of the Communications Act, you may be fined up to $10,000 or may be imprisoned for one year, or both.
RULE 22 - Correspondence from FCC {A} If it appears to the FCC that you have violated the Communications Act or these rules, the FCC may send you a discrepancy notice.
{B} Within the time period stated in the notice, you must answer with:
[1] A complete written statement about the apparent discrepancy;
[2] A complete written statement about any action you have taken to correct the apparent violation and to prevent it from happening again; and
[3] The name of the person operating at the time of the apparent violation.
{C} If the FCC sends you a letter asking you questions about your CB radio station or its operation, you must answer each of the questions with a complete written statement within the time period stated in the letter.
{D} You must not shorten your answer by references to other communications or notices.
{E} You must send your answer to the FCC office which sent you the notice.
{F} You must keep a copy of your answer in your station records.
RULE 23 - Notice of Interference {A} If the FCC tells you that your CB station is causing interference due to technical reasons, you must follow all instructions in the official FCC notice (This notice may require you to have technical adjustments made to your equipment).
{B} You must comply with any restricted hours of CB station operation which may be included in the official notice.

RULE 24 - Service to Transmitters and Antennas {A} You may adjust an antenna to your CB transmitter and you may make radio checks (One-way transmissions for a short time in order to test the transmitter).
{B} Each internal repair and each internal adjustment to your FCC type-accepted CB transmitter must be made BY or under the DIRECT SUPERVISION of a person licensed by the FCC as a GENERAL RADIOTELEPHONE OPERATOR.
{C} Except as provided in paragraph D below in this section, each internal repair and each internal adjustment of a CB transmitter in which signals are transmitted must be made using a NON-RADIATING antenna (Dummy Load).
{D} Brief test signals (signals not longer than one minute during any five minute period) using a radiating antenna may be transmitted in order to:

[1] adjust an antenna to a transmitter;
[2] detect or measure radiation of energy other than the intended signal;
or
[3] tune a receiver to your CB transmitter.
RULE 25 - Modifications to Transmitters {A} You must not make or have any one else make any internal modification to your CB transmitter.
{B} Internal modification does NOT include:
[1] Repair, or servicing of a CB station transmitter; or
[2] Changing plug-in modules which were type-accepted as part of your CB transmitter
{C} You must not operate a CB transmitter which has been modified by anyone in any way, including modification to operate on unauthorized frequencies or with illegal power.
RULE 26 - FCC Inspections {A} If an authorized FCC representative requests to inspect your CB station, you must make your CB station and records available for inspection.
{B} A CB station includes all of the radio equipment you use.
RULE 27 - Keeping Station Records Your station records include the following documents, as applicable: [1] A copy of each response to an FCC violation notice or an FCC letter.
[2] Each written permission received from the FCC.
RULE 28 - Contacting the FCC {A} Write to your nearest FCC Field Office to: [1] Report an interference complaint; or [2] want to know if the FCC has type-accepted a particular transmitter for CB service.
{B} Write to the FCC if you have questions about the CB Rules: FCC Private Radio Bureau Personal Radio Branch Washington, DC 20554

Hi Doug,
I said show me the header, that's all. If it shows that it came from my terminal, then I'll have a time and date that it took place. Pretty simple, even for you Doug.
If I was trying to do those thing, why did it only happen, 3 or 5 times, I don't know, I didn't make those posts. You can understand, that if I leave a terminal up, without password in affect, anybody, like you could go on line and start those post, walk away and unless I saved my outgoing mail, I wouldn't know it.
But you three keep dreaming about it, you have nothing better to do.

I would highly suggest that you save your money and buy a regular antenna.

First of all looking at the spec's the diameter is way to small for a true parabolic antenna, it's only 0.42 meters (16.54 inches) across. For 11m the antenna would need to be at least several wavelengths across, or more like 100 meters or larger.

Second the weight must be a misprint. At 1,100 kg (a little over 1 metric ton) that works out to be 2,425 pounds! Maybe 1,100 grams but not kilograms.

Third without special tricks, and or excessive losses, most antennas don't have a SWR bandwidth range (at H.F. that would be 2:1 and at VHF that would be 1.5:1) that exceeds around 2 to 3 percent of their operating frequency. For 27MHz at 3 percent that works out to be 810 Khz. The spec claims 1200Khz at nearly a 1:1 SWR bandwidth range.

Finally the claim is it's a "halfwave" antenna. Well a half wave on the CB band is half of 11 meters, or 5.5 meters (18 feet). Not even close to the stated diameter of 420mm (0.42 meters).

What looks like has happen is somebody screwed up and got the specs mixed up with some other antenna. This one looks like a simple satellite TV dish without the down converter antenna combo.

Hi all....

This is a NO BS NO SCAM DEAL....AND IT IS FOR HAMS ONLY!

My company is 20 years old and we sell computer parts and Microsoft products at wholesale to re-sellers. There is an even chance you have a product from Amax
if you patronize your local computer shop.

I am a salesman for Amax and I am offering to sell either built systems or components to hams at the price we sell them in quantity 50 lots to resellers.
This is for real, and so am I.
I am offering this not to make money but as a way to repay the ham community for the TONS of help I have gotten since I got in this hobby.

Go to www.amax.com and check out the stuff there....

Then call me in the Chicago office at 888-810-2629. I am at extension 106.

Our Illinois location has some pricing at http://people.ce.mediaone.net/amaxil but it is kinda old pricing. You can call me for deals, but an email
to Doug_Adair@amax.com is best.

Yes, but boy, you are fast Helmut, I mean Jack, I mean, well we leave it at that. I attempted to play, but, I failed, dammmmmmmm.

Hi Jack, etc.....
Well you were right on it's me, but you will be wrong on the future.It was a very feeble attempt, and I never was any good at those types of things. I don't own a modem, strictly DSL, so I can't go calling in on other accounts that I don't have.
No, I'm sorry it is the first, again, I'm not very good this anonymity crap. I haven't had any reason to hide :^)

Well, the Landshark has always had a very inflammatory presence out here. It's been going on for at least two years now. He fights with everyone who even hints at opposing him in any way. It's a shame... because I think he is somewhat knowledgable in many aspects of this hobby. I keep hoping he will grow up and rise to his full potential...

I'll tell you Joey, he made the mistake is a big no-no, but you in you gutless wisdom don't know how much info we're losing by not

Craig so lets get this straight you said you were the ham and could use the amp, You post with your name so a simple check of the FCC database shows nothing not even close. You either lied that you have a license or your lieing about your name. I am pretty sure thats your name you have used it over and over. I am not the one bragging they have a license that would be you Craig Lowanse. Of course there is no license under no fear that was just an attempt at you of being stupid. Illegal Operator.

Craig my assumptions are based on facts straight from you. You stated last month you don't have a Ham license, you also stated you don't use amps. Both are flat out lies. Based on your statements not mine. Get Lost you have been violated.

From: Craig Lowanse (cat88@helicon.net)
Subject: what's illegal about buying a amp Newsgroups: rec.radio.cb
Date: 2001-08-12 18:52:50 PST

hello, I was curious and called 3 different ham retail stores to try and buy a ameritron amp, not one said I needed a license to purchase the amp, I even stated that I did not have a ham license, they said it is not (illegal to buy a ameritron amp, or for them to sale) it was up to me to use it in a legal way, they said just say you are buying it for a friend or relative, my question is this ,why don't the ham cops or people that do not want amps to get into the hands of cbers go after the big company's that are selling them, or try and get fcc to pass laws prohibiting purchasing a amp with-out a ham license, I do not use a amp or condone it, but I think you should put more energy it the right place.....

Thanks for the reply. It's not a cost issue, I was thinking more along the lines of how compact this design is.. and even if the gain is unity, that would be of little concern.

The disguise feature would also be interesting, as almost anyone that saw it would believe it was a TV receiver dish. Adding a dummy downconverter-looking appendage would convince most.

Yep, the metric system still isn't widely understood in the US, even after all these years.

Hi Bill,

My guess is that it's a slick marketing ploy to get you to buy a "cool" looking antenna that's little more that a dummy load. Hope that helps.

Hello Wild Bill:

This is not a real high performance antenna, for any band. Maybe ok at X-Band for the Parabolic Function of a dish antenna. But I would think the antenna is simi omni directional, and will only take a 100 watts as advertised.

Its a sneaky way to have a CB Antenna in the "Home Owners Association, everyone has the same color house, no old 58 Buicks on their sides, no outside antennas, no sheep or stills on the front lawn, and no other things, other that what we tell you is ok, got it, and more no no no"

I helped a friend put up a I-Max 2000 in his front yard a few months ago. We painted it camouflage green, dark Gary, and some patches of black, boy it looked nut cake camouflage. Had his kid put it up in the tree in the front yard, and also attached the green plant looking leaves and fcomouflage from fake plants that ya can buy.

Then it dawned on us the when the natural leaves fall of the big massive tree in Fall, it will stick out like a sore thumb. So he is going to have the kid attach more fake looking leaves and such. This should be interesting come Oct and Nov this year.

We looked the assembly instruction for the I-Max 2000, and it said nothing about having way to many social cocktails during the installation effort.

I am looking to buy or at least find out the cost of a small bike trailer. I own a Honda 1100f and dont like loading it into the back of my truck. I'm lookinig for a small 1 bike trailer or if anyone knows of a really good ramp thats a lot easier to use than most the others that are out there.

Thanks in advance

I've listened to freebanders for years, and that non-band has seriously deteriorated, most likely due to the influences of certain almost-people who seem to think that the ends justify the means...

Lelnad says: I monitor the freeband from time to time. I see more professionalism exhibited by a couple of kids fighting over a toy compared to what I have heard there. When it gets to the point where people dare each other to meet someplace, and the dials all go to the right on the amplifiers I tune out. If I want to hear a good fight I tune in to a hockey game. At least they get paid for slamming people around. Go Red Wings.

<snip>
Sideband observed:
So I guess either some no-code techs are jealous of the freebanders and their professionalism, or some no-code techs have no lives, and have nothing better to do...

Lelnad lied with:
I don't think so. Not everybody on this group, with a Ham ticket, is a No Code Tech. We'll all here for one reason or another, but I seriously doubt it is for the reason you suggested. For me I can guarantee the above is not the reason.

to see that it didn't take long to snare a veteran on this news group

Hi De Ho Crabby,
First my name is not Mark, it's Jason remember, or was that a lie too? The answer to your question is quite easy:
I had bought a run of it to use at home to try to cut down on the bleed over with a stock, unmodified, doing 4 watts cobra 2000.
Well the neighbor moved out and new ones moved in and low and behold I wasn't bleeding on anything of theirs.
So I had a bunch of LMR 400 lying around, so I decided to use it in my truck (remember you thought I was crazy)
Well guess what, it cut down on spurious rf splattering my stereo and my tach stopped acting like a Mod meter.
So my old , hypocritical friend, there's your answer.
I was still considering using it at home, but wasn't sure if the hassle of lowering the antenna was worth it.

Why Old Fella, you can post what you want, but the facts remains that you were one of the people that was posting from the MIBX account. Now I would like to know what these post have to do with rec.radio.cb?
If I posted these (which I didn't thanks to you Jason :^) they have absolutely no bearing on this newsgroup.But the post that you and others were making from the MIBX account, the flooding, harassing, accusing, insulting posts that was made to THIS newsgroup does have bearing and weight to the group.
So by posting these, all you are doing is proving that you are truly trying to turn the attention away from you, for the posts that you made from the MIBX account, that ruined this groups for months.

Now Old Boy, you know what I have been posting about you is true, you just don't want everyone else to know what a real lying, hypocritical Old Man you are. It's your You were using AOL, then going through MIBX Busted!
You have been accusing all sorts of people of doing illegal, federal crimes, when in itself, you are just as guilty of the same crimes, so please don't whine about illegal, because you are one of the biggest.

Again cornered with truth and all you can do is throw out accusations. Please explain why this group was subjected for months with Harassment, accusation, insults, flooding from MIBX account, which you have been found to post from.

Again relegated to insults and accusations, is that all you have to do in life? You are right about one thing, if this is a lie, then how much of every other post you made is the truth? Interesting..... Probably not to much.

Of course anybody who writes for a living would exhibit superior craftsmanship of written prose than the ultimately poor result, an example I provide the link for.
A professional writer should be able to punctuate, and use grammatically correct sentence structure while chewing gum at the same time, because it's becomes instinctive with long hours of practice.

This is beginning to look like the classic 2-meter repeater conversation between two newly licensed guys fresh off of CB. No one will identify beyond the call sign, no one will give a QTH (10-20), no one gives a first name and the whole enchilada turns into a circle jerk.

Feel free to look me up in QRZ or Buckminster or the FCC or the Omaha phone book. If you use the last name, you might have to put a space between the Cs.

The Firesticks that I've used in the past all had this tuning issue.
I just kept pulling the cap off and retuning the slug or coils until I got the match I needed.
No biggy. The cover is capacitively reacting with the coils beneath it and is absorbing some power. I would suspect that the cover will melt if the power is high.

The White slavery in Israel has gone on for at least two decades and was covered up entirely for more than a decade by all Western media sources who were quite aware of it. The "Russian Mafia" is still described by Western media sources as "Russian" with no mention that it is composed of Jews. This is done not for the bogus reasons given when confronted but because international crime-the mafia-is a Jewish controlled phenomenon. Visit the FBI website and peruse the "Most Wanted" lists. Jews are quite prevalent. They launder the money for Columbian drug lords and import weapons from Russia for the various communist rebel groups fighting the Columbian government and before long U.S. soldiers. When they are discovered and arrest warrants issued they flee for Israel where the Israeli government plays dumb, pretending that they are not in the country. Then these criminals train other Jews and send them out to continue the enterprise.

Most of the Ecstasy is manufactured in Israel and then smuggled to Europe and America.

It's also interesting to note that in the article the Israeli government is holding these raped and beaten women-many of whom were kidnapped and brought to Israel-in prison! When they are done with their bogus show trial of the Jew pimps, rapists and kidnappers they say without embassassment that these despoiled women will be deported back to the impoverished countries where they came from. Forget about becoming Israeli citizens and getting a real job. Israel is an explicitly racist state and these women are considered to be animals (goyim) by the racist, Zionist state of Israel.

90 years? Gee, that must mean my 25 year copyright won't run out next year, huh? But a friend of mine just finished producing an album with an 11 year copyright, and he said that was typical. You claimed that he was breaking the law by downloading the song, and I gave a couple examples how he might do it legally. Not only is that 'reasonable doubt', but it would be unreasonable and irresponsible to jump to the conclusion that his action would be illegal. I'm not at all suprised that you did just that.

So, what do YOU consider to be a "score", dumbfuck? Piss off.

Yep, you nailed it, buster, it's all Aaron's work. Any post you see here that disagrees with bootlegging and illegal power is actually written by me, Aaron. It's ALL my work: Sparky, Leland, NoFear, N8, oldkeycollector, QRM2000, Yrac, Dave Hall, etc. etc. Hell, when Dick N0BK and Jerry O. say something that disapproves of illegal CB, it's actually ME doing the talking. Wow, good work, you figured it all out, it's a gigantic conspiracy. LOL.

Sounds like a case they had over in Ferndale a few years ago. It turned out to be a CBer running power. My lady friend, that lives in that area, can't tell the difference between a CB and a Ham operator. I would suspect many lay people are like that.

> Would that be the price you pay for being "famous" locally because your > antenna was so big?

Hasn't happen to me because all my antennas are inside, except the few times I set up outside to test my 2.4GHz satellite down-link. Nothing like a weird looking 40 by 24 inch grill dish antenna mounted on a camera tripod with other radio equipment for people to stare at in the dark around 11:30 PM. 8-))

The growing antenna farm on the top of my van is getting more attention since I added a 2m horizontal loop for better sideband operation a few days ago. Lately when I get out of the van wearing shades and a plain black cap I see people looking, but nobody wants to ask any questions like they normally do. They try not to look, but I see them doing it when I'm in the party store or some place else with windows.

> I feel sure that you believe, as I do, that the guilty should be punished, > and the innocent should not be made to suffer for what they didn't do.

Now if you can convince some other parties on the group to buy in to that idea you could end up being famous yourself. 8-)) But don't worry. I know one or two here that seriously believes in "Don't confuse me with the facts, my mind is already made up" idea. They keep bringing up past wrongs and accuse the wrong parties of the dirty deed so often that just about everybody thinks they're nuts. Of course if you read any of the prior posts you would understand.

It was more along the lines of it was a Sunday, and the story we gave her sounded pretty screwy. I sure there are investigators from both sides of the border crossing over to help out the other side. She probably thought that was the case, and didn't want to hold us up out of concern that a phone call from US officials to her boss would get her chewed out on Monday for holding up an operation. We laugh about it for hour while driving up north on 401.

Hey pusbuster, do you know how to use Google? Try a search for my tincan email addy. I changed the cet addy because it was getting too much spam.
I do that about every year anyway. You may also notice that I have been rather neglectful of my website lately, and you will find a few dead links that I need to remove. And while you are gloating in your ignorance, why don't you log onto tincan's homepage -- you might just learn something.

Aaron and I share a similar interest -- legal CB. What I don't understand is why you harass him about the subject but not me. When you saw Aaron's post with my email in it, you automatically assumed it wasn't me (maybe you should quit reading twistie's posts). Not only that, after months of bragging how you don't flame, you open up, saying that I am a seriously sick person. Well, brainless, I'm just seriously pissed off! You said you emailed me, but not at my current email addy. Like I said, the other one is cancelled. You would have known that if you had asked. And no, I don't have your old email, I don't keep email longer than a week. But you could have asked a key question or something. Nope, you just jumped into the anti-Voobner pit feet first without thinking.

Do you think I am sick for having more respect for the terrorists than for the keyklowns? I explained it once. If you couldn't understand it, then understand this: I sponged up one of my best friends almost 18 years ago because of a terrorist attack, and I learned quite a bit about the price that other's have paid for our freedoms. These are the same freedoms the keyklowns mock. They do so because they are spoiled little brats, and because they are too lazy to spend a little effort to do things legally. Do you know what I find REALLY offensive? Noname amps being illegally manufactured on the property of a highly-decorated veteran!

So who do you respect more -- a soldier that will fight and die for his country and its beliefs? Or some lazy, spoiled little twit that would piss on that soldier's grave?

People think it's OK to freeband, bootleg, run amplifiers, etc. on 11m, but just don't let the FCC catch you. There are far too many CB operators out there that advocate doing just that. So you can have all the draconian enforcement you want, BUT until people get it in their head that the Part 95 rules should be observed and are there for everyones good, nothing will change.
The only chance I see for 11m getting cleaned up is through efforts of the few remaining legal CBers who have had enough of the illegal CB operator, and start to reform the mentality of the "typical illegal CB operator" to a more rule observant one by peer pressure. When you have magazines like "Popular Communications" that feature an article about a CB Radio "Keydown", or CBers running huge mobile amplifiers without a single word of condemnation,

"Oh, this is rich. Here we have the self described editor and critic slamming an article he doesn't even understand. Hint: Learn what subjective and objective media means, subscribe to "Pravda."

it would seem to signal

"Just because you have the uncanny ability to draw ignorant and incorrect inferences from what you may read or have read to you does not mean the rest of society suffers the same afflicting malady."

it's OK to thumb your nose at the FCC and Part 95. As far as I can see

"Which is the end of yuor ever lengthening nose."

there was no social responsibility shown by the magazine,

"Ahheeeeeeheeeeheee! Lelnad again demonstrates what little he has acquired in his pathetic existence. He feels they should only report on what he deems appropriate...PRAVDA!"

Now it is up to and particularly the author of the article.

"Since Lelnad the wannabe writer, editor, and critic knows so much, I humbly submit he contact the magazine and see if they can use his talent laden writings and maybe implement your new editorial policies."

This is just one example of what, how, and where things must change.

"A classic example of his desire for censorship."

While the total elimination of any illegal activity can't be done it can be greatly reduced. That can only happen if the attitude of the people can be changed, and the illegals find themselves in a tiny minority. The resulting tiny minority of illegal CB operators would then be a good target for the FCC to focus their enforcement efforts on.

"Another problem, along with the many presented by your flawed but laughable logic, unfortunately for you, is that the ones you speak of are far from the minority."

re: Swan Siltronix Tranceiver, Alignment information.

Hi there,

If you have a Swan or Siltronix 1011 amateur radio... We have great news for you. Not only will you find a web page for the 1011 tranceivers, but we have now writen a brief carrier oscillator alignment text which will appear as a down load icon on the Siltronix (Swan) web page. I also plan to break the page into smaller chapters/sections for an easier down load/web reading.

After the classic golden screw driver has hit your carrier oscillator adjustments, Swan and Siltronix radios are pretty much un-usable. You can now get the radio back into operation by reading the available (free) owners manual and/or suppliment oscillator text writen up. The icon will appear in a very short time, today with a little luck and free time.

Watch for it and feel free to Email questions from the web page if you like.

cheers

I've used the CB "dish" antenna for a year or so, and find it to be a fair antenna if you really need to get around apt./HA regulations. It looks enough like a small TV dish (minus probe, of course) that you could fool any snoopers.

Beyond that, it DOES work well over it's range. It does not have the same reception 'oomph' of a vertical (say an A99 or Imax2000) but it does okay. If you're looking into simple, local contacts at legal power, it does very well transmitting. I tested it the first week I had it and got good (consistently) reports from up to 30 miles away. As I said, it will not receive as well as other antennas, especially for skip work, but local signals are loud and clear, and you WILL get out with it.
For the money, though, you can certainly pay less for a better antenna, all else being equal. I mean, if you need to have a hidden or small profile antenna for low-power local CB'ing, the dish will work fine. But if you aren't limited that much, you'd do better all around by getting a good vertical, or even building your own dipole.
I must mention, too, that this is not a directional 'parabolic' antenna. No chance. It's basically a small antenna curved into an S shape, molded into a durable plastic slightly concave dish form. There's a little tuning capacitor (tuning tool included) to help match it to your system. A set and forget kind of thing. I notice the SWR, if I match it at 1:1 on ch.19, does not go much higher than 1.3:1 or so at ch's 1 and 40. Above or below the legal 40 channels it would need to be re-tuned, but even then, say you set it to match 1:1 on ch.40, when you get into the 27.800 MHz range, you're still only seeing a 1.8:1 or 2:1 SWR, which is acceptable if you're using less than fifty watts and don't really need the big gun signals.
You could mount it just about anywhere, in any 'direction', and it will not matter to your RX/TX.
I suppose the higher you can mount it, the better.
It IS very light, and could be easily roof-mounted.
Just my thoughts on it. I don't think it's as 'terrible' as some would think. It DOES fill a niche for the severely restricted CB'er, and gives respectable performance. But it's not directional, doesn't have any gain to speak of, and doesn't do as well as other antennas which cost less.
Good luck-
Linus

My gut feeling is that the AC end of things could likely do the butt kicking - except operating real high power from a fixed position is downright foolhardy. Operating mobile (well, at a shootout) requires some kind of generator to supply the required horsepower. 3000 watt tubes are definately NOT the high end of things. For the record, the highest power I ever witnessed was when the XO at NavCommSta Guam needed a phone patch - and the band, while in, was in dire need of serious help. The kilowatt stations were running all of S2 at our receiver. When 1200 watts into a 6 element yagi netted us a contact, our signal was too buried in the mud for a patch. So ... the XO had the transmitter site bring up a 40 KW military transmitter into a rhombic. 600 feet on a leg, 200 feet in the air (over salt water). Instant pile up. Our signal was then 40 over 9 on the West coast. It is all a matter of how much time and money you want to put into it (and how much you are willing to risk in a NAL). A couple of kilowatts into that antenna would give almost anything a run for their money. It had to have likely a 6 dB gain over a 6 element yagi! One guy regularly ran phone patches back to the states on a 20 watt SSB transistor rig (transistors were NOT powerful back in the late 60s). My guess is that we were running well over 1,000,000 watts of effective radiated power (40,000 watts was the OUTPUT of the HF military transmitter). All of this BS aside, again I reiterate that if you run a ton of power, you are just plain stupid to do it from a fixed location again and again. This means that you are likely to achieve higher power (mobile) from transistors (you don't have all the waste of transformers supplying filaments, plate circuits, and perhaps other sundry voltages). Besides, some folk are building serious transistor amps - the only tube amps available are in the 1 or 2 KW maximum catagory. Who's going to build an amp around a 4CX-1000A?

That aside, you don't really need a ton of power (except if you enjoy stomping on others). 2 watts of my HT into a repeater running perhaps 100 watts on FM on 10 meters netted a nice QSO - terrific signal, full quieting - with Australia. Japan was comming in strong. On the 19th, Europe was hammering in - and a friend, Bob, talked to Josh Walker in St. Elizabeth, Jamaica, and me from his car in Rochester (with me on the HT - also in Rochester). Very little noise - nice signal. 'Taint the size of the ship, it's the motion through the ocean.

Jim

ps - also a lot of good DX worked with STOCK CBs. The question remains, why the necessity of high power?

Sure Jay, encourage these dingleberries to put 5 or 10KW on CB. What makes a ham like you so hell-bent to break FCC rules?

Watts are Watts, but the Ac will do more watts with less alternator and brute force power. A good 32 pill would be a good key against a 3 tube z-box. But the z tubes rated output is 500 each so that would be 1500 watts where as the 32 pill lets assume 100 watts per pill would be 3200 watts.
That is not fair just as keying against 10 - 572 B's which is a ac box.

DUHHHH.....Not in the type vehicles that you see in key downs..Most are either vans/suburbans or such and have antenna mounts in the roof so the coax never goes outside the vehicle..Only mud ducks with mirror mounts or mag maounts need to do that Holy Overkill Aannoying Aaron, you sure are seeing more in these posts that i am. Once again, i must be missing a piece of the puzzle. Sooooo, once again i will ask you....

Where in Jay's post does he suggest running linears ? Where in Jay's post is evidence he is breaking a law ?? And for the hat trick, where is the "encouragement" to run a linear coming from ?
Everything Jay stated can theorized without ever plugging in a soldering iron. You have been stepping outside of reasonable bounds pushing this keyclown rap lately. Take care, lest ye become like those you point a finger at. Oh wait, too late.....

Hello Jay:
Just to add to your comments about his statements:
You know the local hams with Search & Rescue along with our sheriff department in my area (& I'm sure many others) use many different radios & amps for "Emergency communication". They also use HF & many VHF frequencies too. Maybe it is just a very suspicious mind that would draw a conclusion without sufficient evidence...

You want to know what these posts have to do with rec.radio.cb they are just reposts of your words of wisdom that you posted in rec.radio before why is it any different now that I repost them? Is there a different effect from there content? Ohh you mean those other posts you made, wink:wink: sorry they were just a mistake I was just comparing headers and they must have somehow got cut and pasted in with the rest of your posts. If you didnt make them why worry about em ?
It's the same as the Mibx posts, the ones were your accusing I posted without proof again as usual, I have never posted from there, but you insist I have, so what ! I want to know what will it prove you can't do anything either way and I hope you do go complain to someone since I will have the last laugh when you are once again proven wrong. Thanks for the product review GP. The dealer-tech support answered my question today, saying that it is a directional design.. but since you've actually used one, I'll bet you're correct.
The only other thing he considered telling me was that "the box says 1100 kg, but it weighs about 2 pounds".

Thanks also for the tech notes, the S-shaped element was what I expected since I've seen that used in FM unidirectional dipoles and RV TV pancake-on-a-stick designs.
I wonder if you could comment about installation distances from ungrounded metal objects.. 1/2 wavelength minimum (or more), I would suspect.

I like Jay's description of painting and hanging a vertical in a tree (with some added decorations), and would like to try that too.
It's not as if I'm under any eyesore restrictions, but I'd prefer not to put a big white stick up in plain sight just like to minimize the whining from neighbors that would want to tell me that their electronic equipment is acting funny. If their cheap crap doesn't reject 4 legal watts, I'm not gonna suggest to them what they should do.

Thanks
WB

Hi Phil,
Interesting, now I have at least a half dozen 2950's and only one did I unlock it, and another came to me that way. Now the unlocked ones I had nothing but trouble with them drifting, but never had any problem with the locked version.

Actually Pops, I'm not that upset at all, you have shown everyone your true colours. You are very close to flooding again with all the posts on this thread, I wouldn't be surprised if someone hasn't turned you in already. You shouldn't have posted some 12 times on one thread, with each post having nothing to do with the thread. You did the same thing when you posted from the MIBX account, flooding, you just can't help it I guess.

I don't know about you people, but this has been a hobby of mine since the late sixties, Yup, that's right, over thirty years and well before then. I remember as a kid going over to my parents friends house, watching him talk around the world on his radio equipment. His name is Bill Orr, that's right in the early part of that decade and still, too this day he is considered a good friend of the family. I have listen to the same rhetoric, FCC is cracking down, CB'rs are no good, Hams are evil, it's all bullshit. It comes and goes, but people making trouble here and on the air, will always be around.
Good luck on cleaning up the world of speeders, linears, illegal radios, high watt head light bulbs, loud exhaust and all the rest of the small crimes in the world today.
Boy the Holocaust must have paled compared to the hampered life of all the radio operators in the world.

You're not keeping up with the times, Bill. Many Hams are already doing what you suggest. For example, since the WTC attack, communicators with the Coast Guard Auxiliary have put in an amazing amount of man hours - ranging from manning Coast Guard communications systems to free up active duty personnel for other activities to standing relief watches for over worked active duty personnel. And a large percentage of the Auxiliary's communications personnel are volunteers from the ham radio community.

So, while it is true that there is a severe shortage of communications personnel in the Auxiliary, which has caused us to limit the range of services offered, this does take anything away from those who have already volunteered to help. They have done, and will continue to do, an outstanding job (even if people like you never notice them).

By the way, if anyone is interested in helping, please contact me by email. Our role in the current crisis is winding down (limited to a several small areas at this point). However, when it comes to the Coast Guard, there will always be other situations in the future (hopefully far less horrible than this one).

We were caught short handed during this crisis and we do not want that to ever happen again. Therefore, we are urgently seeking to increase our membership. Personnel are needed immediately to train for search & rescue operations, communications activities, and a long list of other missions. Since training is required, it is too late to step forward when a crisis happens. Now is the time to step forward if you want to help in the future.

I know i'm going to get laughed at, but, I was in my grandfather's shop the other day and found his old cb radio. There is one of those old sattelite dishes still standing in the yard. Can it be used as an antenna for the radio? I have tall trees around my home and regular antennas don't cut the static(no pun intended)

>The dealer-tech support answered my >question today, saying that it is a directional design.. but since >you've actually used one, I'll bet you're correct.

Well, I'd LIKE to think I know what I'm talking about but I've been wrong so often in the past that who the hell knows?!?! :-)
Actually, unless this dealer-tech guy was talking about a different antenna, he's blowing smoke up your expletive. I actually mounted this antenna on a little TV rotator, and from 26.5 to 28., I could not see ANY directionality apparent on either my Kenwood receiver or Cobra 2000 S-meters. I noticed no change in noise or signal strength, no matter where it was facing.
I guess the tip off is the fact that it cannot act like a parabolic dish because it simply ISN'T one, since the dish is neither reflective nor conductive (pure plastic) and there's no probe onto which the dish would reflect and focus the signals.
Anyway, that's my two cents.
It does work, but not SO well that other antennas aren't worth looking into!
Have fun-
Linus

this past weekend i aquired a ma-6 "hornet" 12 element beam. it appears to be extremely heavy duty construction. what i am curious about is the relatively short boom length.(short for a 12 element, that is to say 6 horiz/6 vert) usually the boom length for similar 11 meter antennas is approx 30-31 feet. this one has a boom length of only 26 feet.can any one clue me in to how this one will operate in the 11 meter band with such a short boom???? any body used one of these? how broad banded is it?? etc etc. thanx.

You still have Doug's "jock strap" and talk to "saucer men" on the freeband? So is it true or not? One you're a weird nut case as people claim, or second you lied. Either way you're screwed, and you know it. Then to compound your problem you wrote the following......

Spring in Florida is kind of depressing what with all the unemployment, drugs and disease. I wear these big sunglasses that make me look like a bug, but they keep the Florida sun out of my eyes. The waitress at the local Stuckey's said I looked like a moth with a head cold. Well what I want to know is if I hook up a Foxie 8-pill to 440 VAC will I get 4 times the power output. I wish I could do this because there is a guy on 27.555 that makes fun of me and I certainly would like to squash him. I am asking you this because none of the others will talk to me anymore and have abandoned me to fight Dogie by myself and you seem like a fair-minded guy who does not discriminate if a fellow wants to run a little power on the freebands. (PS, the amp has a mean-looking skull design painted on it, and that helps bolster my low self-esteem somewhat)

ï¿½ï¿½By that time they have failed to do their job and all those years of scuffling with hogs made 'em mellow! Time to get some new pups to break in at that point. Ever see a coon or hog dog being trained? The PETA folks will be all over me, but nothing turns a dog meaner towards a hog or coon than getting it's ass chewed a bit when it's a puppy.
Whichever animal does the ass kickin' when the dog is a pup is usually the one that dictates which kind of dog you have. Got a pack now that has two lil stubborn bitches only a year old....a coupla times we had to pull them off the hogs before they ruined 'em. 'Course 'ol Cooter Mae is getting up there in years, now. She don't tangle with the hogs like she used too, she leaves that for her younger descendants, but was a time she was the meanest hog and coon dog in the county, and like a kitten with most people. But let her get a whiff of hog or coon, or an errant bobcat or so, and she goes rabid until the blood is spilled and she gets the heart, and she prefers it warm. She's slow, but at 16 she hasn't lost the scent yet, and she taught me never to doubt her. I've seen the whole damn pack baying and howling after something, only for 'ol Cooter Mae to digress and go her own way and bring the game around. She has never failed me. She can break in a pup in record time as well. I'll shut up now. Get me talkin' hounds and I can go on forever.

Not forged.

Speaking of going way off topic, how about this little diatribe where you boast of your cruelty to animals? -Aaron-

  By that time they have failed to do their job and all those years of scuffling with hogs made 'em mellow! Time to get some new pups to break in at that point. Ever see a coon or hog dog being trained? The PETA folks will be all over me, but nothing turns a dog meaner towards a hog or coon than getting it's ass chewed a bit when it's a puppy.
Whichever animal does the ass kickin' when the dog is a pup is usually the one that dictates which kind of dog you have. Got a pack now that has two lil stubborn bitches only a year old....a coupla times we had to pull them off the hogs before they ruined 'em. 'Course 'ol Cooter Mae is getting up there in years, now. She don't tangle with the hogs like she used too, she leaves that for her younger descendants, but was a time she was the meanest hog and coon dog in the county, and like a kitten with most people. But let her get a whiff of hog or coon, or an errant bobcat or so, and she goes rabid until the blood is spilled and she gets the heart, and she prefers it warm. She's slow, but at 16 she hasn't lost the scent yet, and she taught me never to doubt her. I've seen the whole damn pack baying and howling after something, only for 'ol Cooter Mae to digress and go her own way and bring the game around. She has never failed me. She can break in a pup in record time as well. I'll shut up now. Get me talkin' hounds and I can go on forever.

Not forged.

"No, but the rest of your trash you attribute to me is, Lelnad.
Thanks for asking about Cooter Mae, although how I treat my dogs and why you continue to return to the dog subjects is comically ironic. :)
She is blind in one eye and has a hard time getting around now, but she is still kickin', although no longer a swamp runner. Her scent discrimination tactics remain in top form.
You continue to demonstrate your ignorance of matters and lack of knowledge in almost all subjects that you touch upon, in this case your surly accusation of "cruelty" to animals concerning professionally trained dogs, whether they be for hunting, guard, attack, guide, or companion. My dogs have all been trained with the Koehler Method, which has been challenged and upheld many times in a court of law. If you wish exact details, take it to email, as I am without doubt you have no idea who William Koehler was, as you have no prior military experience and are more than likely a cat owner.

I do not understand you, lelnad. Your smear campaign has consisted of nothing but advertising my businesses for me. You may wish to employ another method (like Dweebo Spanka).

I never had more freelance projects than I do at this time, and I know at least one of those projects are due to your hand. After all, the publisher is in Detroit, married to a cber, and runs several web publications concerning her professional ventures. One guess how they learned of my activities outside your funny pages.

We are up to 3 litters per year, and all pups are reserved long before they are born. Last Christmas we had to start a waiting list. Our next litter is due around October 6, and unless a miracle occurs and we get 21 pups out of this litter, the waiting list continues to grow. We don't even advertise anymore, the referrals are more than we can handle. We don't sell to just anyone, either. If we are not familiar with or the party was not recommended by a referral or one of the associations we are involved with, we usually will not sell them a pup.

Hope that answers your ever inquiring self concerning my dogs. Now be a good dogie and go post as Aaron or Dweebo or someone, and try not to be so sloppy, lelnad. Do try to enjoy your weekend, lelnad."

Spring in Florida is kind of depressing what with all the unemployment, drugs and disease. I wear these big sunglasses that make me look like a bug, but they keep the Florida sun out of my eyes. The waitress at the local Stuckey's said I looked like a moth with a head cold. Well what I want to know is if I hook up a Foxie 8-pill to 440 VAC will I get 4 times the power output. I wish I could do this because there is a guy on 27.555 that makes fun of me and I certainly would like to squash him. I am asking you this because none of the others will talk to me anymore

Hello,

I'm searching for the schematics of the President dallas 340 cb radio.
At the moment, the radio is recieving correctly, but it transmits only the carrier. There is no modulation. I checked the microphone, which is fine.

Does anybody have an idea what could be wrong?
Also, i'm searching for any links/info regarding this cb radio.

Could anybody help me???

Greetz,

Thanks Tim,

That's good to know. I don't use AM, so I'm not really concerned with being "loud" on AM. Being "clearly readable" on SSB is of paramount importance to me though. I guess this is NOT the replacement for the Grant XL.

Our local radio nazi's (AKC) should be jumping on you right about now.
After all, a full-coverage scanner is supposed to be illegal, They want to bitch and moan about linears and ham transceivers being taboo on this group, they shouldn't be choosy about which items are illegal.

If they don't complain here or to your ISP, we will know they are nothing but worthless, unemployed welfare recipients sucking on the public nipple and only starting bullsh!t on this group.

I have a Cobra 19 DX mounted in my truck that I use on ch 19. However, every time I start the truck the radio has reverted to ch 9 so I have to go through the channel selector to ch 19. Any way I can modify it to stay on Ch 19 with the power off? Apparently it has a viotile memory.
Thanks,

It should be hooked directly to the battery. If it loses it's memory after starting hooked to the battery, it's time for a new battery.
It may also help if the radio is off before starting.

A car battery is only good for about five years, after that you are on borrowed time. The first cold spell will kill it.

This does not only happen in Israel, it happens in all of eastern AND western Europe as well. OVer half the prostitutes in Denmark are foreigners by now, and too scared that they would be sent back home to help the police.

Their prostitution is not the problem. It is the symptom of poor countries.

Now we have some racism. No matter what religion or color, it is CRIMINALS doing the drug and slave traffic'ing.

And no, I am not jew, colored, muslim or anything like that. I am ateist with a christian value background, and according to a little dark skinned dark haired guy I knew, who was member of the danish nazist party,my racial traits places me as a supreme human being.

I live in a country where the general income level is high enough that we don't need a common enemy to blame for not getting a job from sitting in front of the TV drinking beer and wanking off all day. You need to get out. If you can't find a job, create your own business - That is what you probably blame the jews for doing.
Here in Denmark, we actually like the immigrants/refugees who opens their own business instead of staying on social welfare.

Have you seen how arab countries treat asians, even asian muslims ?
The treat them worse than slaves.

The world is complicated. And don't see a symptom as the a sickness in itself.

The necessary size of the dish is related both to required gain AND wavelength of the signal. At 27 MHz, you'd likely need a dish around 200 FEET in diameter to get a modest amount of gain. Even one of the old 12 foot models won't be of any use below perhaps 400 MHz (and then it would be easier to develop the gain with a yagi).

Most of the posters on RRCB must be Jewish. Notice the lack of activity on this group for the past twenty-four hours. There was also a lack of activity for Rosh Hashanah. Just makes you wonder.

Gunslinger,
Most Yagis with close element spacing exhibit very good F/B specs and as a result lack in forward gain. Did a little modeling on the computer and found a six element beam on a 27 foot boom had a F/B of 50 db but a forward gain of only 9.8 db.(mileage may vary). How's the Hazer?

While it is fairly apparent that with a given alternator system, the AC box will pump out a few more watts, it isn't some sort of magic from AC that causes it. The inefficiency of any impedence matching system that uses a whole shitpot of transistors plus sheer Joule's Law (loss=current squared times resistance) losses in the monumental bus bars needed to supply them. The ability to step up the voltage at the alternator avoids a lot of losses. Plus you pick up the 1.4 volts times current (there are two series diodes in a bridge) heat from the diode bank that produced the DC to begin with; thats half a kw if your DC amp draws 300 amps. Losing 1.4 volts in a 3-4 kv supply is no big deal.

Still seems like a vast effort for a half-vast result.

When the 42 volt electrical system becomes standard, I can see all sorts of neat designs with FET power modules.

Yeah Dick, they put out a few FCC type accepted rigs. It appears to be quite nice too. Here's the link.

The import of the post I replied to was that somehow Cousin Charlie personally blessed the rig. They are in the confession and absolution biz, they don't do blessings. The allow you to certificate (type acceptance is no longer done) that all is cool and jump all over you if it proves not to be the case. The standards for type acceptance are not all that phenomenal. Certainly freq stability is an issue but all that does is get you in hot suds over the old model.

Hey Beer Keg,

Look for sealed lead acid batteries to become the norm as well. Some motorcycles already have them from the factory. You wouldn't want acid to spill on your $20,000 bike.

Hello Kenneth:

The Hornet Beam Antennas, wasn't all that popular, at least on the west cost.

But the antenna should work like gang busters. A lot of the CB Beam Antenna manufactures and some still do today, didn't make the boom as long as it could be. But no big deal.

I suggest you try it, and see if it works for you. I believe the front to back ratio, or difference from the front direction to the back direction will improve with the shorter boom length, at the expense of a little gain. That is no big deal. The few or insignificant amount of forward dB gain, may not amount to a hole lot.

As a matter of fact, you will probably use the beam as a rejection tool from unwanted skip stations directions, local nut cakes, ect.

The alternative to make the beam longer, adding on more boom length will require some expensive aluminum tubing, and farting around in the engineering department, to get back a few dB that you won't really miss. The pain in the ass isn't worth the time and money.

Now the nut cake hams who join in contesting, and who's very lives depend on the largest amount of contacts, you bet this is a must! Not to mention using a big linear amplifier.

Give it a try, and let us know how it works out for you.

The hose clamps that are used to hold the aluminum tubing together, are usually shit, suggest you use some Marine grade Stainless Steel hose clamps.

See:

No, this is NOT a "war of cultures". It is a response to an attack by a bunch of religious fanatics. Just like many other fundamentalist groups, they have no tolerance for those who hold beliefs in variance with their own. We have examples of that here in the US, from Christian fundamentalist - such as those that bomb abortion clinics or try to

I have quite a bit of real world experience, and that does not happen even with very high gain dish antennas. There is always radiation to the rear and sides. It may be down 30 dB, which is most likely far better than you will see out of a competitition rig, but that still would be a significant signal. With a 1000 watt rig, that would be the same as transmitting a 1 watt signal with a dipole broadside to your receiving antenna. I guarantee that you will hear the signal for several channels on both sides of the actual transmit frequency.

Hello Dick: Its a real kick to see all the trucks and different systems at a keydown. I remembering seeing a guy that ran his diodes for his large alternator outside the alternator, mounted on a large piece of aluminum sheet metal, with the large gage wiring coming and going. I believe he even had a thermocouple attached to the middle of the sheet metal for monitoring the temperature.

What will they think of next!

Well Twisted here is just a reminder for you. Remember all those forged for sale adds sprinkled over 6 to 12 different news groups with your return e-mail address (Twistedhed@webtv.net) in them. I'll bet you forgot all about those didn't you? Do you also remember being contacted by several people looking for those items? Do you also remember supplying my name as well as my phone number, which you got from QRZ, to them as well? Now kindly explain why anybody in their right mind would involve total strangers in a dispute in which they had no part with the sole intent to cause harassment because the party involved in the forged posts, you, didn't have the balls to do your own dirty work.

Anybody on this group who wishes to know the details can e-mail me privately, by using the address listed on QRZ using my FCC call sign. I'll be more than happy to supply them along with the e-mail address(s) of those whom Twisted lied to about his identity by supplying my name and phone number. That way nobody has to take my word for it. They can get it straight from the source.

Here is one sample that I still have archived for times like this. I can supply the gentlemen's e-mail address on request as outlined above.>>>>>>

More details showing up. Deja News has been taken over by Google.
But doing an advanced newsgroup search for twistedhed@webtv.net

I would suggest posting a followup message to the seattle posting on the Altair telling people to go do such a search themselves to show this is a moron playing games and to cut down on the number of phone calls.

I have done nothing but respond to you, not wanting to add to the confusion.

Probably another thing to do is to post to the net abuse newsgroups with this clown. There are some real pro's there who will often keep an eye open for such things in the future

The respectful thing to have done would be to inform the inquiring party that the ad was either wrong or missed posted. That would have ended there, but no, Twisted had to keep going further in his campaign of lies, forged posts, and hiding behind others becasue he doesn't have the courage to do it himself.

We can also play another of your favorite games too Twisted. It's called "Guilty until proved innocent". You're going to like this one now. The very posts which you complain about so much in many cases lately I assert are really your posts, using another account or posted using an anonymous remailer service through any of the available mail2news posting services. I outlined in another post how you work that scam. I've repeated it here to save others the time to look for it.

You haven't answered anybody's question Twisted. Since "Cotse" is an anonymous E-mail service on the net that ANYBODY INCLUDING YOU could easily use it to post messages by simply sending E-mail from that account to any "mail2news" services to be found all over the Internet. Without the service's posting logs you're peeing in to the wind Twisted. All you are doing is spreading misinformation, and lies, to further your own warped personnel agenda against several people on this news group, when in fact you yourself very well could have been the sole source of much of the forged posts you attributed to others.

Everybody should check the following links for more information. It only took me about 10 minutes on Goggle to find them, so even somebody with limited mental capacity like Twisted could have done the same.

http://freemail.cotse.com/src/login.php

==========

The simple idea you employed was to post messages, which appear to conflict with your view points, then you reply using your WebTV account as "Twistedhed". Of course in the post under your more familiar nic you claim the posts are forged, but you accuse another party of the deed. That leads to the comment above about being guilty until proved otherwise. These are the game rules you want to play by Twisted, OK, you get to play by them too. So as far as I'm concerned you forge a great many messages on this group ande else where, so if your disagree with that then prove otherwise. You have been requested to prove beyond doubt that I forged any posts. You have never provided the proof yet you continue to make such claims. Well lets try that on you Twisted, and I don't have to provide any proof either.

Of course Twisted at the beginning it was Doug who was on your hit list. Now you simply selected another target. However your dirty "style" is catching up with you.

HAhahahah! In all honesty, Leland, Tim has never said anything to me about you anywhere other than what has been said in group (damn, that sounded like we're in some type of therapy, hehe). Everyone has a nemesis I guess, and it's all good to discuss, at times, even argue, but the name calling, when it gets to threats and junk, well, it's just stupid. Oh, I'll send you the next email Dougie sends me. I might get a slew of them in a week, then none. The only way he can get into my email at all is to forge and fool the server into thinking it is coming from someone NOT on my block list. I recently redid my list because I had 67 killfile names, the majority of them from Dougie. The one he sent forged from you just invited me anywhere near him in a 200 mile radius to "see the light" even if it had to be forced on me, and said that you (he) can pop in any time, watch my back, and that you (he) has forwarded all my posts (the forged ones) about drugs and amps to the DEA, FBI, and FCC.
Oh yea, he also accused me of running an illegal cb mod shop and that you (he) tipped my local cops off. That was funny. I never opened a radio on my own until I stumbled on this group. Now, I can do simple soldering and wire a mic, but i ain't about turning up any pots. Hell, I don't think I could instalI a board unless I was spoon fed. But hey, this time 3 years ago, I didn't know that either. I wasn't half way through it when I KNEW it wasn't from you. I have never seen you address anyone in that manner (even Tim) so I knew before I even saw the headers. Anyways, thats the gist of it. Have a good weekend.

Liquid sodium cooling maybe??? Running outside makes some sense but it ain't going to happen with sheet metal. For no better reason than the press-fit diodes would be in trouble when the aluminum expands and the holes get bigger. Talk about a really catastrophic failure.

Aww, whatsa matter, Lelnad, step-mommy ignore your basic needs when you were little and you need attention from me to make up for it? (snicker) Still mad 'cause you can't get away with abusive posting as Dweebo and Aaron no mo'? You are quite welcome.
Webtv has no "automatic block" service, oh incompetent one. It can be employed, but it's quite obvious that as usual, you have no clue what you speak of....but you may continue to demonstrate your ignorance, you computer grad, you.

I can get email from Dogie, just not you :) after all, you were the one posting disgusting stuff and blaming it on Dogie, most recently calling Dogie and Aaron the same person from behind one of your disguises in an attempt to perpetuate they are the same person....only they aren't, YOU are Aaron AND Dweebo.

After contacting webtv about an email you sent me that appeared scrambled,, you were simply cut off from sending me anything when webtv replied with two words, "Warning: Virus." Not being able to send me email really made you upset, eh? You sound like you are ready to pop.

Besides, I don't give Dogie the respect of spelling his name correctly, but you do in all your forges. You spend a hell of alot of time on nothing, Lelnad. (Chuckle) Why don't you get a job or do something productive (like home assembly work) instead of embarassing yourself to the entire cyber world by obsessing on me, paying homage to me, and sending me love letters? I think attention from me excites you in a twisted way.

Gotcha Dick,

No blessings indeed, although I do believe that legal CBs must still be "type accepted for Class D Citizen's Band operation," (Straight off the backplate of my Grant XL.) while amateur rigs need only be "certificated."(?) I dunno, maybe I'll research the fine print later.
I'm just happy to see a nice new legal CB bearing the Galaxy moniker.
(Although, Ranger seems to build 'em all these days, sans Uniden.)
I've NEVER experienced any frequency drift on a Uniden based radio, however, I have a soft spot in my heart for Galaxy. I also like the addition of the frequency counter, although I would've preferred a "cooler" (as in more soothing) LED color like green. Every once in a while, my heart dictates my spending habits more than my head. I'd feel better if they were in agreement re. this rig. Thanks, Dick.

Some general stuff..

I'm not familiar with this particular chassis, but try connecting a speaker to the PA jack (and set the CB/PA switch for PA).. when you key the PTT, there should be audio passing thru (or feedback).
If you get no positive result with this method, there's a good chance that the (some of) components related to the mic input are faulty/fuct up.

Inspecting all the circuit board's component solder connections under a magnifier is always a good idea, any time a problem shows up.

This could be a result of wiring in the mic cable, a relay (if one's used), mic gain circuit, the PA/CB or PTT switch need(s) cleaned or replaced.. or switching diodes, or maybe some components in the modulation transformer circuit (not so easy to find).
Depending upon your capabilities and equipment at hand, this could be a minor repair, or not even close.
If you're an experienced troubleshooter, a schematic will probably help after you've eliminated the wiring and switch possibilities.. but if you're not experienced, a service manual might just turn the repair into an extended research project.

The pad that the dish column is mounted in will make a great base for your new tower.
You can find out if the radio is in operating condition first, by attaching any length of wire to the center of the antenna jack. Placing the wire near an outside wall will enhance the reception.
You won't be able to transmit with just a wire attached, but you can check out the receiver. If you later decide to attach a CB antenna to the dish column, don't expect to use the coax cable that was used for the dish.. it's most likely to be the wrong type.

Install a small fuse between the positive terminal of the battery and the positive lead on the radio, though. You don't want a wire shorting out under the hood and starting a fire. You probably only need a 5 amp fuse or even less...maybe even a 2 amp fuse.

Considering an OLD satellite dish standing in the yard was mentioned, I assume it was one of those 10 or 12 foot models. I also assumed it was a legitimate question (one which could reasonably be asked). As far as aesthetic appeal, try putting one of those monsters in your yard. You might like it, but look out for flying objects - they'll probably be frying pans thrown at you by your wife! ;) (been there, done that!)

Guess I got the answer to my question...

Actually, "your own words" as you call them, are taken quite out of context, rendering them no longer mine... Now, had you included the "KISS my" in front of it, then it would have been a proper quote.

BTW, DS/N8-wannabe/WhatEver... I go for my Extra class in November, and I'll pass the test.. What have YOU done to further HAM radio lately? Or CB radio for that matter?

Hello Kenneth: I looked at the "Hornet" and the Wilson Beam Antennas, there are within a few inches of each other, in boom length.

Is not a problem GI.

Put then together and let us all know how it goes.

Remember to use good hose clamps to put it all together. I have seen some guys use #10 or #8 screws (stainless steel, available out you local or long distance hardware store) and a locking nut or double nutted.

Is Jay in Vast American Desert, ... a short distance from old WWII.

FYI:

FCC rule 2.815(b): After APR 27, 1978, no person shall manufacture, sell or lease, offer for sale or lease (including advertising for sale or lease), or import, ship, or distribute for the purpose of selling or leasing or offering for sale or lease, any external radio frequency amplifier or amplifier kit capable of operation on any frequency or frequencies between 24 and 35 MHz.

In a May 13 Public Notice, the FCC points out that it's a violation of FCC regulations to import or market a transmitter designed or intended to operate outside the amateur bands unless the equipment has been issued a grant of equipment authorization for the radio services it's capable of operating. The FCC says it wanted to clarify its rules on equipment that's "intended to operate in various radio services in the high frequency radio spectrum, including '10-meter' Amateur Radio Service (ARS) equipment." The notice--directed to "manufacturers, importers, vendors and users of these transceivers"--emphasizes that transmitters intended for use by FCC-authorized radio services except the Amateur Radio Service must be type-accepted.

Fantastic Radio, Ive had just about every CB base worth anything/including the Cobra 2000 GTL, and my impressions are that Galaxy really out did themselves this time with this latest offering (The DX-2547) Ive had nothing but excellent reports on AM/USB/LSB all over the country, and I must add, all these reports came from no less than 500-600 miles away shooting skip, and running a stock 4 watts AM and approx 13 Watts on SSB, just a wonderful, fresh breath of air from a company that was starting to really bore me with the standard boat anchor type Saturn design's. If you do decide to buy one, I suggest buying it from R&R Communications in Deleware, they seem to beat everyones price on this unit $300.00 when some of the others are getting as much as $425.00, wish you luck, 73' WPST 480/Frank in CT.

To answer one of your questions, the bandwidth will be narrower with a shorter boom. The feedpoint impedence is lowered by all of the metal hanging in the breeze which in general lowers bandwidth. The cross polarized elements are irrelevent. You might find that you want to adjust the two antennas to different center freqs, an ancient stunt with similar 2-meter antennas. If you allowed to feed both, this may give you a decent SWR across quite a range but with some interesting performance characteristics.

You will also find that where bandwidth is a problem, it is permissible to lengthen (slightly, like 3% max) the reflector and shorten directors by an inch or two and obtain better bandwidth at some sacrifice of performance.

There are several good antenna modeling programs around should you want to get interested where you can see the trade-offs involved in yagi design. If nothing else, you might find out what Hornet considered important when they designed the beast.

Since the space between your ears is empty, and everything you read here filters out of the space between your legs, I will repeat this one more time:

There are a lot of HAMs reading, posting and sandbagging on this group. This is just one of many places to advertise one's wares.

Now, would you like to come and get the 2950 I'm supposed to acquire tonight?

Nah! Nah! Nah! BTW, your father should have pulled out early!

I bet you do. How else would you coordinate your forgies on the group.

I'm not Twisted like you are. I don't "collect jock" straps and I don't talk to "saucer men" either. It takes one really sick weirdo to admit to the above and truly believe it. Of course if you should miss spell Doug's name he may quit sending you his used jock straps. Now that would really break your heart Twisted because then you would have to go back to molesting your 4 or 5 young boys again.

Feel fee to respond using any of your other various nics you use when forging post through those anonymous e-mail services. Nothing like a little multiple personality disorder to add to your "twisted" warped state of mine.

Dick, most of these guys use the bigger stud mount diodes 150 amps + like a 1n3111 they are usually mounted on a piece of heatsink material those puppies do get hot, a piece of sheet metal wouldnt last as you said, 6 of these diodes would do the trick for converting 3 phase AC to DC.

The bands are really hopping lately. Been on a 10 meter port - FM. It is amazing how totally clean a signal can be on FM. Talked with Australia about 4 to 6 weeks ago. Absolutely no noise or distortion. Then there was Josh, 6Y5WJ in St. Elizabeth, Jamaica. Europe has been pounding in. Openings can be fairly brief, or they can last quite a while. Australia was in exceedingly strong and noise free for probably better than half an hour. 11 meters should be at least as good if not better.

Hi Jim,

I believe Alinco has their 10-meter FM only rig on sale for $89 or so. There's an 11-meter FM net that's active in my area. I listen in every once and a while but FM just doesn't "do it" for me. Call me masochistic butI like to strain my ears and listen intently while I just barely make that guy out who's just a hair above the background noise. I don't like overbearing static, but a nice low-level "hash" from a quit receiver can be enjoyable.

>Then there was >Josh, 6Y5WJ in St. Elizabeth, Jamaica.

Ask Josh about 27.5150 MHz LSB. If my memory serves me correctly, that's the 11-meter call frequency in "6Y" land. Hey, just monitoring mon...just monitoring. :-) Take it easy now.

What kind of idiotic post was that, Scott? The posting drops a bit for a day and you conclude that most of us are jews? There have been a lot of days where the posting goes down, and some days it goes up, too. I could only guess why you make a correlation between posting frequency and jewish holidays. But then I read your stupid remark about atonement. Scott, you are truly a fucking moron!

The DX-2547 uses the same EPT06960Z board that you find in the Texas Ranger TR-396, TR-396F, TR-696, TR-696F, TR-696FSSB Base, TR-399WX, TR-699WX, TR-900 Series, and the Galaxy DX959 and DX949 to name a few radios. It is nothing new, but still a very nice board. This board is very similar to the EPT690010Z board used in RCI's 10 meter radios.

3491. How about a little "prank" story to lighten the mood

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb

Fellas,

Take a deep breath, and and break for a little prank. Let's forget about legalities and personalities for just a minute and just enjoy.

A friend of mine, a ham, has many friends to whom he has spoken for years and years, although never seen in person. These guys have met on air for all those years and consider each other friends. That said, they aren't averse to playing a trick on each other once in awhile.

One day, my good friend was listening on a particular HF frequency when one of the regulars came on and began to tune up in preparation for calling CQ AM.
Now Jimmy has an excellent AM transmitter that he built nearly 40 years ago. Yes, it will do more than 1500 watts, but it stays around 500 at all times. He also has a dipole/inverted Vee at about the 100 foot level on his tower. The result is a tremendous signal on 75 and 40 meters AM I forgot to mention he lives on a hill. Anyway, Jimmy listened for a moment while "Bobby" tuned up.
When Bobby neared the end of his test, Jim keyed up as well so that when Bob let up, his receiver was blanked/paralyzed--meter all the way over to the right. Bobby thought his change over relay between the transmitter and receiver had stuck up. So, this caused him to begin to seek out the reason why. Jimmy guessed that Bob was tinkering around with the relay, and keying the mike to unstick the relay. So Jimmy would let off the key at intervals and Bobby, thinking the relay had released, would key up again to check it out. Jimmy would re-key while Bob was, so when Bob let up, his "relay" would be "stuck" again. When Bob let go, the receiver S meter would be pegged again, starting the search again. After two or three times of this, Jim called Bob and asked him if he was having "trouble". "Yeah, my darned antenna change-over relay is hanging up." Jim replied, (trying to stifle giggles), "Well, it seems to be working now." "Yes, it is, but I don't (pause).....understand. WAIT A MINUTE! YOU SORRY RASCAL! You had me about to tear my whole station down trying to find out what was wrong." They shared a few laughs over this, and carried on. Ever since then, Jim's transmitter has always been referred to as the "Static Eliminator".

While doing this might be construed as "unconventional", it was done in fun between two friends and lasted only a few minutes. Both of them got a kick out of it after Bob discovered what Jimmy was doing to him.

Just a little tale to lighten the mood and change one thread from name calling and flaming.

A few of these radios have been listed at www.ebay.com in the Auction for America for about that price.

I'm sure there are hams "reading, posting and sandbagging" in the TS/TV newsgroups, but you don't see any radios for sale there, do you? This newsgroup is about CB radio, not ham radio. There are plenty of newsgroups for hams. There is even one called rec.radio.swap. That newsgroup is the preferred (and appropriate) forum for selling ham radios, because far more hams read that group than rrcb.

Get with the program, Scott.

Hey, that's a really good point you make there. The next time someone commits armed robbery, rape or murder they should use that argument in court -- they are sure to get the charges dismissed.

I do not harass "Aaron" about the pro-legal issue, as I have already explained several times. Do your homework, and read the other posts... the answer is there for all to see.

Aaron sees any question as "harassment".

--
> When you saw Aaron's

Do you believe all that you see on the internet? On the internet, you can fake almost anything. Frank knows this, and once made it clear to me in one of his posts to this ng.

Putting a fake e-m into a news message is so easy, my 9 year old son could do it. Add to this the fact that the e-m addy and NNTP host were different... why should I automatically believe it to be real?
A quick look through this group, and you will see how easily a name can be changed or used by two people.

> (maybe you should quit reading twistie's posts).
--

Why should I do that... He doesn't hurl profanities at me.
If you don't like his posts, then YOU stop reading them. I cannot block him from YOUR computer, you must do that for yourself.

> Not only that, after months of > bragging how you don't flame, you open up,
--

Can you show "months of bragging", or do you really mean "months of not flaming"?
I try not to flame, and I do not see how any of my posts to "Sparky" can be called "flames". I have NOT used foul language as you have.

So the real question is...
Why, after months of Frank giving me reasonable replies, would he suddenly feel the need to make false accusations about me, and direct foul language at me??

Why should I assume this person is the same "Sparky". Unless it's been so long that you forgot how to play the "Sparky" character, and who you was being nice to.

> saying that I am a seriously sick person.
--

My exact words were...
>>>Aaron is one very sick person, and he should seek help.

So you MUST be "Aaron", yet you used the name "Sparky" on your post.

> Well, brainless,
--

More insults... more like Aaron than Frank.

This sounds like the response of someone who knows very little, and feels the need to bring people down to their level.
Again, do your homework, check through the posts on this ng looking for technical posts. At least I know the relationship between SWR, impedance, and efficiency - as do so many others in the newsgroup.

> I'm just seriously pissed off! You said > you emailed me, but not at my current email addy. Like I said, the other

E-mails to invalid addresses bounce back to the sender... within 24 hours.
They do NOT just disappear.
I have had plenty of e-mails bounce back to me because the address was no longer valid... But not that one.
The server accepted the post, so it awaits collection.

> You would have known that if you had asked.
--

In the UK, the police advise people to check a callers identity using a known number from the phone book. NEVER use the number they give, if they are fake, then the number will be too - and whoever answers will back them up.

I could easily use someone elses name, and tell people to e-mail me at the address I give them to ask if I am real!!

So your logic is not too good.

Frank was expecting another e-mail from me, with certain information - and

You asked for key questions, so I should be able to expect answers.

I could set up an e-mail address with the name fgillil@whatever, I could even use the name "Sparky". And here's the killer... I could even tell the ISP that my name is Frank Gilliland, they wouldn't know any different, and they wouldn't care. They get money every time I connect (a percentage from the telephone company), and they don't even need to know who made the call. But that wouldn't make my name Frank Gilliland.

I can also set up web based e-mail accounts without needing to give my name to any ISP. There are public accounts that can be used by anyone... where the ISP has made the account details public knowledge, and no sign-up is needed.
You simply connect with one of these, then go get a web-mail address from any one of many companies.

I can even go to my local library, and use their public access computer to get a web-mail account.

1. Bleedover does not mean "big power"... it means wasted RF.
2. "Big Power" does not have to bleed over. If you run power cleanly, and modulate within the limits of your radio, and if your radio is tuned properly, you shouldn't bleed over.
3. One man does not an organization make.
4. The coat of arms on A.V.'s site is actually another family's coat with a couple of the colors reversed (nice try). I won't embarrass the other family by mentioning their name in the same message as the fake-named Voobner.
5. The FCC database has NO "Voobner" listed as a licensed operator.
6. Most HAMs could really care less what goes on on CB. It's a different service completely.
7. It is possible to be a HAM and a CB operator without any conflict of interest, and it is possible to enjoy both hobbies without the two interfering.
8. CB rarely interferes with no-code tech operations on 2M.. If you think you're getting "splattered" by a CBer on your 2M set, make sure your antenna isn't in the CB'ers antenna's "near field" (3 wavelengths, or 33 meters for CB. That's about 110 feet.) Then reach down between your legs, grab ahold of your shoulders, pull REALLY hard and GET YOUR HEAD OUT OF YOUR ASS!!! CB has NO harmonics to the 2M band or the 6M band... It does on 135Mhz (aircraft) and 162Mhz (police/public safety?) but nothing from 144-148 or from 50-54.
9. Not everyone who claims to be a licensed HAM is a licensed HAM.
10. Sylvania, OH is a fair bit away from where N8WWM's home QTH is as listed on the FCC database.. It would be a "long distance" call to dial in to a PoP in Sylvania from where the real N8WWM lives.. I have my doubts that the N8WWM that used to post here (and still does under several names, from what I can tell) is the real N8WWM.

Hope this helps get rid of some of the ignorance running around out there.

If you run power (and I'm not going to get into the legalities thereof) on CB, crank that radio back to just below 100% modulation so you don't splatter all over the place... Yes.. you'll still "get out".. you just won't be wasting RF energy on the splatter, which means you'll run more efficiently and more than likely "get out" better on the channel you're talking on.

If you're a HAM who doesn't enjoy CB, especially a No-Code Tech, then why are you here? You're causing more interference than the dirty-running FCC-rule-breaking CB'ers who run power and/or transmit out-of-band. You're supposed to be setting the example for the better, not the worse...

Why is it wasted RF? I can run a legal station 4 watts rf output, you can live 3 doors down, nothing is being wasted except the reciever is suffering from front end overload and the signal is not being rejected by the reciever in essence it is not being filtered.

> 2. "Big Power" does not have to bleed over. If you run power cleanly,

True, If I a reciever is far enough away from the big power operator I will not get bleedover. If you overload the recievers front end whether a clean signal or not bleedover will occur. A clean signal will help eliminate bleedover as compared to a "wide" signal

Did he ever say he was a licensed operator? Maybe he and Craig Lowanse use different names in FCC database?

True, also many Hams are Cbers and many Cbers hold Ham licenses and don't use ham bands.

I agree again!

They have rights too! it doesnt say you have to own a CB to use this NG. Nor do they have to like illegal cb.

>You're causing more interference than the > dirty-running FCC-rule-breaking CB'ers who run >power and/or transmit out-of-band.

I don't understand this statement, since the only ones affected are those who chose to read this NG and what they have to say, where Overpowered Cb signals, rule breakers have no conieance there signals intrude onto others whether they are wanted or unwanted.

>You're supposed to be setting the example for the >better, not the SSB, Where does it say that? Who says Hams should set examples to Cber?

Many Cbers hold Ham licenses so what does that make them? Guys like Toll Free, Bill Eitner, Jay etc are all hams who advocate Illegal cb operations what are these guys Hams or Cbers who hold ham licenses. Legal Cb operators are the ones who should set examples, to show the others that you can communicate with legal power and follow rules.
Otherwise a good post on your part.

Correct. It also may mean poorly filtered home electronics.

Correct, if you don't over modulate or run your amps at full power, doubtful you would interfere.

Depends on the psychological make up, what about a schizophrenic? Does he count as an organization?

Nothing new.

Correct.

Correct, we do have quite a few here if you haven't noticed and overall most are very courteous

Correct. When was the last time you heard a report of a CB'r causing interference to aircrafts?

Correct

3515. First Annual Kabul Air Show Scheduled

First Annual Kabul Air Show Scheduled
Kabul, Afghanistan 17:52GMT - Sept. 27, 2001

Citizens of Afghanistan are reportedly looking forward with great anticipation to reports of an international air show to be held in the skies over their nation.

An unnamed official informed us that "Now the rest of the world will look upon our beloved city with great honor just as they do Farnborough, England and Paris, France", referring to the sites of two other famous international air shows.

The exact date and time of the upcoming Kabul International Air Show has not yet been announced. It is believed that event organizers feel that such an announcement would detract from the fun of the celebration by, "spoiling the surprise".

Unlike most air shows the Kabul Air Show will feature almost no static ground displays but will have an unusually high number of aerial demonstrations and fly-bys. "We are most pleased by this feature of our air show. Instead of a lot of different kinds of airplanes just sitting around on the tarmac, the aircraft attending our show will actually be up in the air demonstrating what they do best!" we were told.

Participation will probably be heaviest by aircraft of the United States Air Force and Marine Corps. Including appearances by F-15's, F-16's, A-10's, B-52's and Apache helicopters. It is rumored that opening ceremonies will feature a tomahawk-cruise fireworks display. A few B-2's, and F-117A's may also help out in some unseen capacity.

Several other counties have expressed an interest in sending representatives. These include all nineteen nations in the NATO alliance as well as Australia. The excitement generated for this gala event has even prompted the Israeli Air Force to apply for participation.

Of course, no one is more excited than the Afghan people themselves. Great numbers of them are in the streets of Kabul looking constantly heavenward in gratitude for the historic event, which will soon take place in their skies. It has been observed that some are so concerned about missing the show that even as they bow to the East they keep snatching worried glances towards the West. Thousands, in fact, have been seen leaving the city and fleeing to the mountains carrying food and blankets - obviously anxious to get a good vantage point for the air show, and to make a picnic of it.

Hi Landshark...

It is easy to set up accounts, you don't even have to give your real name and address. Some don't even care about your address. It is possible that some accounts and identities are used by more than one person. One account is set up, and the details passed to other Trolls who will then use it.

In the UK, we have at least one ISP that allows connection without an account being set up. Anyone can put in the default name and password and get connected to the net, without the ISP knowing (or caring) who they are. You can then surf to one of many sites that offer web based e-mail, and get an account... knowing that the ISP number they get from your server is not traceable to you.

Many ISPs will allow you to access your account from any machine. In the UK our telephone system sends a caller ID before the call is connected, the person receiving the call can see the callers number before deciding to answer. The problem is that many people now use the "withold" service, which stops this info being sent.
Some UK ISPs use this caller ID to check that you are the customer before granting you access, and if this is witheld, then access to services is refused.

In the end, the best cure is to block the Trolls (I have a few blocked). Where you cannot block senders, then the next best thing is to ignore them. They want to annoy people and start flame wars, if this doesn't happen, then why should they stay when there are so many other groups to Troll in?

Aaron seemed to think (if he ever thinks) that I was "harassing" him, when I was just trying to work out if he really was just a Troll. Guess where his name has gone... you guessed it, killfile.
If he doesn't like this, he can moan away to himself... I aint listening. He never mentions what you can do on CB, just what you cannot. If I wanted whining, I would go chat to the Mother-in-law :~)

I've actually found a pretty good site that has a fairly detailed photo spread on the DX2547, both inside and out. There's no direct link so once you get there you'll have to click on and then select the DX2547 photo spread.

"Click here to see what new on the site"

"Put some Pictures of theNew Galaxy DX2547 Base inside and out."

Pretty nice.

I am sure no expert on coats of arms but everything he said technically was right on the nose. I would also share his views on the non-existent conflict between the two radio services.

The number of things one can do to shoot off his own toes with AM is almost endless but overmodulation, limiter clipping, and overdriving sure top the list. Good signals are not wide; power is wasted on harmonics and splatter. Crummy audio and/or 'swang' does not get listened to.

There are cases where the receiver is responsible to be sure. The Japanese since the Yahoo 101 have had soft front ends. The rule on mixers is that one signal has to be 2/3 of what is in the mixer at a point in time: this means good bandpass filtering coming in, a clean local oscillator that fairly screams, a balanced mixer, and proper termination of the output for all frequencies so that you do not get them reflected back into the mixer. If there is an attenuator, a receiver is junk. In effect, a crappy front end can do its own overmodulation trick. But these cases are fairly rare compared with the mythological lore of CB operation.

The power level of a signal causes your receiver to overload from Adjacent Channel Interference or otherwise known as Bleedover, when you are near a strong signal field, the receiver starts to distort the signals arriving to your radio. It's trying to pull signals on the channel you are on, out of the stronger signals on adjacent frequencies. This is more than common sense it is a fact, not an opinion.

> >> >8. CB rarely interferes with no-code tech operations on 2M..

Ill ask again, what about general class or Extra class operations on 2 meters? That is a troll statement, no common sense needed here. He also says above it Rarely interferes with 2 meters Yet says "reach down between your legs, grab ahold of your shoulders, pull REALLY hard and GET YOUR HEAD OUT OF YOUR ASS!!! CB has NO harmonics to the 2M band"

Is this a common sense statement?

The ignorance is based on his assumptions that what he says is correct.

efficiently and more than likely "get out" better on the channel you're talking on.

What if you are a Ham who enjoys Cb but doesnt enjoy illegal Cb, nocode or coded ham. All this coming from a newly crowned Ham who is now downing No-Code Techs. Do you forget SSB you were a No-Coder a short time back. Remember common sense.

Bert, Is this a common sense answer or an opinion, a person who causes interference over the radio is affecting countless amounts of peoplewho have no choice butto accept the interference, you have a choice in this NG either don't read em or filter them out. Many cb operators neighbors don't have that luxury. So is this a real good common sense answer?

You're supposed to be setting the example for the better,not the worse...

Says Who? Another opinion. Perhaps you should set an example to other hams instead of deemening no code techs since he was just one a month or so ago. Have a Great Day!

3524. Starbucks and NYC disaster

Next time you are tempted to get a cup of coffee at Starbucks, be reminded of this. This is posted at www.snopes.com and reported as true.

My family owns an ambulance service in Brooklyn NY. Midwood Ambulance if anyone knows it. Anyway, my uncles were at "Ground Zero" during the attack to help the victims. They donated their time to help with this crisis as many New Yorkers did. A great deal of people were in shock from the devastation. As many of you know, shock victims are supposed to drink a lot of water. My uncle went to the Starbucks down the street to get bottles of water for the victims he was treating. Can you believe they actually charged him for it!! He paid the $130 for 3 cases of bottled water out of his own pocket. Now, I would think that in a crisis such as this, vendors in the area would be more than happy to lend a little help by donating water. Well, not Starbucks! As if this country hasn't given them enough money! Anyway, the point of this story wasn't to glorify my uncle's actions but to suggest a boycott on Starbucks. Now, I love Frappaccinos as much as anyone, but any company that would try to make a profit off of a crisis like this doesn't deserve the American public's hard earned money. Please forward this e-mail to any one you know and encourage them to do the same.

Thank you!

It evidently hasn't occurred to you that they may force just that. If you think jawboning an Islamic terrorist will help to change his mind, you have just made his job very much easier.

3531. Subject: A letter from an Afghani-American

Subject: A letter from an Afghani-American

Dear Friends,
The following was sent to me by my friend Tamim Ansary. Tamim is an Afghani-American writer. He is also one of the most brilliant people I know in this life. When he writes, I read. When he talks, I listen. Here is his take on Afghanistan and the whole mess we are in.
Gary T.

Dear Gary and whoever else is on this email thread:
I've been hearing a lot of talk about "bombing Afghanistan back to the Stone Age." Ronn Owens, on KGO Talk Radio today, allowed that this would mean killing innocent people, people who had nothing to do with this atrocity, but "we're at war, we have to accept collateral damage. What else can we do?" Minutes later I heard some TV pundit discussing whether we "have the belly to do what must be done."
And I thought about the issues being raised especially hard because I am from Afghanistan, and even though I've lived here for 35 years I've never lost track of what's going on there. So I want to tell anyone who will listen how it all looks from where I'm standing.
I speak as one who hates the Taliban and Osama Bin Laden. There is no doubt in my mind that these people were responsible for the atrocity in New York. I agree that something must be done about those monsters.
But the Taliban and Ben Laden are not Afghanistan. They're not even the government of Afghanistan. The Taliban are a cult of ignorant psychotics who took over Afghanistan in 1997. Bin Laden is a political criminal with a plan. When you think Taliban, think Nazis. When you think Bin Laden, think Hitler. And when you think "the people of Afghanistan" think "the Jews in the concentration camps." It's not only that the Afghan people had nothing to do with this atrocity. They were the first victims of the perpetrators. They would exult if someone would come in there, take out the Taliban and clear out the rats nest of international thugs holed up in their country.
Some say, why don't the Afghans rise up and overthrow the Taliban? The answer is, they're starved, exhausted, hurt, incapacitated, suffering. A few years ago, the United Nations estimated that there are 500,000 disabled orphans in Afghanistan--a country with no economy, no food. There are millions of widows. And the Taliban has been burying these widows alive in mass graves. The soil is littered with land mines, the farms were all destroyed by the Soviets. These are a few of the reasons why the Afghan people have not overthrown the Taliban.
We come now to the question of bombing Afghanistan back to the Stone Age. Trouble is, that's been done. The Soviets took care of it already. Make the Afghans suffer? They're already suffering. Level their houses? Done. Turn their schools into piles of rubble? Done. Eradicate their hospitals? Done. Destroy their infrastructure? Cut them off from medicine and health care? Too late. Someone already did all that.

New bombs would only stir the rubble of earlier bombs. Would they at least get the Taliban? Not likely. In today's Afghanistan, only the Taliban eat, only they have the means to move around. They'd slip away and hide. Maybe the bombs would get some of those disabled orphans, they don't move too fast, they don't even have wheelchairs. But flying over Kabul and dropping bombs wouldn't really be a strike against the criminals who did this horrific thing. Actually it would only be making common cause with the Taliban--by raping once again the people they've been raping all this time
So what else is there? What can be done, then? Let me now speak with true fear and trembling. The only way to get Bin Laden is to go in there with ground troops. When people speak of "having the belly to do what needs to be done" they're thinking in terms of having the belly to kill as many as needed. Having the belly to overcome any moral qualms about killing innocent people. Let's pull our heads out of the sand. What's actually on the table is Americans dying. And not just because some Americans would die fighting their way through Afghanistan to Bin Laden's hideout. It's much bigger than that folks. Because to get any troops to Afghanistan, we'd have to go through Pakistan. Would they let us? Not likely. The conquest of Pakistan would have to be first. Will other Muslim nations just stand by? You see where I'm going. We're flirting with a world war between Islam and the West.
And guess what: that's Bin Laden's program. That's exactly what he wants. That's why he did this. Read his speeches and statements. It's all right there. He really believes Islam would beat the west. It might seem ridiculous, but he figures if he can polarize the world into Islam and the West, he's got a billion soldiers. If the west wreaks a holocaust in those lands, that's a billion people with nothing left to lose, that's even better from Bin Laden's point of view. He's probably wrong, in the end the west would win, whatever that would mean, but the war would last for years and millions would die, not just theirs but ours. Who has the belly for that? Bin Laden does. Anyone else?

Tamim Ansary

Miles I think the point being made was that's what they are rated at by manufacturer. We all know a 3-500z will do more than 500 watts output just as a 2sc2879 will do more watts than its rated output of 120 watts, when the voltages are increased to both. Where could you draw a comparison as to what would be equal to what. Would a 32 pill amp be fair to key against 1- 3/500 z tube? Not at all even at the conservative numbers ("manufacturers specs") of each the dc amp has far greater output potential, unless a specified amount of power was given say 1 alternator Then the 500z would put the 32 pill on hold. Take 2 alternators on a 3xc3000 and 2 on a 32 pill, the ac amp would destroy the 32 pill. Ac is much more effeicent where as less input power is required for more output power. But the facts remain 10 kw output by a ac amp is the same as 10kw produced by a dc amp, no matter what tube/transistor compliment..

It is easy Brainbuster, you just need to memorize the answers. Nothing magical about it. In fact the correct answers are provided for you to memorize. If you have a good memory anyone can be a Extra Class Ham. This is not taking anything away from those who have passed but just a real fact. Good luck SSB

Aren't you kinda over-simplifying here? Is adjacent channel interference the exact same thing as receiver or "front-end" overload? If you're are referring to an AM signal, I'll have to defer to your expertise. Ninety-nine point nine percent of my experience has been with sideband and I've not experienced the level of interference you allude to. You have recordings, no doubt? This is what the FCC required to even think about starting an investigation. It's also what I would need to raise my blood pressure. I said this before and I'll repeat it again. I think there is more reverse-trolling going on here than meets the eye. I wouldn't be surprised if allot of this stuff is thrown out onto the NG to see "which screen-name bites today?" It can be amusing at times, but it gets tiring too. In any event, it adds names to my filter.

So where are these legions of CB operators, tired, huddled masses yearning to be "interference" free? Thess allot less going on than you profess.

BrainBuster, I think they are familiar with that technique first hand.Thats how Frenchy got started. So they do know how that works, it's when ip addresses are part of the message that gets them busted every time. Or lack

Just a thought:

We ask our military personnel to take the risk of dying for our country--under fire presumably. And we hold them high as heroes.

Some people are willing to die for their country without compromise to their belief that peaceful resistance (or none at all) may be an alternative? And we belittle them?

A terrorist's "job" is easy whether fought by might or not. A terrorist doesn't think of the consequences of actions--and, indeed, actually welcomes your battle. It gives him/her higher position in the "afterlife." A terrorist doesn't care if confronted with the wrong side of a barrel or a peace sign.

Any way in which we individually or collectively choose to fight terrorism is dandy in my book. When at death's door it is not between anyone but oneself and God (whomever your God may be).

Bert, no over simplification. One is the cause (adjacent Channel rejection) and the other is the effect (front End Overload) What level of interference do I allude to Bert? They both occur on sideband as well as Am. You either must not turn your radio on or you live in a area where no one uses there radio If you do not get bleedover. The comment was made by SSB he never mentions the use of sideband in his post yet clearly refers to turning the mic gain down below 100% to avoid causing bleedover how does that happen in a ssb signal. I defer to your sideband expertise.

> He made no mention of it, so why should you? As stated, it's

Why should I mention it because extra's and generals alike also use 2 meter So does it interfer with them ? why should I exclude them? he excluded them for troll value towards no codes. He also never mentioned the use of sideband either but you assumed thats what he meant.

What type of request is this "8. CB rarely interferes with no-code tech operations on 2M."

So you are saying guys who use names like twistedhed, Train, moparholic, punisha, anthrax, brainbuster are to coward to post under there real name? He posted his call sign big wow is that in an effort to impress the Cbers in the NG?

No I am not a ham remember I didnt give my call. To qoute SSB "If you're a

How could you not infer that he specifically single out No Code Techs as if they are some other form of Ham. You didn't infer that because you are

I have recordings of what? Who is talking about starting an investigation are you loosing it Bert? Do you think some little old lady who get her Tv interfered with has a tape recorder sitting at her side waiting for a illegal cb op to roll by her house pumping 1kw. It may not happen daily but it is enought to happen, how about when people a block away there baby monitor is interfered with who do they tape what do they do most also accept this until they get fed up. My answer to this post had noting to do with trolling you seemed to beat me to the punch. I didnt agree with everything SSB said, does disagreeing make someone a troll?

They would be the legal Op's Did I say there were legions Bert don't put word into my posts that arent there. many people accept the fact of bleedover as cb operator what choice do they have? Shut off the radio or put up with it, or get on the same channel as the offenders. Maybe you don't live in an area thats populated with Hi- power Cb operators, mobile or otherwise. Don't act like it doesnt happen get a few guys with davemades, texas stars etc in your area and you to will have bleedover.

Some try harder than others Bert, your goal is to have the DX rule lifted, never happen but a dubious goal indeed. Bert, what difference does my name make on any given day You know who I am my ip tells that. Plonk, your a piece of shit.! Who also disgraces amatuer radio everytime you post your call sign. There is in fact some harmonics that fall in the 6m band near the top end FM section, for example Channel 1 at 26.965 MHz x 2 = 53.930 MHz. As you should well know there are as many illegal operators below CB channel 1 on as there are above CB channel 40. Some operate as low as 25 to 26 MHz, which puts spurious signals right in the middle to lower end of the Ham 6m band. Of course those operators run illegal power amplifiers as well.

There are other mechanisms by which interference can be generated such as the mixing of two high powered signals, where either the sum or difference in frequency can fall in to one of the Hams bands. This mixing can occur either in the receiver's front end, or it can occur in the output stage of an unfiltered solid state amplifier. Tube amplifiers don't seem have the problem because their loading and matching sections serve the filtering function.

The solid state amplifier causes the problem when a strong near by signal travels down the feedline from the antenna, and mixes with the signal being transmitted. Many solid state amplifiers have little to no filtering on the output, which would block the out of band signal from entering the amplifier's output stage in the first place. Since NO device is perfectly linear some mixing and spurious signal generation will occur. This does happen because I know a local Ham who is the control operator for two repeaters, one each on 2m and 70cm. He told me he had to install filters on the output to keep strong signals from near by transmitters from entering his equipment and generating spurious output as seen on a spectrum analyzer. The problem was trying to identify the frequency of the signal that had to be filtered out. That is real world experience.

Keeping the above in mind with the right combination of harmonics generated by a CB station, and mixing with lets say a local FM or TV station signal it is very possible to find interference on the 2m Ham band as well. For example take the second harmonic of 27.405 MHz (54.81 MHz) then mixing with a strong nearby FM station on 89.19 MHz, the sum of which equals 144 MHz, the Ham 2m band. I'm not going to comment about the frequency which that can happen, but the potential does exist.

There are other methods were spurious signals can be generated, but the above discussion points out two of the more likely to be experienced.

Hi Phil,

Thanks, really nice stuff. Funny thing is that I'm still in the same boat I started out in. Some say it stinks and others say it's really good. If it is the same, internally, as the DX-959, then I'll let it go. I know I wouldn't switch from the Grant for a DX-959, so a prettier face (case) won't change that. I'll just have a Galaxy frequency counter hard-wired to the Grant. Take care and thanks again.

A few years ago I would have debated with you on this subject. I believe I put RATED in quotes. I have to say you are correct. A watt is still a watt. And yes, the power supplies are just as important as the boxes. I have told lots of guys to get a bigger box instead of trying to squeeze 4000w out of a 4-pill or 5k out of a couple of Zs. There is no real reason to break down the devices like that. Some of the guys I met at the break in ATL use there equipment as marketing tools. "I make a 2-pill that will dead key 1900 watts....wanna see?"

Go to the website and read for yourself, that is assuming you know how to find a site on the web. The site has several stories that have been researched and most have been debunked as simply made up rumors.

I noted the case of 'front-end overload' or cheapass front-end design in another post. As it happens, compare it to an AM radio which has a certain advantage in selectivity given the lower frequency but bows to no one for cheapass design. With a 50kw loudenboomer in town at 1110 I am not about to get 1120 out of St. Louis or 1130 out of Milwaukee but beyond that is no big deal. I can get 640 out of Ames IA with a 660 God Squad station (and incidentally where Top 40 programming began) in town because the signals are clean. Attributing everything to overload is plain bullshit.

As a point of fact all Ham license classes have exactly the same privileges above 30 MHz. There are no differences. A Tech class operator can use the same power modes and frequencies as can an Extra Class Ham. The only difference is below 30 MHz.

Stuart Crane, fameous Bircher from the Detroit area, said something in the 70's or 80's that echo what the founding fathers said. He said something like "The people in a country will put up with a bad government until enough of them will rise up to END IT. When enough people find it unbearable, they WILL rise up and DO something to end UNBiblical government (Rom. 13---for OUR GOOD!)" A founding Father of the USA said that "people in a land will PUT UP with a lot of evils, until it becomes UNbearable and something WILL be done." That's what happened in the USA in 1776, and that IS what should happen to Afgan land now. Some other founder said it is BETTER to be free and dead than a LIVE SLAVE. The egghead Afgan has some good insight & points, but this Muslim Moon worshipping Anti-Christ CULT has GOT TO live by the TRUE God (Jesus Christ) LAW (the 10 Commandments) or it's over. I made a tape with a son of a fameous European a few years ago, and he said (from his European perspective) that THE dangers we face in the future (NOW) will be THE MUSLIMS. He said that IF WE DON'T STOP them, then it is ALL OVER. Tape available for a charge. Contact me @ truth@planetc.com The price of Liberty IS Eternal Vigilance!!!!!!!!!

WHat is this? They didn't have the RIP OFF Mod. kits in the past, so how can this Cybernet CB have any Mod. kit? Or is he just selling the mic? Or is made by Uniden? A 70's CB with a mod kit? What an Abomination! $30 for a stock mic? !

They are good but very temperature sensitive. On cold mornings mine wouldn't transmit until the interior warmed up. Controls were a little difficult to parse.
I like the RCI 2950 much better for mobile use.

I'm a HAM too, a General class. My call is KC8RKQ. I am a HAM, not because I say I am, but because I actually have that piece of paper that says the FCC KNOWS I am.
I don't advocate illegal operation of CB equipment, but I recognize that there are those that are going to operate illegally. I don't want to be interfered with, so I'd rather give advice to those who do run power/out of band so that they don't interfere with my operations on 10 and 12 meters.
Bleedover, as I define it, is spurious emissions close to the intended transmit frequency. I said nothing about front-end-overload... that's a different can of worms altogether. Bleedover is caused by dirty amps, overmodulation, and pisspoor operation of radio equipment, not by receiver front ends...
I specified "no-code" 2M/6M operations because most of the complaints and whining I've been hearing have come from no-codes... The non-effects of 11M operations apply equally to all four HAM operating classes..

Hope this clears my points up.

poor rejection in the front end of a receiver is not "THE" reason for bleedover, it's ONE reason.. Other reasons include poorly balanced amps, NPC mods, overmodulation, poorly tuned transmitters, and a multitude of others. Bill Eitner could probably go more in depth here, I'm not a radio tech.. I'm a general class HAM who also enjoys CB...

Yes, I was a tech not too long ago.. for exactly four months and one day. Not eight years like some "personalities" here.. I strove and overcame A.D.D. and Dyslexia to learn morse code... and became a General class.. In a month or so, I'll be an Extra.. After that, who knows...

No Fear, just because one reason could be the cause, doesn't mean it always is.. In my experience, frontend overload is rarely the cause of bleedover.. Overmodulation is more often than not the cause.

Ah.. I missed that one.. Thanks for pointing it out...

then again, AM harmonics are hardly a problem in the FM portion of the 6M band.

> There is in fact some harmonics that fall in the 6m band near the top end FM section, for example Channel 1 at 26.965 MHz x 2 = 53.930 MHz. As you should well know there are as many illegal operators below CB channel 1 on as there are above CB channel 40. Some operate as low as 25 to 26 MHz, which puts spurious signals right in the middle to lower end of the Ham 6m band. Of course those operators run illegal power amplifiers as well.
>
> There are other mechanisms by which interference can be generated such as the mixing of two high powered signals, where either the sum or difference in frequency can fall in to one of the Hams bands. This mixing can occur either in the receiver's front end, or it can occur in the output stage of an unfiltered solid state amplifier. Tube amplifiers don't seem have the problem because their loading and matching sections serve the filtering function.
>
> The solid state amplifier causes the problem when a strong near by signal travels down the feedline from the antenna, and mixes with the signal being transmitted. Many solid state amplifiers have little to no filtering on the output, which would block the out of band signal from entering the amplifier's output stage in the first place. Since NO device is perfectly linear some mixing and spurious signal generation will occur. This does happen because I know a local Ham who is the control operator for two repeaters, one each on 2m and 70cm. He told me he had to install filters on the output to keep strong signals from near by transmitters from entering his equipment and generating spurious output as seen on a spectrum analyzer. The problem was trying to identify the frequency of the signal that had to be filtered out. That is real world experience.

> Keeping the above in mind with the right combination of harmonics generated by a CB station, and mixing with lets say a local FM or TV station signal it is very possible to find interference on the 2m Ham band as well. For example take the second harmonic of 27.405 MHz (54.81 MHz) then mixing with a strong nearby FM station on 89.19 MHz, the sum of which equals 144 MHz, the Ham 2m band. I'm not going to comment about the frequency which that can happen, but the potential does exist.

Just got an old antenna just to get the bumper mount in the kit, was curious if anyone knows just how old it was.

It's a Shakespeare The Stick II

About 96" in length, fiberglass whip, in two pieces.

First shaft is approx 48" up to a small spring with top shaft attached.

Seems to work pretty well too.

I cross posted this thread because much of MY message honestly applied equally to CB radio operators and scanner users (or any other person with radio experience, at any level, that is willing to volunteer his or her time to help others). Now it's nice that you've donated cash (or blood), but not all of the world's problems can be solved by getting rid of a little pocket change. People to do the work are also needed. Now, if you don't want to do that, please feel free to ignore the "drivel."

Seems like you and Twisted suffer from the same disease. Frankly I don't need to post using alternate nics, nor forge posts using other's E-mail addresses etc. You would figure that by now with the threats etc. that I would be using one, well guess what I'm not. Unlike several others here on the group I'm not afraid to stick my real name to what I write. What about you?

Twisted hasn't noticed that when he is not accusing me of something I can be very reasonable. However when he seems to be experiencing a major brain malfunction, and goes on a binge of false accusations of various kinds I don't mind taking him to task one bit. The same goes for you.

> I'm 120 miles from you.
> Split the difference,and we're an hour apart Leland.
> Hell,I'll drive to MADison..to settle things with you !

Yada, yada, yada..... If I had a dime for every time I heard that I would be rich now. You know that is exactly the same crap I heard on 11m over 20 years ago, and the same thing I heard on channel 19 a week ago. The kids that started saying that crap back then are now your age. Time hasn't help CB Radio at all, and that's why I dumped it. The people on the ham bands seem to have a better level of maturity in most cases. I'm not being a snob, that is just the way it seems to me with the Hams I talk to on the air. Of course we have out bad apples too. Fortunately they seem to be few in number.

When I was in to CB back then it was always the control freaks who couldn't stand people speaking their mind, or using the radio legally when they pleased. They had to have control over them no matter what the cost. Thus the amplifiers, the potty mouths, and the endless jamming that occurred. I don't, and I can't, stop people from speaking their minds on this group, the same as they are not going to silence me either. If my comments rub somebody's fur the wrong way, oh-well, I have had my fur rubbed the wrong way as well here too. I got used to it because it goes with the territory. However I realize that threatening somebody will not silence them either, it's just a waste of time.

That last comment should be self evident. Just look around here. Ask yourself has any of the threats, the forged posts, and all of the other dirty tricks pulled by several people on the group, has ANY of that STOPPED anybody from voicing their opinion? And you for some funny reason think it will. So just consider for a moment if it works against somebody else it can work against you too. You're nobody special here. You're just like the rest of us.

It's really sickening to realize that this country will have some of our soldiers fighting to protect this country, and the rights we all enjoy, only to have a few like you who would be pleased beyond joy to deny that same right (the First Amendment) that enables you to post your angry threats here, while trying to deny that same right to others. Are you really an American? I really find it hard to believe you are.

It depends on how strong they are because you have the capture effect with FM and what about the sideband section of the band (50.100 MHz to 50.300 MHz). Otherwise I would agree with you. I'm more annoyed with the crap from the local TV channel 2 station than anything else. Here round the Detroit area they have most of the band screwed up depending on how close to their TX site one happens to be. 8-(

It's obvious you didn't do your homework. First, tincan is a public access server, and has been for quite some time. It is a text-based dialup connection (Lynx), so you won't see IE in my posts. Besides, I have only used IE for one post -- period. All the others were with Free Agent. And no, I don't use AOL. I don't know where you got that from, but it's wrong too. Don't my posts have trace info in the header?

And it's also obvious that you don't know how to use Google. Try these: <1999May22.173643.3259@tincan.tincan.org>; and <3af0a9c9.29604@news.cet.com>.

And if the newsgroup header isn't good enough for you, just email me and I'll reply directly from tincan and you can examine the header all you want.

You know, what I find really funny is how you (and twist) come up with all these elaborate explanations just to avoid the real issue -- your foot-in-mouth disease. Please keep it up, it's very entertaining.

You seem to have forgotten that you attributed my words to Aaron.
I am the one that wrote them, so if you are calling anybody "sick", it's me. YOU fucked up, brainless, not Aaron and not me.

I don't really care what you think about it. Yes it is extreme ,but the comparison is valid none the less, and that is the whole point. When the "I don't care" idea is applied to another context the ramifications of the comment are made to stand out in crystal clarity so the absurd logic it implies is fully understood. So if it's just dandy to apply to Part 95 rules, as Roger Beep did, what's to stop anyone from using the same logic else where to justify their actions? Nothing.

Seems like you and Twisted suffer from the same disease. Frankly I don't need to post using alternate nics, nor forge posts using other's E-mail addresses etc. You would figure that by now with the threats etc. that I would be using one, well guess what I'm not. Unlike several others here on the group I'm not afraid to stick my real name to what I write. What about you?

Twisted hasn't noticed that when he is not accusing me of something I can be very reasonable. However when he seems to be experiencing a major brain malfunction, and goes on a binge of false accusations of various kinds I don't mind taking him to task one bit. The same goes for you.

You know that is exactly the same crap I heard on 11m over 20 years ago, and the same thing I heard on channel 19 a week ago. The kids that started saying that crap back then are now your age. Time hasn't help CB Radio at all, and that's why I dumped it.

Then why are you on a cb newsgroup Leland? I dumped Ham radio some 10 plus years ago, I don't hang out on that group, nor do I try to subvert them into illegal activities, so why do you hang out here?
Just curious.

What do you think is happening when you run a dirty amp, pisspoor radios, overmodulation it overloads the recievers front end some radios are better than others at rejecting this, a signal which is "clean" will also Bleedover if it "overloads" the rx front end. My point was you saying "big Power" doesnt bleed it sure does. This is how it does it some radios front end reject more than others some radios adjacent channel rejection is better than others "clean power" or not.

SSB, You have missed my point totaly, front end overload is the result of bleedover you said big power will not bleed even under 100% mod that is not true all it has to do is overload the rx. I never said poor rejection is the result of bleedover, overmodulation, poorly designed amps etc are the reason RX overload occurs this is the result of these conditions. What happens when a over modulated signal is received ? It overloads the front end. Capesh. Thank but no Thanks tell Eitner to save his breath.

So what? Moparholic answers for Scott all the time. Twistedhed answers for Tim Nebout quite often. And Jay In The Mojave answers for anyone defending illegal CB. Does that make them sick people or forgers? OK, perhaps it does only in the case of Twisty.

And how come no one ever had any problems with "keyclowns" sounding exactly like each other, using the same rhetoric, same profanity, same lame excuses?

Look. Here's the basic dynamic of this NG:

1. It's overrun by illegal CBers.
2. They don't want to be held accountable for their actions or criticized.
3. Anyone who disagrees with them is called a troll and 'run off'.

So go...embrace your outlaw brothers. They need you, now more than ever.

What can I expect from a no brainer LIBERAL like yourself. The Bible teaches and most of "Christianity" believes that Jesus IS God in the flesh, he was both God & Man. He and the Father, the Spirit, are ALL ONE. I'm sure all other Christians on this group will back me up on this one, sunny! MY question to you is, DID YOU serve under our ENEMIES DOMESTIC (the UN) in any one of their controlled phoney so called "wars," and are they the same people, or their wicked CFR or Trilateral Commission sons running things now that did then? Hey Mr. HIPPY: WE will fight the UN right HERE, Sunny! That is where the next war will be. We are not interested in getting involved in any more Deut. 28 wars. because our Christian commander, George Washington SAID "STAY OUT of the affairs of Europe." He was right!
I am a veteran of future wars. For the US, NOT the UN. The UN is Communist and anti-American!!!!!! Did you put your blue UN uniform on????

Yep, on 5070 @ 10pm EDT tonight, Texe will have a guy on that published beforehand in his newsletter what he saw in a vision when he went to NYC before the aircraft theft & damage.

My friend said that it was so good that it should be taped. It should be very interesting, to say the least.

That ISLAM-IS-BAD ! It may be a city in Pakistan PackyLand, but they should say Islam IS Bad instead of Islamabad!!!!!

It is an Anti-Christ MOON worshipping Satanic CULT that will send their adherants to the Lake of Fire, since they have NO SAVIOR (God in the flesh-Jesus Christ) for their sins to stay out of it! It use to be called MOHAMMEDENS in the olden days. Can you imagine the hijackers finding themselves in the Lake of Fire, instead of Paradise, because they BROKE the TRUE God's LAW, "Thou (YOU) shall NOT KILL." They ARE crispy critters as we speak!

I can't wait til www.cultbusters.com gets back up. They'll tell you everything you could possibly know about these MOON worshippers! NO CB's in Mooselim countries!!

Liberal and conservative are generally political references, not religious in the sense you used them. You didn't say anything about the trinity, only that your god was Jesus. Sunny is an adjective used for as bright day. You might be trying to use the term sonny, a devisive term suggesting that I am younger than you. Highly unlikely. Once again, Christrian behavior would preclude you from this behavior, so you certainly aren't a genuine Christian. If anything, you have twisted religious thought to your own means, as have some in the Islamic world. In other words, you are certainly no better than those whom you criticize.

Hello Keith , Wed Doc:

Yes its healthy to take a few days off, and one must take time off.
Didn't the guy who created everything have to take the seventh day off.

When I take a day or two off, I like to travel a short ways and just watch TV do some technical reading, take a combat nap, chase the girl friend around, that type of stuff. Its a FCC rule I think.

Also I will emphases the fact that I am taking a day off by throwing the empties in a pile, just below the TV set (I know real classy) and blaming the girl friend for drinking too much, when friends come over to visit or guests show up.

But at times I have had to wait around for some work to hit or an assignment. Kind of like the guy in Apopalous Now, waiting for a mission. Only I don't get into the stupor mode and brake the mirror while doing Karate practice and then fall down.

Dave,
It's attitudes like yours that have caused this situation in the first place. The terrorist have the same intolerant fervor that you have.

IF I am "no better" as you say, then YOU are WORSE! "Religious" liberals are as bad as you. You are truly an EGGHEAD that will get his shell broken one day when he finds out that those who keep Jesus's commandments are Christians. What behavior are you referring to? I am interested in how you can gauge behavior DIGITALLY ! What is a "genuine Christian" in your eyes? Then I will show you what the Bible says instead! What thoughts do I have that are "twisted?" This will interesting!

You're right. I have better pictures from Rio Brazil with all those topless babes on the beach. To bad you can't afford to go there. Personaly the women in Chile look even better than the ones in Brazil.

"That's easy to explain. As another poster a short time back said about
Part 95 rules "I don't care", well you see what happens when that mind set gets applied in a different context. It is very apparent they, the terrorists, didn't care about human life either, including their own. "

It's funny how all the hypocrites didn't come crawling out of hiding on this one. It must be OK to compare terrorism to law-abiding citizens, but a sin to compare them to lawbreakers. Thanks for making a very good

I am a CB radio "extremest." I am an extremest FOR JESUS. Does this bother you? HE will IF you don't repent of your sins and obey the Gospel (good news). Are you a liberal media "extremest?" What if I was a "religious extremest for the Christian Religion?" What is the Humanist's religion penalty for that? !!!!
